INTEREST MARKS OPENING OF CLUB SEASON IN LIMA

Social Functions Galore Begin With First Tinge of Autumn

With the delightful tinge of autumnal coolness in the air and the return of the many families from summer sojourns and tours, one firmly realizes the transition from their care free and glorious vacation days to the stern realities of the endless responsibilities in the social as well as the club world.

Clubdom is now almost entirely reorganized for the fall season. During the past week a number of clubs held their initial meetings while during the coming week another large number, including many of the most prominent clubs of the city will assemble for their first meeting since the summer recess

It is, indeed, interesting to note the keen earnestness and sincerity, which is characteristic of almost every club woman regarding the plans of her particular club or clubs for the year. Practically every club has outlined a most unusual and progressive course for the year's work, indicative of the splendid strides and accomplishments, which the women of today are attaining

During the past week with the green leaves of the tall and stately maples and oaks changing into glorious hues of brown, yellow and red, an ideal setting was afforded those entertaining with fall affairs.

One of the first and most delightful of the fall social functions was the reception given at Shawnee Country club last Wednesday when Mrs W. C. Bradley and Miss Violet Bradley received more than 200 guests Every nook and corner of the club house was suggestive of autumn with quantities of gorgeous colored leaves and other arrays of fall beauties arranged in a most artistic effect

Numerous other events have been arranged for the fall months, promising an active and most interesting season.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Banta, of S. Collett-st, welcomed the members of the T. and T club at the Shawnee Country club, Friday evening at a prettily appointed dinner. This was the initial meeting of the 30th year of the club. Mrs. Banta is the president for the present year.

Huge bowls of chrysanthemums and white asters were arranged thruout the one large room while myriads of pink asters were scattered over the snowy cloth on the dinner table.

Places were arranged for Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Borges, Dr. and Mrs. T. R. Terwilliger, Mrs Luah M. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Roby, Dr. and Mrs. T. K Jacobs, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mackenzie, Mrs. T. A. Lima friends of Herbert Catt, son of Mrs. R. B. Tolan, of W. Market-st, will be interested in learning of his marriage to Miss Martha Schultz, of Ft. Wayne. The wedding took place September 12th in Ft. Wayne at the home of the bride with only the members of the immediate families in attendance. The impressive Episcopal ring service was used.

Mr. Catt and his bride are now residing in Ft. Wayne, having returned to that city last Wednesday after a visit with Mr. Catt's mother in Lima.

✧ ✧ ✧

First regular meeting of the Daughters o fthe American Revolution will be held Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. D. H. Sullivan, of W. North-st. The assistant hostesses will be Mrs. Lester Pratt, Mrs. J. W. Lippincott and Miss Zoe Light Mrs. G. R. Clayton will present a paper on "American Women in Politics" at this time.

Mrs. Charlotte Reeves Conover, a well known lecturer of Dayton, will give the first of a series of lectures before the City Federation of Women's clubs at an open meeting next Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the Hotel Argonne.

Mrs. Conover will have for her subject, "Moliere and His World." In her talk the speaker will discuss the 17th century as Moliere found it, the condition in the state, church, court and private life, the mediaeval theatre period, Moliere's provincial career and the appearances and triumphs at the capital. Music will be in charge of Mrs. I. R. Longsworth.

✧ ✧ ✧

Honoring Mrs. Robert G. Hass (Lura Mae Gallaspie), of Greensburg, Ind., Miss Kathryn Schafer, of W. Market-st, entertained with a most attractive dinner at her home, Friday evening.

A large basket of roses tied with a huge bow of old blue tulle formed the centerpiece and a dainty color scheme of pink and old blue was detailed in the other appointments. Following the dinner the evening was enjoyed in bridge.

Miss Schafer's guests included Misses Mary Parmenter, Violet Bradley, Gertrude Boose, Margaret Gregg, Dorothy Collins, Mrs. Glennes Woodruff and the honor guest

Dr. and Mrs Guy Bayly, of Lakewood-av, will leave Sunday for Dayton for a short stay. Dr. Bayly will attend a dental clinic and a series of lectures in Dayton on Monday.

A jolly group of friends gathered at the home of Mrs J. D. Hall, of Shawnee-st, Friday evening in celebration of her birthday anniversary. Cards and dancing were enjoyed thruout the evening and a delicious two-course lunch was served.

PARIS LOOTS HAREMS FOR STYLES

BY MARIAN HALE

LIKE good Mohammedans, we are looking toward the East for sartorial as well as political developments.

The political situation may fill us with apprehension, but the styles give us joy. The Turkish influence is one of the most popular ones that has reached us, via Paris, for many a day.

Harem beauties learned long ago how to frame the face becomingly and have been little influenced by changing styles. They have become such artists with the veil that the custom no longer requires them to wear it on all occasions they cling to it from sheer coquetry.

They still wear it draped about the face and their chin veil has been stolen by Parisian designers to be one of the season s most popular styles.

Of black, too, it gives a grace and beauty to the simplest hat and is more effective than any chin strap known in keeping the double chin out of evidence.

A hat with a decidedly Moslem ancestry is shown beside the veil. Its very oddity makes it charming, framing the face as it does with an entirely new line. Gorgeous Turkish embroidery is the only trimming.

The spider and fly comb is Spanish rather than Turkish, but it belongs with the season' novelties in headdress.

A very black and well-nourished looking spider, mounted on a yellow tortoise shell comb, makes his invitation much more inviting because of its advantageous position in the locks of a lovely women.

Paris has decreed that the unconventional shall lead. Now is the time for every original citizen to come to the aid of his country and produce novelties in dress.

ENTERTAINMENT TO CLOSE CLUB

Delightful Affair at Shawnee Planned for Tonight —Dinner at 6:30

LIMA society will assemble at Shawnee Country club Sunday evening for the formal close of the club house It is with deep regret that the members will witness the close of the house, which has proved by far the most popular and favored rendezvous for the social gaieties of the summer season

As a fitting finale to the active season a most delightful evening has been planned for the close. Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock and the house will be decorated in gala attire, suggestive of the early fall season, for the occasion. Following the dinner an artistic musical program will be presented

✧ ✧ ✧

Mr Clarence Klauser will be hostess to the members of the Linde club Tuesday morning at the first meeting of the new club year Mrs. Harry MacDonald will be the leader.

Mrs. MacDonald will present a paper on the subject, "Historical Background and Growth of Music in the British Isles." "Gregorian Chant" will be sung by a quartet composed of Misses Mary K. Roby, Mrs J. P Evans, Mrs. Warren Snyder and Mrs. Charles A. Black Miss Anna Cantwell will act as the accompanist Following this number Mrs. Klinger will sing, "I Attempt from Love's Sickness to Fly", by Purcell Miss Mary K Roby will accompany.

✧ ✧ ✧

A dinner will be given in the new dining room at Market Street Presbyterian church Wednesday for the pleasure of the members of the congregation and their friends

✧ ✧ ✧

Mrs A H Zacharias, formerly of this city, now of Detroit, arrived in Lima Saturday for a several days' stay with Mrs. J F. Bowman, of Woodlawn-ave.

Miss Mabel May was delightfully surprised Saturday when Mrs. Vernon Fisher, of State-st, entertained with a prettily appointed 1 o'clock luncheon at the Elk's Home in her honor. Miss May will leave during the coming week for her future home in Cincinnati. Guests included a coterie of intimate friends of the honor guest.

The luncheon tables were attractively decorated, appointments being carried out in pink and white. Centerpieces of pink and white cosmos graced each the tables

Following the luncheon Mrs. Fisher invited her guests to her home, where bridge was enjoyed and a miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Miss May.

Guests for the enjoyable affair included Misses Mabel Bowsher, Marie Sweeney, Helen King, Gail Parmenter, Mrs. Howard Chew, Mrs Vernon Hosselman, Mrs Austin Potter, Mrs. Lyle Parmenter, Mrs. Robert Conley, Mrs. Frank Hill, Mrs. Frank Sealts, Mrs. W. P. Hoover, Mrs. Val Kohl, Mrs. F. P. O'Connor and the honor guest.

Mrs. G. J. Duffey, of Elmwood-pl, entertained with an attractive affair at her home Thursday evening announcing the engagement of her daughter, Miss Angela Margaret, to Oscar Hosencamp, of Los Angeles.

The evening was enjoyed socially and at a late hour a dainty repast was served. The table was prettily appointed in a color scheme of pink and white. Walnuts, in which were concealed the initials of the betrothed couple, marked each cover.

Places were arranged for Misses Ruth and Mary Callahan, Leona O'Connor, Rosie Selber, Helen Cox, Cecelia DeCurtin, Marie Simons, Helen Wells, Mrs. Raymond Conroy, Mrs. Frank Reipenhoff, Mrs. Howard Fletcher, Mrs. M. H. Lynch and Miss Duffey.

✧ ✧ ✧

Mrs. J. R. Tillotson, of S. Charles-st, welcomed the members of the Quilna Bridge at her home, last Tuesday. At the close of the playing with Mrs. M. D. Greenleaf holding high score the hostess served tea.

✧ ✧ ✧

A group of young girls met at the home of Miss Evelyn Evans, of N. Collett-st, Friday evening, and organized the T. J. K. club. Miss Ethel Hammell was chosen president and Miss Marcelle Greenland secretary. Dancing and music followed the business session.

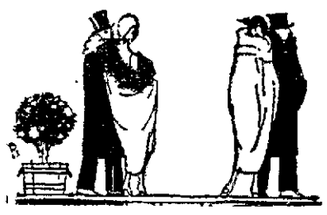

Members of the club include Misses Lavon Neely, Ethel Hammell, Marcelle Greenland, Getrtrude Barrington, Margaret and Mildred Polser, Dalphyn Feltz, Martha Minsky and Evelyn Evans.

is the method of suiting apparel to the personality of an individual. Thus all garments are separated, and classed definitely. In explaining Personalized style to you, salespeople will not only show you what is beautiful, but what is suitable. Just another Bluem service, carried out in the selling of coats, suits, frocks, and corsets especially.

"Exclusively Bluem"

There is an unrecognized factor in all of these finer Bluem coats, suits and frocks. Usually it is termed as quality, more often as style, but it is the most vital of the differences between lower and better classes of apparel. It is charm—of material and designing, and final effect. And when you have inspected both, you will see how really important it is.

—When one shops,

—In the morning, it's all very well to wear that indispensable costume, the tailored suit. But in the afternoon when the task is taken more leisurely, it's the costume suit or frock and suit now known as a three piece suit that rises to the occasion. Suits luxuriously embroidered, and collared and cuffed and elaborated cleverly with a becoming fur. The costume suit has reached a higher rank in the smart wardrobe than has ever been accorded it before. Here are several interesting models chosen at random—

Grey davetyn with long Tuxedo collar of Squirrel—open to the waistline and ties on side Grey brocade lining. $181

Black three piece broadtail fabric suit Blouse of Jersey Canton, embroidered in gold and silver bugles Ties at side Skirt has narrow panels of Jersey caught underneath the hem Very unusual $185.

But that is one personality—here are others—

Vivacious hues of gold, blue, jade, bronze, nile, rose, silver, and coral, long waisted, over slips of the same hues or different colors to blend. Each of them possessing workmanship—designing, coloring, and taste that is different.

To prove that the Frock Shop has a versatile selection for the choice of people who want to be different, here are several representative types chosen at random—

—or promenades

—a coat's the thing! A wrappy coat that fastens with a queer buckle instead of buttons—that has unexpected fascinating lines that compliment one's figure—a blue if you like blue, or rich seal brown, or black. The better coats—there are only one of a style bought from exclusive houses—are of Gerona, Tarquina, Velverette, Fashiona, Veldyne, Verona, etc.—and the principal furs used in trimming are black and brown fox or wolf, squirrel, open and closed curl caraculs, Fitch, mole, and much beaver. A few representative coats chosen at random are—

Black Tarquina blouse back, with Persian lamb collar The bottom of the Mandarin sleeves are bordered in eight rib bands couched down with triple strands of floss Lined with green Canton $115.

All black Tarquina, very simply made—with wide Mandarin sleeves caught and gathered into small cuffs at wrist Braided in cord around sleeves and down to hem—a conservative model $135.

Seal Brown Gerona with shawl collar of Fitch Buckles at waist line Has wrappy Mandarin sleeves set into body that gives slenderizing lines $165.

NOTED SINGERS WILL APPEAR IN CONCERT HERE NEXT THURSDAY

Women's Music Club Will Present Quartet In First Evening Entertainment

WOMAN'S Music club will present the Artone Quartet as its opening concert for the year 1922-23. The concert will be given at Memorial Hall, Thursday at 8:15 p. m.

The personnel of the quartet includes Dicie Howell, soprano; Mabel Beddoe, contralto; James Price, tenor; and Walter Greene, baritone. Francis Moore is the director and pianist.

The Artone Quartet was organized a year and a half ago and united four well known singers of established reputation. It has toured thruout the east and middle west in recital programs, festival engagements and has appeared with the Detroit Symphony orchestra.

The repertoire of the quartet includes many new song cycles as well as many familiar favorites and some beautiful operatic selections.

Dicie Howell, soprano, received her early musical education at Salem College, the well known Moravian school, which is a branch of the mama settlement at Bethlehem, Pa. After leaving Salem, Miss Howell went to Boston and continued her work at the New England Conservatory for one season. Shortly after this time she studied voice production with Theodore Van Yorx and for the last three and a half years has continued her vocal work and coaching with Herbert Witherspoon. Shortly after her arrival in New York she became a soloist at the Mount Morris Baptist church under the direction of the well known A. Y. Cornell. A little later she became the soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church under the composer-director, R. Huntington Woodman.

Miss Howell has appeared with the New Haven Orchestra, the Columbia University orchestra, the Arnold Volpe orchestra, Newark Symphony orchestra, the National Symphony orchestra, as well as the Bridgeport Oratorio society. She has appeared in joint recital with Reinald Werrenrath and also with Paul Althouse and Arthur Middleton, both of the Metropolitan Opera company in the Fitchburg Festival.

Mabel Beddoe, contralto, received her musical training at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, where she attained highest honors in piano, harmony and theory. After leaving the Conservatory she studied languages in Europe for a period of three years. Upon her return to this country, necessitated by a serious illness, she appeared under the most prominent conductors in the country in various performances of oratorio and concert. She has also sung with many of the finest American orchestras. Miss Beddoe is a daughter of Tom Beddoe, at one time Canada's leading tenor, who appeared in concert and oratorio and was engaged to create the tenor roles in the Gilbert and Sullivan operas when their first Canadian performances were given.

James Price, tenor, is a young American, who has won a splendid reputation by his appearances in concert and oratorio at important festivals and with noted choral organizations.

Mr. Price began his musical education at the well known Peabody Conservatory at Baltimore. Among his most important engagements have been those with the Baltimore Choral society, Choral society of Oberlin College, St. Cecelia's society at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Cambrian Chorus at Schenectady, N. Y., the Thursday Morning Club of Winston Salem, N. C., and the Normal College Chorus of Greensboro, N. C.

Walter Greene has a baritone voice of exceptionally fine quality. He received his musical education under the foremost American teachers. He served for one year as director of the voice department at a well known western college, later going to New York, where he continued his studies with Herbert Witherspoon. For two seasons he sang the title role in "The Chocolate Soldier." The following season he became a member of the Society of American singers and has since toured the country extensively as a recitalist. He has appeared with the New York Symphony orchestra, Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, New York Philharmonic society, St. Louis Symphony and the Stadium Symphony orchestra.

The New York Times paid the following fine tribute to Mr. Greene when commenting on his New York recital, "Such rich vocal material and virile presence should go far. Mr. Greene is a stalwart young baritone—an admirable Toreador."

The program for Thursday's recital follows:

I.

LEARN A WORD A DAY

TODAY'S word is —CHIVALROUS. ....

It means—knightly, brave, gallant, warlike but generous and honorable.

It comes from — French "chevalier", meaning "knight," originally "horseman."

It's used like this — "The Turk, long represented to western peoples as the very embodiment of wickedness, is known among those acquainted with the east, and even to soldiers who have fought him, as 'the gentleman of the orient,' naturally peaceful, an excellent friend and a chivalrous enemy."

We Do Not Charge for "Style"

CLOTH, [illegible], buttons, stitches—these things are common to all garments.

They are the essentials of [illegible]ment—just as paint and canvas are the essentials of every portrait.

But it is the human element—the creative element—which puts soul into a painting, or style into a garment.

Alis Shop Apparel—in the New York manner—have won a large following among well-dressed women because they are the artistic expression of a well-defined idea.

Created for our exacting clientele, they embody the personal preferences of that clientele in terms of line, of grace, of distinction, of unswerving correctness.

They are as inexpensive as ordinary garments. And their standard of quality—as expressed in exclusive fabrics and flawless tailoring—is as high as it is humanly possible to expect.

If you know good garments—or if you want to know good garments—then we invite you to examine our Fall Suits, Coats, Frocks and Furs. Test them by comparison, style for style and value for value with any other ready to wear garments, which emphasize quality and character.

GRAVE GIVES UP CLUES TO DUAL KILLNG

Startling Revelations Made In Autopsy of Mrs. Mills' Body

WORK OF REVENGE

Theory of Robbery Set Aside by Findings In New Brunswick Case

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. — (United Press) — The grave has yielded the most important clues yet discovered to the secret of the Hall-Mills murder, it became known here Saturday.

Arrest of a man heretofore unmentioned may be but a matter of a few hours, detectives let it be known following startling revelations in the exhumation of Mrs. James Mills, choir leader, who was found slain beside the body of Rev. Edward Hall, Episcopal rector.

Spurred by public sentiment, rewards, charges of lax investigations and the interest Governor Edwards of New Jersey is taking in the case, a score of detectives Saturday began a sudden spurt of activity.

GIRL VISITS GOVERNOR

Information that a hitherto unsuspected man was being investigated, also followed a tearful visit of Charlotte Mills, daughter of the murdered woman, to Governor Edwards. Reports were circulated here Saturday night that Miss Mills told the governor of stories she had heard of "powerful interests" working—thru unwillingness to cooperate with authorities and protests—to hamper solution of the weird murder, which in the last two weeks has baffled corps of detectives, prosecutors, state secret service men, newspaper men and private investigators.

All New Brunswick was stirred Saturday night by the fiendishness of the crime, as revealed by the autopsy of Mrs. Mills. The autopsy showed that the murder was, in baffling gruesomeness, beyond the most sensational reports first circulated.

THEORIES SHELVED

Shelving permanently, they said, the theory that thugs or robbers committed the crime with the motive as robbery, Prosecutor Strickler and Beekman, and their detectives, outlined the story of a terrible midnight onslaught with the murderer or murderers wreaking wrath upon their victims with bullets, knife wounds, acid and bare hands.

The body of Hall will be exhumed Monday. Because of the decomposed state of the bodies when found authorities Saturday night admitted that only a loose examination was made and were frank to say that they expect further sensations from the examination of his body.

Detectives Saturday night, while plainly excited over the discovery of the new clues, cloaked their movements in greatest of mystery and Saturday and Saturday night interrogated a dozen persons heretofore not questioned to any great extent.

Governor Edwards Saturday ordered more members of the state constabulary to work on the murder.

CARETAKER QUIZZED

Developments here Saturday included the questioning for three hours of Matthew Sulies, caretaker of the Phillips farm where the bodies were found. Sulies was questioned at the prosecutor's office.

Prosecutor Beekman said, however, Sulies could contribute very little information toward clearing up the mystery. Dr. E. R. Cronk, health officer, who examined the bodies of Hall and Mrs. Mills when they were found Saturday painted the picture of the murder:

"The murders were committed by an extraordinary strong man, probably aided by a woman. After Mrs. Mills was shot, the assassin knelt upon her and drew a knife across her throat, almost severing the head.

"If her throat had been cut before she was shot, there would have been more blood upon her clothing."

Authorities Saturday night prepared to search an abandoned well reported on the Phillips farm for the weapons used by the murderers.

DEPRESSION CORNER IS TURNED BY BUSINESS

WASHINGTON—Business and industry have definitely turned the depression corner and now are making rapid forward strides, the federal reserve board reported Saturday.

A summary of general business and financial conditions for August and September shows that the country is on the verge of the boom forecast by administration officials, several weeks ago.

Agriculture is the only exception, the report stated. This is due to deterioration of growing crops.

Beane Family Regains Lost Sixty Minutes

Awakens to Find Court House Clock Again Ruling City's Chronometers

Mr. and Mrs. Lima Beane and all the little Beanes awoke Sunday morning to the glad realization that they had regained the hour of sleep which had been taken from them last spring.

As they rubbed their eyes and took their first look at the new day it was with pleasure they contemplated the fact that from now on they would not be getting up at six when they arose at seven.

It is reported on good authority that there was not a person in the city who regretted the return to Central Standard time, the kind which has been set by Ohio legislature as official.

Information received by the city commissioners indicate that when daylight saving time is voted upon in November it will receive the same treatment a light wine and beer amendment would get in a W. C. T. U. convention.

CUSSING AND DISCUSSING

Never before has anything received as much cussing and discussing as the advanced time, one of the commissioners said recently. It has been condemned even more bitterly than the Lima tax rate for next year.

Interurban lines will be "as was" with the exception of the Ft. Wayne division, formerly a part of the Ohio Electric system. The regular autumn schedule will be inaugurated.

A new schedule for the other divisions of the former Ohio Electric system will be announced this week to take effect October 8. The Western Ohio will not change its schedule as it has always operated on Central time.

Sunday night the clock in the court house tower will again be master of Lima watches. Ever since the daylight saving time became effective it has bravely lifted its face—or faces—above the chaos, knowing full well that sooner or later it would conquer.

HOTELS GRATEFUL

A rearrangement of hotel meal hours was planned for Sunday and the hotels which have been maintaining two clocks were having them removed. Hotel managers, without exception, welcomed the change.

Railroad passenger agents who have heard the query, "Now what time does the train leave by city time?" are also looking forward to peace and quiet.

Daylight saving for Lima will be settled finally and for all time at the November election, C. A Bingham, city manager, said. The city commission will decline to alter the decision of the voters.

DAVIS NO BETTER

Governor's Condition Doesn't Improve, Physician Reports

COLUMBUS. — (United Press.)— Dr. J. H. Upham, personal physician to Governor Davis, announced Saturday night the executive, ill at the executive mansion, has shown no improvement since his return from a vacation at French Lick, Ind.

"The governor's condition remains about the same," Dr. Upham said.

Davis went to French Lick on recommendation of Dr. Upham, who said the strain of his executive duties was menacing his health.

"While his condition is not alarming, it is important that he relax as much as possible until he is completely recovered," the physician said.

VALENTINO LOSES HIS FIGHT TO BE RELEASED

NEW YORK — The "Shiek" must work for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation or stay out of pictures altogether, Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel decided Saturday.

Rudolph Valentino lost in his fight to be released from his contract with the Famous Players when the judges granted an injunction to the Motion Picture Corporation preventing the "Shiek" from accepting employment from any other concern.

Valentino must post a bond of $25,000 to guarantee that he will not violate the injunction.

The screen star charged that Famous Players had violated his contract by not giving him as much publicity as had been promised. The company charges that their star wanted to jump to another company for more money than the $1,250 a month he is receiving.

COUPLES MATCHED

HAMMONTON, N. J. — Two hundred and eight matrimonial applicants have been matched by the "Cupid's Court" established here by Thomas B. Delker, newspaperman, it was announced, following a session of the court, Saturday. Fifty four persons, anxious to marry, were matched by the court Saturday according to Delker.

HOME BREAK IS DECLARED BY TIERNANS

Permanent Separation Is Decided Upon Following Acquittal of Poulin

FIGHT TO CONTINUE

Will Prove Merchant Father of Child Yet, Professor Says

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — (United Press).—Mr. and Mrs. John P. Tiernan Saturday night announced plans to break up their home following Judge Ducomb's decision that Harry Poulin, haberdasher, is not the father of Mrs. Tiernan's ten-months-old baby boy.

Mrs. Tiernan will go to her mother in Bronson, Mich., it was said, while Professor Tiernan will remain at Notre Dame, where he is an instructor.

"We will fight this out until we prove Poulin is the father," the professor declared. "Mrs. Tiernan will be back for the next trial."

The court room sat silent Saturday as Judge Ducomb read his decision and charged Mrs. Tiernan with "acts unbelievable in a mother."

The beginning of a permanent separation will take place Monday when Professor John P. Tiernan will take his wife and three children to Bronson.

That Mrs. Tiernan is being allowed by Professor Tiernan to take the three children with her is due, he said, to his sympathy for his wife. Later it is understood that the children will be placed in a school.

Mrs. Tiernan who fainted as she left the court room, is stunned over the decision as is her husband.

AFFAIRS NOT DISCLOSED

"I believe," he said, "that had we disclosed the affairs of our household as they really have been during the last year a different verdict would have been reached.

"We have been in a living hell," he said, "but this fact we withheld from the court and public."

Harry Poulin was brief in his statement:

"Just what I expected," he said. He would not make no other comment.

Mrs. Poulin in a highly nervous state, was unable to make a statement.

2 DEAD, 2 HURT IN WRECK

Electric Train Crashes Into Auto Near Cleveland

CLEVELAND. — (United Press.) — Two persons were killed and two others seriously injured in Bay Village, near here, late Saturday when a Lake Shore electric limited struck a small motor car in which they were riding.

The dead:

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leonard, Cleveland.

The injured:

Mrs. Bertha King, Cleveland.

John Walsh, Cleveland.

Leonard, driver of the car, apparently did not hear the electric train approaching and attempted to cross the tracks. The motor car was demolished and the occupants hurled to one side.

Leonard was killed instantly. Mrs. Leonard, Mrs. King and Walsh were removed to Lakewood hospital where Mrs. Leonard died a short time later.

Mrs. King was bruised severely and Walsh suffered a broken arm and probable internal injuries.

HEARST THROWS SUPPORT TO DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES

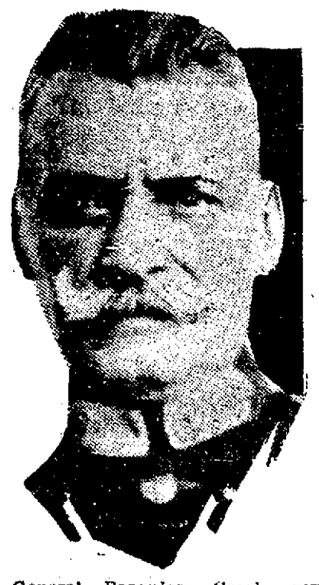

NEW YORK—William Randolph Hearst Saturday night announced his determination to support the New York state Democratic ticket and "with some discrimination, the Democratic platform."

The announcement, coming 24 hours after his own sensational withdrawal of his name as the Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator or governor, definitely settled the rumor of a possibility of a "Hearst bolt" and the formation of an independent party under the leadership of the publisher.

LAKE ERIE CLOSES STRIKE PROBLEM

Renounces Individual Settlement With Union Shopmen

225 EMPLOYES OUT OF WORK

Men Can Return Only as New Workmen, Maginn Says

Hope for settlement of difficulties between Lake Erie and Western railroad officials and their striking shopmen, went glimmering Saturday when J. J. Maginn, superintendent of motive power here, announced that the matter stands closed, so far as his road and shops are concerned.

As a result 225 union workers formerly employed at the L. E. & W. shops in this city, are permanently without work unless they return as new employes, Maginn declared.

With a staff of mechanics numbering 350, or considerably above the normal number of employes maintained by the railroad here, Maginn announced that he is able to keep all rolling stock operating thru Lima in good condition.

SHOPS NORMAL

The plant is working under normal conditions, he declared. Men now employed there have replaced those who walked out in protest against a decision of the railway labor board nearly four months ago.

Separate agreements reached recently between many roads, including the Baltimore and Ohio operating thru this city, failed to include the L. E. & W. lines, Maginn said. Some 700 men employed at the B. & O. shops here and on strike at the time, returned to work in accordance with the agreement.

They maintain headquarters and make daily reports at Musicians hall, Public-sq. where were the offices of the allied crafts during the duration of the now partially settled strike.

They will not return to work, they say, until an agreement is reached.

STEELE TO MARRY

Divorced Twice, Will Try Matrimony Once Again.

George Arthur Steele, creamery employee, 613 1-2 W. Wayne.st, who was divorced by Myrtle M. Steele, after a sensational trial one week ago, made preparations Saturday for his third matrimonial leap.

Early in the morning he appeared in probate court, in company with Miss Bessie Viola Loveridge, nurse, Jackson-tp and obtained a license to wed. Miss Loveridge, and her mother were present at the divorce hearing.

Steele gave his age as 34 and occupation as that of a mechanic. The record shows he has been twice married and divorced. The bride gave her age as 28, and stated she has never been married.

2 KILLED AS PLANE FALLS IN OHIO CITY

Airship Is Wrecked In Crowded Street of Mount Vernon

DROPS 2,500 FEET

Pilot and Passenger Dashed To Instant Death—Accident Probed

MOUNT VERNON, Ohio. — (United Press.) — Whether the cause of the airplane accident which claimed the lives of two men here Saturday could be ascertained, was extremely doubtful, authorities said here Saturday night.

The men, Amos J. Leighty, pilot, Greenville, Ohio, and Marion Dunlap, a passenger of this city, were killed when the plane fell 2,500 feet.

The plane was damaged so badly that examination late Saturday failed to reveal the cause of the accident. Leichty had been carrying passengers on short trips near here for a short time.

A further examination of the wrecked plane will be made Sunday.

FALLS IN CROWD

The airplane crashed to earth on the main street of this city Saturday afternoon.

Both of the victims were from Orrville, Ohio.

The street was crowded with Saturday shoppers at the time of the accident and spectators said the plane appeared to fall a distance of between 1,500 and 2,000 feet. Judging from its actions, it is believed Leichty, who was the pilot, lost control of the plane.

It is said the plane was the property of Leichty and that Dunlap was a passenger. Leichty had been using the machine for commercial purposes.

3,526 ARRESTED UNDER DRY ACT

Work of Ohio's Prohibition Forces for Year Reported.

COLUMBUS.—(United Press).—A warning against "deadly hootch masquerading as bonafide liquor" was sounded here Saturday night by Commissioner Don V. Parker, in a survey of state prohibition activities to Governor Davis.

Canadian and warehouse liquor is no longer available, Parker's report declares, and illicit dealers are now passing off moonshine corn, rye or sugar whiskey made under the most unsanitary conditions.

Parker reports improved enforcement of dry laws by local authorities the fixing of higher fines by courts for violations; restriction of release of liquor from warehouses by federal authorities and better cooperation among enforcement officials representing various governmental agencies.

This has resulted, he says, in a decrease of liquor law violations by approximately two-thirds as compared with a year ago.

The problems is now down to the local still, he points out.

In a few localities, however, he declares, local authorities are still influenced "by wet sentiment and politics, rather than their lawful duty," in their enforcement policies.

YEAR'S ACTIVITIES

The state prohibition staff during the year ended September 1, made 6,747 investigations, resulting in 3,526 arrests and fines of $711,680, and total of fines collected since state enforcement began a year and a half ago, aggregates close to $1,000,000. The department in all has conducted 8,943 inspection and made 4,694 arrests, and over $1,000,000 in liquor taxes has been assessed against property where there has been violations.

Parker recommends the task of certifying property for taxation in connection with liquor law violations to be transferred to county authorities, pointing out the state has only two men available for this work frequently, by the time they are able to get to certification, the property has changed hands or disappeared.

"I hope," said Parker, in his report to Davis, "that the next governor will keep the department to the same high standard that you have demanded and will confer on his commissioner the same support I have received from you."

COAL THEFT CHARGED

Virgil and F. V. Gray, 817 Oak-st, Vernon Weese, Jackson, Mich., and Raymond Weese, 787 Greenlawn-av, were placed under arrest late Saturday night charged with stealing coal from the Chicago and Erie railroad. They were released on their own recognizance to appear in police court Monday.

Cabinet Is Convened In London at Midnight as Situation In Near East Becomes More Alarming—Hostilities May be Declared Today

"England on Verge of Conflict," Is Frank Admission of Press—Settlement With Turks by Parley Viewed as Next to Impossibility

LONDON—(Sunday, 1 a. m.—United Press)—The British cabinet, after having been called for a midnight war council by Lloyd George, adjourned early Sunday morning.

The ministers will re-convene at 10 a. m.

It is understood that they considered important advices just received from General Harington at Constantinople, but decided to defer the issue of peace or war with Turkey in hope that more favorable news may be forthcoming within a few hours.

Crowds stood outside historic Number 10 Downing-st as the ministers' automobiles rolled up. Heads of the war, navy and air departments participated in the council.

The foreign office thruout the night received hourly communications from Sir Charles Harington, British commander-in-chief in Constantinople, which officials described as "unimportant, altho requiring immediate attention."

An air of tension hung over the foreign office.

The cabinet had met earlier in the evening but adjourned when no news was forthcoming from Constantinople regarding the situation brought about by Mustapha Kemal's refusal to evacuate the neutral zone of the Dardanelles.

High government officials were most pessimistic regarding the situation.

The press frankly stated in large headlines that England was "on the verge of war."

FRENCH GOVERNMENT WILL NOT SEND HER SOLDIERS INTO THE WAR ZONE

PARIS—(United Press)—With hostilities viewed as imminent in the Near East between the British and Turks the French government Saturday night made it known that it would not send soldiers to the zone.

The government, in case a Turkish or English soldier is shot, will not consider the incident as a justification for either power to go to war.

This case would be considered the same as that of Corporal Peugeot, who was killed in French territory two days before the World War started in 1914.

Premier Poincare wired Franklin Bouillon, French envoy now in conference with Mustapha Kemal, to get Kemal's reply to the allied request that the neutrality of the Dardanelles zone be respected.

REINFORCEMENTS RUSHED TO FRONT

CONSTANTINOPLE. — (United Press).—The British and Turks hurled ultimatums back and forth Saturday night as they prepared for war.

With the door of peace apparently closed because of the defiance of the British demand on Mustapha Kemal that the neutral zone of the Dardanelles be evacuated, both British and Turks poured in reinforcements to strengthen their positions.

Settlement of the Near Eastern question by conference was viewed as next to an impossibility because of the wide variance of the British and Turkish positions.

The British, it was believed, will most certainly refuse to evacuate the zone simultaneously with the Kemalists, as the Turkish leader demanded.

It was believed Sir Charles Harington, the British commander-in-chief must act against the Kemalist now or completely back down, an impossible position for Great Britain.

ULTIMATUM IGNORED

Kemal, it was pointed out, has twice ignored or defied ultimatums that he evacuate the neutral zone.

The entire situation is in the hands of General Harington, who has been informed by the British cabinet that he has its solid backing in any action he sees fit to take.

Harington invited Kemal several times to participate in a peace conference before he received the defiant reply that Kemal would not attend the conference, until the British had evacuated from the Asia Minor side of the straits.

According to infomation reaching here, the Turks take the stand that it is a military necessity for them to occupy the neutral zone in order to pass over the narrow straits into Thrace in order to prevent the Greek occupation of that territory.

MASSACRES BY GREEKS FEARED

The Turks, according to their official representatives here, believe the Greeks in Thrace will massacre the Moslem population once the reorganized Greek army reaches there.

Charges that the Greeks plan wholesale massacres in Thrace flew thick and fast in the Constantinople Turkish quarters.

Grave fears were expressed for the safety of the 200,000 Christian refugees who were to evacuate from Asia Minor Saturday, under orders of the Turks.

This attitude was due to the reported declaration of Kemal that he would not be responsible for the safety of Christian populations if they did not leave Saturday.

5 DIE IN BATTLE

Many Wounded in Latest Uprising of Mexicans

JUAREZ, Mexico. — (United Press.) — Rumblings of new revolutionists' activities in Mexico flared here Saturday, when Juarez was wrested from control of the federal garrison and held for four hours by mutineers.

Five persons were killed and many wounded in the fighting which raged in the streets after the garrison fell.

The casualties in the battle fought thruout the day at the outskirts of the city had not been determined Saturday night.

Three rebels were executed by a firing squad late Saturday and a number held prisoner. It is believed they will face the same fate by morning.

U. S. RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA URGED BY BORAH

CHICAGO. — England and France by their unconscionable imperialism and exploitation since the World War, have spread a new war cloud over Europe, Senator Borh said in an address here Saturday.

France broke her promises of independence to Syria and Britain likewise betrayed Mesopotamia and Egypt, declared Borah, urging that the United States proclaim its disapproval of the "imperialistic policies of Europe.

Borah also demanded that this government make recognition of Soviet Russia.

"There can be no such a thing as peace in Europe until Russia is brought into the family," he said.

CREASY WILL MAKE FINAL FIGHT FOR LIFE MONDAY

MINEOLA, N. Y.—William M. Creasy, charged with the murder of Miss Edith Lavoy, Freeport school teacher, will have his final opportunity to refute charges against him before the jury, when he appears for cross-examination early Monday.

Prosecuting Attorneys Weeks will probably finish his questioning within a couple of hours but his rebuttal will be lengthy as both the state and defense are known to be holding several witnesses in reserve.

AQUITANIA BRAVES STORM

NEW YORK—The giant liner Aquitania, flagship of the Cunard fleet steamed triumphantly into port here Saturday after battling an Atlantic storm which Captain Sir James T. W. Charles described as the worst in his 42 years' career. The liner, however, was battered somewhat by the 75 foot waves that tossed her about like a shingle and smashed into staterooms and thru decks as the wind howled a 75-mile

OHIO FEDERATION NEWS

By Mrs. George Elliott McCormick

All club women realize that by being federated and by working together when there is work for the clubs and the federations to perform—and always there is—the combined accomplishment is bound to be more effective. Co-operation in club work is held to be vital, and so the working departments of the General Federation of Women's Clubs have been changed to meet the changed requirements. Always in the van in progressive club work, the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs has already effected, thru its nationally-known president, Mrs. Cornelius S. Selover, Cleveland, a reorganization of its various departments to conform with the plan of the General Federation. Many city federations and individual clubs have followed suit by adopting in turn the plan of the state federation.

Adoption of the Ohio Federation's plan by federations and clubs means co-operation with the chairmen of the state departments and divisions. If the federations and the clubs have the same departments as the state federation, which has the department scheme of the General Federation, there is perfect team work. In future, thru this direct working force there will be no unseemly delay under this plan.

Club women should discuss this organization-co-operation plan at their next meeting. The state organization plan may be outlined as follows:

Department applied education: Divisions, education, home economics, thrift, library extension, conservation.

Department fine arts: Divisions, art, literature, music.

Department public welfare: Divisions, public health, child welfare, social-industrial conditions.

Committees: Legislation, loan scholarship, kindergarten training, mother-craft, illiteracy, junior membership friendly aid to ex-service men, and press and publicity.

The new chairman of business relations for the Ohio Federation is Miss Wilma Ball, No. 2605 East Overlook-rd, Cleveland. She heads a new department.

Mrs W. F. Gregg, Bulkeley building, Euclid-av, Cleveland, is to be business manager of the directory, which is published annually by the Ohio Federation.

The Middle-West conference is to be conducted at Ada, Oct. 24 and 25, Mrs. G. G. Snook, Troy, vice president of the district, announces. Mrs. Carolyn Ames is president of the Ada Federation of Women's Clubs and she is planning a splendid program.

Marion's popular Delphian club sponsored a sale of work done by the state's wards at the Girls' Industrial school near Delaware at the Marion county fair. The booth was in charge of Miss Beryl Leist, secretary of Mrs. Mae E. Staunard, superintendent of the Girls' Industrial school, with members of the Delphian club assisting her. The sale was a pronounced success, the money realized going into a recreation fund for the state's wards of the Industrial school. Mrs. Stannard herself attended one day of the sale and was delighted with the reception the new plan of selling the school's handiwork received.

Thru the sale of Christmas seals, the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs expects to pay the salary of its new health nurse, Miss Alvina Turkopp, of Columbus, who is doing a splendid work.

Dayton's Altrusa club has hit upon a new plan of grouping committees to devise monthly entertainments. Under the leadership of Miss Gertrude Kendig, whose appointment is for the year, a committee has been named for each club month.

FATHER CHARGED WITH MURDERING HIS BABY

LANCASTER — After lying 12 days in an unconscious state, John Raymond Tipton, five months old son of Walter Tipton, Bremen, died in a local hospital here Saturday.

A table knife had been sunk four and three-fourths inches in the child's brain, September 17. Tipton is in jail here awaiting action of the grand jury, on a charge of murder.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart:

I HAVE had a dreadful shock and I don't know if I will ever recover from it. The other night when my fiance was over he informed me that he didn't love me any more. We have been engaged for almost a year and a half and you can understand how terrible I feel. He said that he was in love with some one else and that he knew we wouldn't be happy if we married when he didn't care for me. I suppose I shall have to give him up. What would be your advice to me? Do you think that I should break the engagement?

FORLORN.

THERE is only one thing for you to do and I am certain that you know what that is. From your letter I am under the impression that you did not give your fiance his freedom the moment he asked for it. Regardless of how painful and dreadful it may be, offer him a release from the engagement immediately.

It is natural for you to be hurt and very unhappy over this great disappointment but certainly your pride would not permit you to continue your engagement with this man knowing that he cares for another.

* * *

Dear Miss Smart:

(1) Will you please publish directions for canning dill and saccharine pickles? (2) Is soda good for cleansing the teeth?

MOLLY.

(1) The ingredients for saccharine pickles are as follows: One gallon of vinegar, one cup of dry mustard, one cup of sugar, one cup of salt and one teaspoon of saccharine. Wash pickles and dry thoroly. Mix dry ingredients and moisten with a little vinegar, thus making a paste. Next add the remainder of the vinegar. Place pickles in a crock or glass jars and cover with the liquid mixture. The pickles are ready for use in two weeks.

In making dill pickles, first wash the pickles and place in glass jars or a crock. To each quart of pickles take two tablespoonsful of salt and one tablespoonful of black pepper, sprinkling this over the pickles. Place several sprays of dill in the middle and sides of the jar. Also place two very small red peppers in each jar. Boil one cup of vinegar and four cups of water and pour over and pickles after which the jars are sealed.

(2) I have never heard of cleansing the teeth with soda. Perhaps you are thinking of salt, which is splendid for the teeth.

Dear Miss Smart:

(1) The boy I go with has an awful temper and is very jealous. Do you think I should keep going with him or not? (2) What is good for falling hair and dandruff? (3) Is every two weeks often enough to wash the hair? (4) What is good for pimples on the face?

MAGGIE.

(1) Continue your friendship with him but do not give up all your boy friends for him. (2) Plain kerosene oil, massaged well into the scalp once a week, allowed to remain in over night and washed out the next day with white castile soap and warm water is a simple and effective remedy for dandruff and encourages the growth of the hair. (3) Yes. (4) To clear the skin from pimples try the following: Five ounces of orange flower water, five ounces of rosewater, one teaspoonful of tincture camphor and one teaspoonful of powdered sulphur. Mix the camphor and sulphur and then add the others.

MACCABEES WILL HOLD INITIATION, HUGE RALLY FOR DISTRICT, IN LIMA

More than 500 members of Maccabees camp in northwestern Ohio will gather in Lima Thursday October 5, for the initiation of a class of 100 new members.

The event will be the thirteenth anniversary campaign and final rally for tents in the Lima district. Knights from Delphos, Van Wert, Buckland, Wapakoneta, Cridersville, Kenton, Alta and St. Mary's will be here, M. M. Yeatts, district manager announced Saturday.

The Lima and Van Wert tents are competing to have the largest class initiated. Degree work will be put on by the Kenton team. Great Commander Young will be here, it is announced.

New Queen Reigns on Broadway, Capturing Hearts

OPPOSITION TO CHORUSES

Meets Beauties on Own Ground and Wins

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

A new face has captured the fickle hearted and the sophisticated taste of the pleasure seekers of the gay white way.

She is Captain Rheba Crawford. The "Vamp of the Salvation Army," they call her around Times Square.

Within a stone's throw of 50 theaters and as many dance halls and cabarets where the world's highest priced entertainers hold forth and Wealth invites Youth, Captain Crawford takes her nightly stand and directs traffic down the straight and narrow road.

She's the only Salvation Army lass who has ever been able to draw a bigger crowd, single-handed, outside a theater, than a chorus of beauties could inside. She talks to Broadway in its own language.

"I conquered Broadway because I have the soul of Broadway myself," she said, "and it's mind and heart as well. I love Broadway and understand it. It is the greatest street in the world and has the biggest h art."

ONE BEST SHOWMAN

Captain Crawford nowts the Broadway beauties on their own ground. She has Irish-blue eyes, a creamy skin, red-gold hair, ankles that Ziegfeld himself couldn't criticize and lines of such slender loveliness you are ready to count your calories the rest of your life.

"To stay on Broadway, you must be a good showman," she continued, knowingly. "You must have tact, sympathy and the ability to sense the feelings of your audience. You must know the p chology of the crowd. You must give them your best, and let them know you are giving it.

"I have no moving picture outfit, but I can make the men and women in my audience see pictures no camera could show when I remind them of their homes and mothers and their childhood associations.

"When a man laughs, or looks skeptical, I single him out for special attention, just as a vaudeville performer sometimes does. 'Do you remember what you were when you left your small town to capture the big city?' I ask him. 'What do you really think of what you've become?'

"I keep constantly in motion. Eva Tanguay, everyone else thinks.

GIVES JAZZY HYMNS

"Broadway loves its jazz, so I jazz up the hymns a little.

"I keep constantly in motion. Eva Tanguay doesn't use more pep in a performance than I do."

The captain was asked if she received notes from men in her audiences. She laughed, and admitted she did.

"I get a sheaf of letters every day," she said. "Most of them are from men. I get more invitations to dinner in a week than I could accept in a year.

"But I accept nothing. I make it a point not to know my audience personally. But I never offend those who extend invitations. I simply tell them all I'm busy. I am."

Captain Crawford is unmarried. She is the daughter of a colonel in the Salvation Army. In her five years of active service for the organization, she has spoken in practically every city of any size in the south and west.

Hardly a week goes by that she doesn't have an offer to go into moving pictures. Many Broadway producers have tried to induce her to draw crowds from behind the footlights rather than outside in the street. But no offer has ever tempted her to leave the work she loves.

Meanwhile, Broadwayites don't care whether she stays out in front or goes inside—just so she stays on the street.

"Long Live the Queen," they cry.

WAR IS BLAMED ON CONSTANTINE

(BY MILTON BRONNER)

LONDON. — "The present Near East tragedy is the sole result of Constantine's grandiose dreams and abject cowardice."

Thus did Major George Melas, Greek aristocrat and author, who was the king's private secretary until 1915, put the blame for the present trouble on the foolish ambitions of a weak monarch.

Major Melas knows Constantine well. They were intimate friends since childhood. But they severed their political ties when Melas joined the Venizelos legions that fought for the allies.

In an interview Major Melas said:

"Encouraged by the allies, Constantine dreamed of a vast Greek Empire.

"His cowardice was displayed when he refused to recognize the impossibility of conquering Asia Minor and refused to withdraw the army and tell the Greeks the whole truth.

"The exiling once told me that he realized that some day he would be dethroned by the people. But before that occurred he said that he would put the country to fire and blood.

"He kept his word.

"Greece is ruined for more than a generation. The splendid Hellenism of Asia Minor is destroyed forever.

"Constantine, not only arrogant and obstinate, was obsessed with a desire to be absolute ruler having his own way regardless of the consequences.

"I predicted that he would soon be dethroned and that his pro-German son Prince George would succeed.

NO CHANGE FOR BROTHERS

"There was no change of any of Constantine's brothers getting the throne, least of all, Prince Christopher, known thruout all Greece was stupid.

"American dollars and his wife, the former Mrs. Leeds, haven't gilded him in the eyes of the Greeks.

"If the country becomes a republic, Venizelos won't be president. He told me he preferred being premier.

"What Venizelos by wisdom upbuilt, Constantine by militaristic madness destroyed.

"Venizelos may now be called upon to reconstruct the small country, poor in money resources and with thousands of its citizens killed and wounded.

"The allies won't escape Scot free. Any peace patched up with Kemal will merely be temporary.

"I wish there were some way in which America, without entangling alliances, could immediately intervene and save the lives of the Christian minorities in Asia Minor.

"While the great European powers are jealously watching each other and are talking glibly about exacting from Kemal guarantees of protection for the racial and religious minorities, there will soon be no minorities to protect.

"They will all be massacred.

"Already thousands of Greek soldiers captured during legitimate combat are being sent in groups of 10 and 20 to the Anatolian interior where they will be killed—ostensibly by brigands.

"I realize that some of the Greek retreating troops possibly committed excesses. But this merely served as a welcome pretext for the Turks doing what they always have done in carrying out their policy of exterminating the Greeks and the Armenians.

"When he feels the time is ripe, Kemal will seek to oust Britain from Mesopotamia and France from Syria. When the Turks once more control Constantinople and the Straits, it means that the Germans and the Bolsheviki also will be there. Kemal, initially encouraged and financed by Berlin and Moscow, has a treaty with the Russians and close relations with the Germans.

"The allies will realize the truth when it is too late."

RETREATING GREEKS MAKE DESPERATE STAND

Greek rear guard, closely pursued by the forces of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, turns and attacks its pursuers in an effort to hold them while the main body of the Greek army retreats to safety. In foreground Greek soldiers are seen rushing on the enemy. In the rear smoke clouds arise from bursting shells and bombs.

ATLANTA BUSINESS DISTRICT THREATENED BY FLAMES

ATLANTA, Ga.—Fire Saturday night again threatened the heart of Atlanta's business district.

Starting in Eiseman's clothing store, next to Leonard, Fitzpatrick and Murphy store, which was destroyed late last Sunday night, the flames gutted every part of the four story building and a general alarm was turned in an effort to stop the blaze.

TWO WOMEN AND MAN ARE TAKEN BY POLICE

Two women alleged to have come to Lima with Theodore Yotte, 29, Detroit, who was ordered out of Lima during the past week by Judge Jackson in criminal court, were placed under arrest late Saturday night on statutory charges.

The women gave their names as Margaret Levine, 20, Cleveland, and Mary Shottey, 30, Detroit.

A man who gave his name as M. S. Levine, Cleveland, and who said he was the husband of the Levine woman was also placed under arrest on a charge of suspicion.

All three were taken by police at a S. Elizabeth-st. residence where the women had been accepted as roomers. Two other men taken by police were released.

Plainclothesmen have been shadowing the two women, they say, following reports that they had been ejected from Lima hotels. Information given police by hotel managers is said to have helped in their apprehension.

NEW YORKER IS HIGHLY HONORED

CAPT. PARIS

NEW YORK. — The French government recently made W. Francklyn Paris a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. King Albert of Belgium made him a knight of the Order of the Crown.

Their recipient was notified of these two decorations on the same day. Such a thing doesn't happen often.

He won French and Belgian gratitude by helping the families of artists of these two countries during the war. Also he was identified prominently with the movement for the restoration of the Library of Louvain, and he was chairman of the committee which presented a bust of Cardinal Mercier to New York University.

In the war he was captain of United States troops.

RAILROAD BUILDS SUBWAY TO PROTECT SCHOOL GIRL

TOLEDO—As a result of the refusal of 14-year-old Mary Hitchcock's parents to sign a statement waiving responsibility for accident to the girl in crossing railroad tracks to attend school, Service Director Jackson and officials of the New York Central Railroad have decided to construct a temporary subway at the crossing. School authorities declined to permit Mary to attend school until her parents signed the waiver.

ASKS BRAIN OPERATION AS CURE FOR LAWLESSNESS

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kas.—Roy Gardner, known as America's most elusive bandit, has applied to the department of justice for permission to have an operation performed on his brain to relieve pressure which he claims is responsible for his reign of lawlessness.

Gardner is serving a long sentence at the federal penitentiary here following his capture at Phoenix, Ariz., a year ago, after an attempted mail robbery.

Money for the operation has been deposited in a local bank. The funds came from an unidentified source in California.

LAKE TRAFFIC TIED UP BY SAILORS' STRIKE

CHICAGO—Strikes of Great Lakes sailors has been set for midnight Saturday night.

General tie-up of all lake traffic in coal, grain and iron ore, is expected to follow the walkout of seamen who demanded an eight-hour day at present wages.

Several vessels in dock at the steel mills in the Gary district have already been abandoned by the sailors.

Other boats, other vessels, union officials said, will be unmanned when they reach port.

DECLARES HE IS SALESMAN

Pinkerton Detective In City To Make Investigation

Investigation as a result of the belief that Thomas B. Reeder, being held by police as a member of the party which robbed the Feldman store here a month ago, is taking on a nation wide scope.

Letters were mailed from police headquarters Saturday seeking identification of Reeder in a number of cities where he is supposed to be known.

One of the letters was mailed to the Commissioner of Police, New York, requesting him to secure information on Reeder and two fur firms which he claims to represent. Reeder, police say, is posing as a fur salesman.

Another letter was addressed to Toledo insurance authorities requesting information on criminal activities in which Reeder is believed to have been implicated.

RECORDS SHOW TRAVELS

Investigation of his personal effects taken by Cleveland police when they placed him under arrest, and turned him over to Lima authorities revealed the fact that Reeder has been in practically every part of the east and mid-west.

Peddlers licenses issued by Cleveland, Minnesota cities, and New York authorities were found among them. They designated him as a fur salesman.

Grilling of Reeder to determine whether or not he can be linked up with the Feldman robbery during which $10,000 in cash and merchandise was stolen from the store, will be delayed until Monday, police say. This will be done in order to give police more time to secure facts relative to his previous travels, they say.

Marion authorities remain interested in Reeder's detention here, believing he may have been implicated in a robbery committed there a few weeks ago if a criminal record is shown. A Pinkerton detective seeking to establish allegations that Reeder is responsible for a number of robberies over the country is also here to listen to the investigation.

Meanwhile, Reeder is being held on a charge of burglary.

MONEY RETURNED

CINCINNATI — Eight hundred dollars has been added to the conscience fund of the South Covington and Cincinnati Street Railway Company. The money was received from San Francisco from an attorney who said his client had received judgment against the company 10 years ago, and that it was not justified.

WEEKLY PASS ON "L" IS TRIED OUT

BUDD

CHICAGO — A voluntary experiment in furnishing the people of Chicago with unlimited elevated transportation on a weekly pass is being tried out by the Chicago elevated railroads.

The plan was announced after the roads had filed a voluntary petition with the Illinois Commerce Commission for a downward revision of rates.

It provides for the sale of a weekly unlimited ride transferable pass for $1.25 good on all points south of Howard-st. Another which sells for $2 is good for any points between Chicago and Evanston.

Britton I. Budd, president of the elevated, says, "I have long wished to see the quantity user given the benefit of a lower rate."

CITY GETS PROFIT

ATHENS, Ohio — City council here is realizing a profit of $2 a thousand on paving brick that has been in use for 20 years. When Main-st recently was repaved, the old brick, torn up, was sold for $10 a thousand, $2 over what it originally cost the city in 1893. The salvaged brick is being used in sewer construction and in building foundations.

WILL BE CITY MANAGER

CLEVELAND — Charles A. Carran, finance director East Cleveland, will become city manager there October 16, succeeding C. M. Osborn, whose resignation becomes effective on that date.

CINEMA PROGRAMS FOR WEEK IN LIMA THEATRES OFFER VARIETY

NOTED STARS IN PRODUCTIONS

"BONDED WOMAN" AT QUILNA

Sigma to Present "Fools First" Majestic Pictures

(BY ESTHER WAGNER)

CINEMA programs for the forthcoming week promises a wealth of variety, and several productions of note appear on the weekly roster of silver sheet attractions.

Prominent among the features is David W. Griffith's masterful production of "Orphans of The Storm," from the famous play "The Two Orphans." Scenes of unusual magnitude, depicting each episode of this delightful drama, are numerous, with the Misses Lillian and Dorothy Gish as the orphans. The production opens a week's engagement today at the Lyric theatre.

* * *

"The Bonded Woman," a new Paramount release starring Miss Betty Compson, arrived today for presentation at the Quilna theatre, where it will remain for three days. Miss Compson has a delightful role in this new dramatization, and her support is ample.

For the last half of the week, the Quilna will offer James Oliver Curwood's splendid out-doors tale, "The Valley of Silent Men." The cast includes Miss Alma Reubens, who has the leading feminine role.

* * *

The Sigma, for the coming week, announces a program par excellence. For today and four days, Marshall Neilan intensely interesting drama, "Fools First" is the special feature. The cast of this important production includes Claire Windsor, Richard Dix and Claude Dillingwater.

"Passion," in which Pola Negri made her debut before the American public, is the attraction today and for three days at the Majestic theatre. This mighty production is highly entertaining and mammoth in scope, and one of the most important releases the Majestic has presented for some time.

* * *

The Lyric Pictures

THE most remarkable motion picture success of the year is D. W. Griffith's dramatic epic, "Orphans of the Storm", an elaboration of the famous old play, "The Two Orphans."

For nearly half a century "The Two Orphans" has been equally popular in Europe and America, following its long initial runs in Paris and at the old Union Square Theatre in New York. In a sense it is the most popular of all stage love stories. Here in America it was identified for many years with the name of Kate Claxton who played Louise Girard, the blind heroine.

Mr. Griffith took this celebrated play and built around it a motion picture with grandiose historical background, and at an expense greater than the cost of all the current stage plays in New York combined.

Patrons of the Lyric Theatre, at which this United Artists Corporation release will be shown all next week, will find all of the great "Two Orphans" story that used to interest their fathers and mothers, but also a very great deal more. The story is now set amid the turbulent events of the revolution in France that marked the downfall of the Bourbon monarchy.

Fortunately, Mr. Griffith had two wonderful French types at hand for the embodiment of Henriette and Louise Giraid, the two heroines. These are the Misses Lillian and Dorothy Gish.

One of the best casts of recent years enacts the famous story, including Joseph Schildkraut, the celebrated Roumanian actor, sometimes called the handsomest leading man of Europe, who has the romantic role of Chevalier de Vaudrey.

For those unfamiliar with the stage story: Henriette and Louise are little Norman wayfarers in Paris. The former is abducted by a rich noble, while the latter falls into a den of thievish beggars who send her on the street as a charity singer. The tremendous interest springs from the effort of the sundered orphans to be reunited and the love of the Chevalier for Henriette from whom he is separated by an almost impassable gulf of birth and class distinctions.

"Orphans of the Storm" will remain at the Lyric for one week, starting today.

* * *

The Sigma Pictures

A STRIKING example of Marshall Neilan's remarkable versatility in presenting on the screen anything from light comedy to deep melodrama is again demonstrated in First National's "Fools First," the attraction scheduled for presentation today at the Sigma theatre.

"Fools First" contains one of the most original stories you will have witnessed for a long time, and has been produced in such a masterly manner that it intrigues the observer and holds his attention without interruption.

The characters in the tale are chiefly denizens of the underworld, but under Mr. Neilan's capable direction they become at once human and interesting people. The "fools" of the story are a gang of crooks who endeavor to enrich themselves unlawfully at the expense of the wealthy. Many surprising and tense situations are developed as the story unfolds, altho the logic and naturalness of the plot is never sacrificed for the sake of a punch or a thrill.

A cast of superlative merit was selected to play the leading parts. Claire Windsor is the leading lady, with Richard Dix in the opposite role, and Claude Dillingwater as the banker. Minor roles are exceptionally well taken, and the entire cast is one of unusual scope.

"Fools First" constitutes one of the most unique and satisfying film productions of the season, and by its very unusualness, is sure to please the most exacting. It opens a limited engagement today at the Sigma theatre.

The Majestic Pictures

TODAY the Majestic Theatre will have an attraction extraordinary, an offering such as few motion picture theatres ever offer. It is "Passion," the First National super drama with the brilliant Continental star, Pola Negri, in the stellar role. "Passion" unfolds a thrilling story of the rise of a humble little French milliner to a position where she is able to dominate a king. She is a character replete, with a strange mixture of virtues and faults, but, above all, she possesses irresistible wiles and smiles, such as easily ensnared men of the highest rank. But her great triumphs prove to be her great undoing in the end and the sequence of events thru which she passes in her rise and fall combine to make one of the most appealing and most sensationally engrossing narratives the screen has yet visualized. It is a foregone conclusion that an unusual treat is in store for every patron of this theatre in witnessing this great photoplay spectacle.

The Quilna Pictures

THOSE of you who have your Quilna date books at hand and nearly every film fan in town (because this handy booklet) will please mark off "The Siren Call," which you will find scheduled for today and substitute "The Bonded Woman" which you will find originally dated for a week later. The advancement of the latter is due to a decision of the Ohio Board of Censors deferring the release date of "The Siren Call". Reason therefor unknown, except possibly to the members of this august tribunal.

However, the patrons of the Quilna will not complain, for Betty Compson has just as many admirers as Dorothy Dalton and "The Bonded Woman" is rated as one of the best of the new Paramount pictures. It is an adaptation of John Fleming Wilson's story, "The Salving of John Somers." The scenes are laid in the South Sea Isles, affording great opportunity for picturesque settings.

ONE OF THE BIG SCENES IN D. W. GRIFFITH'S "ORPHANS OF THE STORM"

Appearing today and all week at the Lyric theatre.

Other attractive subjects on the Quilna's program for today include the Quilna News, a jolly Aesop Fable and a new Pathe comedy, "For Rent Haunted," which features Johnny Jones and his crowd of expert juvenile players. This bill will run for three days only.

For four days starting Thursday the Quilna will offer a photoplay that has been acclaimed one of the best of the new season. It is a Cosmopolitan picturization of James Oliver Curwood's great story of the out doors, "The Valley of Silent Men." It was actually filmed amid the majestic Canadian Rockies, so that Curwood's entrancing tale has a background entirely appropriate.

The cast is an exceptional one. Alma Rubens has the leading role of Marette Radison, a French-Canadian girl, and in Lew Cody, Joseph King, George Nash, Mario Majeroni and J. W. Johnston, Frank Borzage, the director, has assembled a quintet of distinguished players for her support. Mr. Cody has a role exactly opposite those of the "male vamp" type with which he was formerly identified and he scores a brilliant success.

Other items of this bill include the Quilna News, the Pathe Review and Topics of the Day.

¶ Says the New York Mail: "The most beautiful love scene ever filmed—between Henriette and the most dashing bachelor of his day in Paris, the handsome Chevalier De Vaudrey."

¶ Love's supreme sacrifice as renouncing his love on the guillotine platform he places the woman of his heart, whom he has rescued from the axe in the arms of the man she has chosen.

¶ The "feast of reason" when all Paris went mad. The "Dance of the Carmagnole" when women led in wild revelry. The "Commune," the "Reign of Terror," the guillotine and the tragic sentence of death.

¶ Faye Marbe, star of "The Velvet Lady" of Ziegfield Folly fame in the very wildest dance ever staged when Paris knew no moral restrictions.

THE BEAT of a THOUSANDS HOOFS
¶ A thunderbolt of men, horses and dust as the fearless Danton, fiery leader of an outraged people rides to save the honor of France. A tornado of tossing shapes, naked swords aloft, on through a scattering, hostile populace to the glistening axe of the guillotine.

THE FAMOUS FEAST SCENE

MURDER CHARGED, NOW HAPPY

Mendel Beilis, Once World Figure, Writes Life

ABSOLVED OF CRIME

Religious Differences Brought Near Tragedy to Him

(By JOHN O'DONNELL)

NEW YORK — (Special) Nine years ago Mendell Beilis was an international figure. The attention of the world was centered on the Jew brickmaker of Kiev, charged with murder committed for the purpose of securing Christian blood for Jewish ritual.

Today Beilis is running a small printing shop on the East Side here, living obscurely with his wife and four children. Publicity does not attract him.

"Ah, they have offered me $50,000 to go on a lecture tour—to make a monkey of myself," said Beilis. "I would not take it. Twenty weeks returning for $50,000. No, I do not like it. I shall work in my printing shop by days and here in the evening I am writing the story of my life. It is enough."

Beilis is 48, of medium height and thick set. Iron-gray hair, heavy spectacles and closely trimmed beard give him the appearance of a professor in a German university.

ENGLISH DIFFICULT

He spoke in Yiddish. The English language has been too difficult for him to master during his 15 months in America.

His children were gathered around him in the dining room of the apartment house on Faile street last night when he rehearsed the story of his days when he stood trial for the murder of 13 year-old Andruchi Yashinsky.

Against Beilis, the only Jew in the community of 10,000 Christians the agents of the czar argued the mediaeval superstition—that Christian blood was used in Jewish rituals.

"It was the great protest of America and England that saved me," Beilis exclaimed. "I was freed and later the Bolsheviki—did you know this?—the Bolsheviki took that girl Vera Cheberiak who testified against me when she was an actual accomplice in the murder—took her out and shot her with the other two murderers.

"After my acquittal I went to Palestine. My health was bad because of my long months in prison. Then the Revolution came. I had 13,000 rubles saved under the old government which I never got. I lived there in Jaffa until my money gave out and then came to America. 'America' It was like God saying, 'let there be light.' All had been darkness and chaos for me. In America light and order."

CATTLE ORDERED

Seven Cars Feeder Cattle Being Shipped Here

Seven cars of feeder cattle, comprising 202 head, have been ordered from western ranches thru the Ohio Farm Bureau federation by the Allen-co Livestock Co., C. F. Mertz, manager, said Saturday.

First shipments should be received within a few days, Mertz believes. This will go to O. S. Osman, Perry-tp, J. D. Vandemarn, Marion-tp and Sherman Ross, American-tp.

Additional orders will be received until November 15 and it is expected that at least 15 cars in all will be ordered. One farmer ordered a car load Friday and several more have tentatively placed orders.

More farmers than ever before will feed western cattle for the market this year, it is indicated, many placing orders who never purchased feeders before.

All cattle is purchased cooperatively and is bought direct from the ranchers. This cuts out the handling in the Chicago yards and will bring the cattle to the farms at a lower cost and in better condition.

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. adv.

POSTPONEMENT OF LIME APPLICATION FOR SOIL UNNECESSARY SAYS RIDGE

Should the farmers of Allen-co fail to receive lime for their wheat fields until the crop is in the ground they need not postpone its application, H. J. Ridge, farm agent, said Saturday.

Experiments by the state show that lime may be spread upon the wheat fields after the seed is sown just as well as before and that it will be of great value to the growing crop.

Every effort is being made to get lime here as soon as possible, C. F. Mertz, manager of the Allen-co Livestock Co., says. One car was unloaded at West Cairo last week and another will be ready this week.

Farmers around West Cairo are using more lime on their soil than any other section of the county, it is believed. This is partly because of the nature of the soil and partly because they are more interested than others in its use.

NEW FAUROT SOON TO BE OPENED

Remodeled Playhouse Will Be Ready in Two Weeks.

BEST IN NORTHWEST OHIO

Best Vaudeville, Dramas and Comedies to Be Presented.

WITHIN a period of two weeks, the formal opening of the resplendent new Faurot Opera House will be accomplished, and upon the occasion of its debut, devotees of the drama will witness what can truthfully be said to be the most modern, beautiful and comfortable theatre in this section of the state.

Architects, decorators and artists have combined their skill in making the old dark and gloomy interior of the Faurot a delightfully bright and harmonious playhouse, where it is said, only the cream of vaudeville and stage attractions will be presented.

Under the direction of Maire Bros. to whom the credit of remodeling the theatre is due, Lima is assured of thoroly first-rate metropolitan attraction, in keeping with the new policy of the house.

OLD HOUSE GONE

The passing of the old Faurot Opera House, while a matter of prime importance in the theatre world, is looked upon with much sentiment by older residents of the city, who thru long association have become attached to the familiar playhouse. The structure had remained practically unchanged since it original erection by Benjamin S. Faurot, some forty years ago, until the present owners undertook the task of making the theatre thoroly modern and up-to-date.

At the time the Faurot Opera House was first opened, it was rated as one of the finest and most pretentious playhouses between New York and Chicago, and upon its broad spacious stage, the most famous dramas and tragedies have been enacted.

Residents of Lima in the eighties will recall the beautiful Ben Hur curtain which was suspended from the stage, and which is still in state of rare preservation at the Faurot Opera House. This charming old oil painting, the work of Mr. E. T. Harvey, of Cincinnati, was recently discovered by Manager Clarke, frayed and dusty with age, but remarkably clear and resplendent in all its old color and beauty.

Booking arrangements and the policy of the new Faurot Opera House will be made public within a short time, according to Mr. Clarke, under whose management the playhouse will be operated. Maire Bros. who recently purchased the building, will remain in active general management.

DEBT MOUNTS

SAN FRANCISCO — George T. Jones, San Jose, Calif., filed a bankruptcy petition here stating he borrowed $100 from Henry B. Stuart in 1897 at 10 per cent interest compounded monthly and that by now he owes his principal creditor $304,840,332,912,685.16.

TWO MARRIAGES SOUGHT EACH DAY OF SEPTEMBER

Cupid spent an active month in Allen-co, during September, license records in probate court show.

A total of 56 licenses and 5 banns were recorded during 30 days period ending Saturday. An average of 2 licenses or banns were issued daily for the month. June the banner month of the year shows a record of 78 ceremonies.

"Little Johnny Jones" New Orpheum Today

DUE to the fact that Manager Shaw of the New Orpheum Theater booked the Harry Lewis company for a seven day run and they opened their engagement at the New Orpheum last Monday, they will close their present engagement today, offering for their final three performances "Little Johnny Jones," which made such an immense hit at the New Orpheum Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The most gorgeous costumes that ever graced the Market Street Playhouse will be used in this bill.

Three big scenes will also be used, in fact the largest scene ever used by any company of its size. The final scene shows the entire company on board the Good Ship "Hurrah" bound for the U. S. A. and in full view of the audience the ship leaves harbor and can be seen away out in the ocean. Joe Carr and Beulah Hays will be seen in the leading roles and these two clever artists well known in musical comedy circles are bound to please you. Without a doubt the "Peer of Entertainers" is an appropriate title for those two clever people.

Starting at tomorrow's matinee and for six days only with an entire change of bill on Thursday, Elmer MacLeod and his "Isle of Roses" Co. with a world of features, including The Rose Comedy Four, and Homer Meechum, will hold the New Orpheum boards. This clever company comes to Lima will recommended from western managers Three Shows Daily will be in order with no advance in prices. Evening shows being reserved. Ladies' Free Matinee every Friday when any lady buying a ticket can bring another lady in Free and any man buring a ticket can bring a lady in Free.

ALLEN-CO LIVESTOCK MEN SHIP 16 CARS IN MONTH

Shipments of livestock by the Allen-co Livestock Co., during the month of September totaled 16 cars of cattle, hogs and sheep. The value of the shipments approximated $22,000, C. F. Mertz, manager, said Saturday.

More than 220 separate lots of livestock were included in the shipments by the Allen-co farmers and the business shows every indication of growing larger as the fall feeding gets under way.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS AVAILABLE FOR PLANTING

Several hundred thousand trees are available for transplanting by Ohio farmers, H. J. Ridge, farm agent, has been advised by the state forestry division.

Both ard and soft woods may be obtained free of charge from the Forester, Ohio Experiment Station, Wooster, O., Ridge said. Pine, tulip poplar and trees valuable for both posts and lumber may be had.

Hard woods may be planted in the autumn but the pines should not be set out until spring. Ridge said. Pine trees are most satisfactory on the thin well drained soils and hillsides.

Cabbage for kraut $1.50 hundred at Wright's.

Life Insurance Trust

will safeguard the money from your policies

IF your insurance money were suddenly placed in the hands of your widow, would she have the necessary experience to invest it wisely?

When you know of the many pitfalls which await the inexperienced you will realize the wisdom of a plan by which your insurance money is protected against possible loss through unwise speculation.

A Life Insurance Trust is a simple arrangement by which your insurance policies are made payable to this institution as Trustee. It is then our work to supervise the investment of the fund to insure the highest possible yield with absolute safety. The income from the fund or part of the principal, if so specified, is paid by us at stated intervals to the beneficiaries.

Our officers will talk with you about this matter, second in importance only to the insurance itself.

Soul Sacrificing Senator to Bolster Thompson's Strength.

SUCH IS PARTY HOPE

Hoosier Will Find it Difficult to Impress Buckeyes.

LIMA NEWS BUREAU, Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 30.

COLUMBUS — (Special) — Wasn't there some one once who wrote a book entitled "A Prisoner of Hope?" It runs in the mind of this old chron[illegible], impartial, that there is in existence such a novel or work or volume, but what the story is about or how it all comes out dense ignorance must be confessed. Here will thought [illegible] only to the title as it seems to be descriptive of a certain distinguished Indianian, Albert Jeremiah Beveridge by name, who is to come to Ohio of the blessings of Newberryism, Daughertyism, Thompsonism, Harry L. Davisism, ninety cent [illegible], unemployment, ship subsidy, Harding, and all the other many blessings of this second year of normalcy. But why, perhaps [illegible] is Albert Jeremiah [illegible] lamentations of Holy Writ [illegible] to the prisoner of hope? [illegible] answer isn't complicated. Beveridge [illegible] to be a "swallow-anything [illegible] candidate, A. J. was known as a Progressive and he was hailed from the Atlantic to the Pacific as a [illegible] star in a constellation of forward lookers. His victory last spring [illegible] the country. It was hailed as the dawn of a new day for the Republican party which was represented as in the way of regeneration, rebirth, spiritual awakening, ready to cast off the [illegible]-tained garments of the past, to bid farewell to its Daughertys, its Weekses, its Fordneys, and the like.

But—as the old sage has many times said — [illegible] will enter the garden. Beveridge changed his role. [illegible] a leader of a cause. He became a candidate and not merely a [illegible]. He became infected with the [illegible]. All summer long [illegible] about saying anything in [illegible] of the Harding administration. His silence has been far more [illegible] than any words he might [illegible]. If the soul of an orator [illegible] sensitive than the soul of an [illegible] then the once rosy-cheeked [illegible] must have been torn. But [illegible] was not on finer [illegible]. Beveridge must have standpat [illegible] soul is but a small [illegible] a practical politician [illegible]. So when Harding pointed [illegible] at him and issued a [illegible] invitation for him to come to Columbus and place the progressive [illegible] upon Col. Carmi A. Thompson and his [illegible] of reactionary followers and [illegible] utility lobbyists, Beveridge accepted. He was a [illegible] hope, hoping that the [illegible] would take no umbrage at his descent into the mire and hoping that the [illegible] of Indiana will not hold his spring victory against him. [illegible] brought into the fold of Newberryism, Daughertyism and [illegible]. The Progressives of Indiana have been led into the sacrificial [illegible] bring the Ohio Progressives into it, too? Ah, there's the rub!

And now that Beveridge is coming, the next question that arises is this: What [illegible]. There are no present [illegible]. He did make a speech at Evansville, Indiana, the [illegible] he said, "I will not mortgage my soul." But the next day he accepted the Ohio engagement. The remark at the Evansville speech seems strangely out of place for Ohio. Without specific mention of it, there may be a [illegible] general endorsement of the Fordney-McCumber tariff measure, the "robber tariff," to use the popular term. Beveridge says he is a protectionist and adds, "So was and is every Republican Senator and Congressman who fought the Payne-Aldrich bill [illegible] every one of these Republican Senators and Representatives, in [illegible] except one, who opposed [illegible] support the new tariff [illegible]. [illegible] may be so impious as [illegible] "why?" The answer may be [illegible] furnished. It has not been [illegible] the people of the nation. After it [illegible] repudiated, if it is, Beveridge, too, [illegible] find a voice to repudiate it. [illegible] specific statements of the [illegible] of the day, these are, in the Beveridge formula, mere "policies" which will be settled at some time.

But there are [illegible] gems from Beveridge which cannot be overlooked and with which [illegible] that Ohioans, too, may be regaled. Here is one:

"Republican measures have saved thousands of farmers from bankruptcy and hundreds of banks from collapse. The effects of these measures with reduction of [illegible] rates and generally improved [illegible] have laid the foundation [illegible] better times for the farmers, [illegible] still more must and will be done."

The details as to the measures that saved them are not mentioned nor yet the number of farmers already in bankruptcy and those slipping helpless over the edge of the precipice of despair. Impartial figures that have been collected show that ten per cent of the farmers who bought land in the past five years have already succumbed and probably twice as many more are being sustained because the banks do not yet wish to admit their losses, while upwards of thirty per cent of the farmers have borrowed money to pay their taxes. The hundreds of banks that have prevented themselves from following their clients no doubt wonder what measures saved them, just as the farmers can wonder with "Bev" what more can be done to them. They may hope that normalcy having run over them, will not at least turn around and come the other way.

* * *

There isn't any reason tho why Senator Beveridge's eloquence should stop with the farmers. More has been done to them as a group than perhaps any other group but still some mention may be made of the other groups. Take the workers for instance, who did they ever get so long a period of rest and recreation? They had time to meditate, they had time to reflect and they had time to spend with their families for the first time in years. Then, too, there are the highway contractors. Much has been done for them. There is scarcely a county in the state in which they have not been furnished with good labor at lower prices than they have been able to get it in years. In every farming county the road contractors have had only one difficulty and that has been to allot the work to the farmers clamoring for it so that it might be evenly divided and no hard feelings left. Any of them can testify to the benevolence of the regime which gave them so much available labor. No job in any country district halts now for want of manual aid. The farmers say they must have money for their winter shoes and for groceries and they cannot make it on their farms. The only available source of work is on the highways and both farmers and contractors are benefitted by the system that has come into vogue. Let Beveridge talk about that, too.

* * *

Of if he should desire to recur to the farmers once more, it will be easy to refer to another advantage. Hay is so low in price that it will not pay the farmers to save their corn fodder this year. Hence the 35 cent corn will be husked from the stalk, which is undoubtedly a time-saving method. The corn harvesting season will be shorter than usual this year and again more time will be afforded the farmers to enjoy the golden autumnal days and with the workers have so much longer periods for meditation. The country merchants, too, ought to be mentioned. There was a time when they scarce found time for anything. Farmers buying things kept them painfully busy waiting on the trade, made them work like mad continually. But, now? It's so different. The farmers' purchases can be attended to very quickly and there is more than enough leisure on their hands for the storekeepers to join in the discussions of the augmented crowds willing and ready to "save the nation." The splendid opportunities must not be overlooked and no benefit accruing from normalcy must be left unnoticed. The groups might forget their advantages if it were not for such as "Bev" coming with his sachet full of blessings so abundantly bestowed.

* * *

News from Washington as to the bevy of orators that are to succeed Beveridge in expounding the glories of the reign of Warren The Last bring their thrills and their own disappointments. Twenty senators are promised for Ohio—but where, oh, where is Truman H. Newberry? He has been eloquently defended in editorial sanctum and in letter and speech, even by Justice Charles E. Hughes. And yet Ohioans are not to hear his magic eloquence. And where, oh, where, among the constellation of cabinet orators is Harry M. Daugherty, Ohio's "distinguished contribution" to the group? Shall Buckeyes, too, be denied his classic pose and his appealing eloquence? He has approved the plans that have been made for the campaign, the Washington dispatches say, altho, alas and alack, his name is not mentioned among the notables who are to come here. And why is Secretary Fall of the Department of Interior left at home? The mystery grows. The "entire cabinet" is to be sent here with the blessings of the administration, but not Daugherty, nor Fall nor Andrew Mellon, the man who knows most of the $650,000,000 deficit which President Harding admitted that he has accumulated. It seems to loyal Ohio Republicans like a shame that these good men and true are omitted from the list of orators. And "Uncle Truman"! What a crowd he would draw! Admission even could be charged if the populace were allowed to bring stray cabbages and other evidences of their eternal gratitude to the man whose conduct constituted a "menace to free institutions and a disgrace to the republic." Why limit the list when Ohio wants to see them all?

* * *

Among the other things that Ohioans are to miss the remainder of the year is Carmi Thompson and his exposition of the Washington Conference where Carmi had the pleasant duty of sitting down right at the first table with all the good things to eat and drink (which Carmi loves so well) in his capacity of a counsellor. It's almost as bad as to miss Newberry, Daugherty and Fall, nay even worse! How the populace could weep as they heard the inward secrets of the Washington Conference which Carmi thought was just about the biggest thing that ever happened. Stern realities come in once more. The matter must be ditched since battleship scrapping was laid on the shelf because France and Italy have kicked the Four Power treaty into the waste basket to which the American Senate consigned the Treaty of Versailles. And Carmi can no longer tell how he saved American boys from death by poisonous gases. Nor can he eloquently describe former President Woodrow Wilson as an "ex-president too sick to walk." Sad days are come, the saddest of the year, for the glories of yesterday have become the chaff of today and no longer useful even for the purposes and uses of political bunk. The great issue is scrapped and the Disarmament Conference is a bitter memory. Carmi must talk on good food and such. That will not change and no international exigencies of politics can sweep it away. Stick to pie, Col. Thompson, the boys understand that!

* * *

If any one wants to know why Col. Carmi Thompson and his cohorts are just a wee bit worried and why there is trouble in prospect even for Gifford Pinchot, who like Beveridge has felt the touch of cold steel upon his political abdomen it is only necessary to cast an eye upon the figures here given. They are of the registration in McKeesport and Pittsburg. In Pittsburg, only 47,000 voters registered for the election during the first two days of registration. And that is in the very seat of protection of the Fordney-McCumber type where live the beneficiaries of the robber tariff. In McKeesport, a suburb of the same type, there has been an enrollment of 2,500 men and 900 women as against 6,500 men and 2,500 women two years ago. It is in these quarters that Pinchot must get his big majorities if he is to escape trouble. And the voters aren't there. If the present indications are upheld in Ohio, the Republican registration will run something parallel to this. It had been hoped that the beer amendment might bring them out in better fashion here. Perhaps it will; the registrations are yet to be held, but then there are thousands of negroes who vow they will never, never enroll this year, not even for the customary change no matter how bad they need it. It's worth while watching as a tendency.

* * *

Says George Rothwell Brown, writing in the Washington Post: "The Democrats will seek to inflame public opinion against the tariff and will seek to prove that it will have the immediate effect of increasing the burden of living, an argument naturally full of danger at a time when inflation of prices is already in progress and prices are showing a marked tendency to rise. The danger of placing a new tariff law on the statute books on the eve of an election is not minimized by practical Republican politicians and an aggressive defense of the Fordney-McCumber law in advance of Democratic attack is deemed the most advantageous policy."

It is not considered here that it is necessary to "inflame public opinion" for it has appeared to inflame itself. The confession that it is a profiteers tariff will of course be welcomed by the party that has the burden of attack. Old Joe Fordney admitted it in his statement when the bill passed the House and said that if any burglar took advantage of the weapon that had been handed him, he was a scoundrel, and nothing more. It was proposed that he be slapped on the wrist! The information is respectfully referred to police departments. All they have to do is to furnish the yeggs, second story men, safe blowers and bandits with the implements of their trade and guns and then criticise them severely if they use them. What lovely Filliards!

* * *

As if enough had not been done to the Initiative and Referendum by the Governor, Ohio General Assembly and Ohio Supreme Court, the Secretary of State has come to give it a second kick. He stubbed his toe on the first one in seeking to prevent the submission of a duly presented amendment. The printing of the synopsis of the taxation amendment on the ballot instead of a sentence of his own at once clear and certain will not be forgotten in many a day. In the first place no such thing has been done in the past and there is no possible reason why it should be done now. In the second place, the defense of the assertion that the Attorney General had perfunctorily approved the synopsis is no reason for placing it on the ballot, unless it afforded such an impartial and unbiased statement of the proposal as to be 100 per cent fair. The initiative and referendum can be ruined by such procedures as this. If anything was to be printed on the ballot there is no reason for not printing the text of the amendment with the new matter underscored. Bills are prepared in that manner in the Ohio General Assembly and no reasonable excuse can be found for changing the method. It does seem that the people ought to have a fair deal on constitutional amendments at least and the prompt protest that has followed the action is significant of the discontent that it has stirred up. This is said in no spirit of hostility to the amendment which has some excellent features, no doubt. It is said only in behalf of a fair submission. That's all.

The songster of Wapakoneta, the sweet singer of normalcy, is out again with a new verse. The tune is, "Till We Meet Again," and the words run like this:

Smile the while, why look so forlorn,
Dollar wheat and fifty cent corn
My! I can hear the farmer 'roamin'
While the chief plays golf, my dearie
The rainbow had a very pretty hue
Two years ago, but now we say adieu
There's very little in store for you
Till we change again."

The only fault that the farmers have found with the song is the glaring misrepresentation as to corn. It isn't fifty cents, at all, much nearer 40. The calculators among the agrarians will tell you that it costs nearly as much to harvest a bushel of corn as it is worth when it is carried to the elevator. Hundreds of acres of corn will never be harvested on that account.

Declarations of Supreme Court judge candidates are shortly to be heard and eventually the people of Ohio will know where all stand with the exception of Judge Benson W. Hough whose stand they already know. Judge Matthews has made his position tolerably plain by what he has said on the largest issues of the day. He says:

"The Supreme Court of Ohio, I firmly believe, should guard the referendum rights of the people as well as the constitutional rights of every citizen in every way. Restoration of constitutional government is the big issue underlying the selection of all officials popularly elected."

Judge T. D. Price, the other Democratic candidate, is to speak next week and to give a view of the working of his mind on big issues. The independent candidate, Judge Florence E. Allen, has not yet identified herself. As a matter of fact the greatest handicap she is bearing is the uncertainty of her position. No one knows whether she is a candidate in a rightful sense or whether she was prevailed upon to become a candidate by persons with "other fish to fry." When that point has been cleared up more will be known. Miss Allen has always been a strong factor with the Ohio Anti-Saloon League which desires above everything else to retain its grip on the Ohio Supreme Court. It has also been working strenuously for Judge Benson W. Hough, a candidate for re-election. Hough is handicapped by his record and seriously handicapped, too, as he knows. The veneer of fraternalism is wearing thin and even former service men resent the attempted escape from his record.

THIRTY-SEVENTH YEAR | LIMA, OHIO, 1922 | PRICE FIVE CENTS

An Unprecedented Group Photograph of European Royalty Which Miss De Lamar Declined to Join.

Why the Inspired American Beauty Rejected a Crown

What Happened When Prince Carol Decided to Wed the Heiress to the De Lamar Millions, and How His Heart and Crown and Titles Were Knocked Endwise, Confessed at Last

Miss Alice Antoinette De Lamar, Who Says: "I'm Still Waiting for Love."

EUROPE'S prize royal snob, Prince Carol of Rumania, laid his heart and his crown at the tiny feet of America's prize bachelor girl, Miss Alice Antoinette De Lamar, of Park avenue and Long Island, New York.

And she, with a shrug and a yawn, twinkled one toe and performed a neat little drop-kick on Prince Carol's heart and crown and everything that went with them.

"Whew!" whistled society. "Knocked for a goal! But why?"

And now, after all the fuss and furore, Miss De Lamar answers that question herself. She says:

"Simply because I didn't want to marry him. I wasn't in love. I've got ten millions of my own. And I want love when I marry. Love is my inspiration—love and simplicity—they're first cousins. I prefer my bachelor flat on Park avenue to my villa at Pembroke. And I prefer my independence to any marriage where there is no love."

Thus does Miss De Lamar not only flout the gossips of New York society, but that champion match-maker of Europe, Princess Anastasia of Greece, the former Mrs. William B. Leeds.

Princess Christopher had met Alice when she was studying in Paris and at once there was established a bond of mutual admiration. When Alice returned to America, Princess Christopher began to discuss the girl's future with Queen Marie of Rumania. Queen Marie had heard of Alice De Lamar's beauty, her personality, her wit and charm, and when Princess Christopher admitted she believed Alice would make a charming wife for Prince Carol, after he had divorced Mme. Zyzis Lambrino, Queen Marie gladly assented.

So Prince Carol, known as the most snobbish prince in all Europe, was dispatched to America with a friendly little note from Princess Christopher.

The Prince was a guest at Pembroke, the famous De Lamar villa at Glen Cove, where luxury is unsurpassed. There were all sorts of entertainments, ranging from morning swimming parties in the magnificent pool to midnight movies in the especially designed projection salon which was Alice's own private movie theatre.

"I'll never marry until I find real love," said Alice one evening just before the Prince departed for home. "Luxury means nothing unless there is love. Any little old flat is beautiful under the rose hue of romance."

Society raised its lorgnettes in amazement. Who was little Alice De Lamar that she could afford to be so independent when one of Europe's most royal princes was offering, to all evidences, everything that goes to make a princess happy?

The tea-time tabbies began to rattle the old skeleton bones. It was in Alice's blood to know her own mind, some said. Hadn't they ever heard the story of her father's rise from a poor sailor boy to one of America's greatest financial geniuses? And hadn't they heard of the famous Nellie Sands, who was Alice's mother?

Captain De Lamar had been a sailor boy in Holland years before. Ambitious to see the sights of the world, he ran away from the little Dutch fishing village where he was born and set out on a schooner bound for Norway. The schooner was wrecked and Joseph was taken aboard a steamer bound for America.

Landing in New York he set out with a group of immigrants for Chicago. But there, instead of the golden streets he had anticipated, he found disappointment and hardship.

Joseph De Lamar was about to give up and make his way back to Holland when fate gave his life another strange twist and brought him to Colorado with another chap who was going back home. Joseph became a victim of the mining craze.

He failed again and again. But the spirit that was to bring him into his $30,000,000 fortune was undaunted. He journeyed on mule-back to Idaho. And here he found fortune.

The "Owyhee" was one of those placer mines with just the surface dented and the nuggets taken when De Lamar chanced upon it. A close inspection convinced him that the real resources of the mine had as yet been untouched. He wrote at once to a friend in Chicago, and by return mail received a loan of $1,000, which made him the sole owner of the mine.

The mine began to pour forth its torrent of gold. In a few years the ragged peasant sailor boy who had come to America by such a strange trick of fate was amassing a fortune running into millions.

And then, on his first trip East, he found the woman who fulfilled his ideal. She was the living duplicate of Bouguereau's model for the painting of "Aurora."

An inexpensive print of the original art work was on exhibition in a shop on Broadway. There were chromos of shipping vessels, Holland scenes and western country that originally attracted Joseph De Lamar's eyes. He saw "Aurora."

At a seashore resort near New York Joseph De Lamar met a girl who had the dream likeness. She was Nellie Sands.

A quick-fire courtship ensued. And Nellie Sands found herself being whisked from the cheap flat where she had been born and raised to the magnificent home at 109 Madison avenue, which Captain De Lamar had purchased for his bride. After a flyer at Manhattan society Mr. and Mrs. De Lamar went to France.

It was there Alice was born and Joseph De Lamar's happiness was complete. Paris became enslaved by Mrs. De Lamar's beauty. Men adored her. So did her husband. He had Mrs. De Lamar and Alice done as "Cupid and Psyche" by one of France's best sculptors.

But, day by day, Joseph De Lamar noticed a change in his spirited wife. She became melancholy. She wanted to dance, to see Paris, to live. And Joseph De Lamar, who was twice her age, could not accustom himself to these frivolous pastimes. The end was divorce.

Little Alice was given into the custody of her father. And when she finished her education in Paris Captain De Lamar brought her back to New York.

At the height of Alice's social career in New York's smartest set, where she won instant popularity by her charming personality and beauty, Captain De Lamar passed away. His fortune totaled $30,000,000. He left Alice $10,000,000 in her own name and willed $20,000,000 to charity.

Alice had not heard of her mother in years until she learned that the beautiful "Nellie Sands," as Mrs. De Lamar was termed by her Parisian friends, had married G. R. Hatmaker, foreign representative of Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Ten million dollars in her own name, the Summer place, "Pembroke," at Glen Cove, L. I., which Joseph De Lamar built for his wife, beauty, charm and social position in New York's "400" is what Alice has gained. If she marries, says the will, she cannot forfeit one sou of her fortune to her husband under any event. She waits for true romance.

Nellie Sands, Mother of Miss De Lamar, Was Declared to Be the Image of Bouguereau's Famous "Aurora."

"Pembroke," the Splendid De Lamar Summer Villa at Glen Cove, Long Island, Which Miss De Lamar Declined to Exchange Even for a Royal Palace.

AIR LINERS ARE PREDICTED

Use of Aviation for Commercial Purposes Growing Rapidly.

FLYING COSTS DIMINISH

Flivver Ships Will Dot Sky Expert Believes.

(BY CHARLES P. BLIDEN)
Board of Governors of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

NEW YORK — (Especially — Roofed-over shipping districts will be common sights in American cities within the next few years. From those roofs giant airplanes and airships will be flying on railroad-like schedules, carrying passengers and freight from city to city.

Commuters will think nothing of coming to business daily from a distance of 10 miles. San Francisco will be only a day's ride from New York.

The city will project itself into the country, and the country will invade the city—with many advantages to both. Billions of dollars will be added to the rural real estate values of the United States; whole new areas will come in for development and the city congestion will be largely reduced.

I say these things from knowledge of what has already been accomplished. There is nothing of the fantastic in these predictions.

AVIATION SUCCESS

Commercial aviation is already a success. Regular lines have been established in many parts of the country, and are operating successfully.

Where thoroly responsible concerns are doing the flying, accidents are almost unheard of. Reports collected by our organization show that over a period of 12 months, 600 commercial aircraft made 130,526 flights, traveling 2,907,245 miles, without a single fatality.

During the last 11 months, the U. S. air mail service has traveled nearly 2,000,000 miles with only one fatality. Most of the accidents you read about are caused by "hops" or "stunters"—and commercial fliers don't stunt. They know that no human pilot is as sick as the law of gravity.

Except for the seaplanes, which can go up or come down wherever there's water, the present chief barrier to the development of commercial aviation is the lack of landing fields.

Consider the situation in New York. An airplane can bring a passenger from Washington to the landing field in Garden City, Long Island, in two hours. But it takes another hour to convey the passenger by motor to Wall street.

It should be practical to roof over Grand Central Terminal or other railroad yards with steel girder and glass, thus providing aircraft landing facilities in the heart of the city. I predict it is only a matter of a short time until such spaces are provided in every large city.

FLYING COST LOWER

Flying costs are bound to come down as the public learns it has nothing to fear in using properly operated airways. Quantity consumption of airplane tickets will eventually bring rates for high speed air travel within a reasonable distance of the rates for slower rail travel.

It is conceivable that the day may come when airplanes will be poached out in quantity production like thrivers; and when every family can own one. I am more inclined to the belief, however, that the immediate development of commercial aviation will be in the hands of common carriers operating large capacity planes over regular routes.

And I should strongly advise every city in America to have its city planners get busy on the subject of a local landing field—for the cities that have adequate terminal facilities will be the first on the airways map.

OPENED FOR TRAFFIC

COLUMBUS — The Scioto Trail brick section from Delaware to Waldo has been opened for traffic, this completing a perfect route from Toledo to Columbus.

OBITUARY

Lawrence Dwight McClure was born Sunday, July 5th, 1891, near Grover Hill, Paulding-co, Ohio. Departed this life September 24th, 1922. Aged 31 years, 2months, 19 days. He was converted March 11th 1906, baptised (by immersion) by Reverend Baldue, pastor of the United Brethren church at Mt. Zion Hedges circuit, of which he was a faithful and devoted member. He leaves to mourn their loss, a mother, Mrs. Carolin McClure, and foster sister, Mrs. E. L. Wien both of Spencerville, Ohio, a half brother, Thomas McClure, thought to be in Muskegon, Mich., and hosts of relatives and friends. His father having preceded him thru the golden gates on Mary 4th, 1909.

Farewell, dear, but not forever;
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet part—no, never,
On the resurrection morn.
Tho' thy darling form lie sleeping
In the cold and silent tomb,
Thou shalt have a glorious waking
When the blessed Lord doth come.

One by one earth's ties are broken
As we see our love decay;
And the hopes so fondly cherished
Brighten but to pass away.
One by one our hopes grow brighter,
As we near the shining shore;
For we know across the river,
Wait the loved ones gone before.

Thy gentle voice now is hushed,
Thy warm, true heart is still,
And on thy young and innocent brow,
Is resting death's cold chill.
Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast,
We have kissed thy lovely brow,
And in our aching hearts we know
We have no darling now.

THOUSAND RAISED

Hospital Workers Declare Tag Day Complete Success.

More than $1,000 was realized from the sale of tags on the streets of Lima Saturday, Mrs. Charles Killen, 1307 State-st, in charge of the annual City hospital tag day, announced Saturday night.

The day was characterized by her as a complete success surpassing even the original expectations of the workers. The original goal was set at $1,000. An incomplete count Saturday night, she declared, indicated that the quota had been exceeded.

The Tag day goes down into history here as the most successful in years.

Exact figures on the sum realized from the sale of tags will not be known until Monday, Mrs. Killen announced. The entire proceeds will be turned into the general hospital fund.

Nearly 100 workers paraded the streets of Lima thruout the day.

JEWS TO OBSERVE YOM KIPPUR

Day of Fasting Begins at Sundown Sunday evening.

Lima Jews will eat their last meal until the expiration of 24 hours, just before sundown Sunday night.

From then until sundown Monday, they will devote the larger part of their time to religious observance of Yom Kippur annual day of fasting and penance.

The holiday is perhaps the most important on the crowded Jewish calendar. On this day Jews seek forgiveness for sins committed during the past year, and the blessing of Jehovah for the coming year.

The occasion is marked by the singing of Kol Nidre, considered a musical masterpiece. It is sung by a choir in the Reformed temples and by a "chasen" in the orthodox synagogues. Words are in the ancient Hebrew tongue while music is indicated by hieroglyphics used also by the ancients. The song is among the recognized classical musical compositions.

Reformed services will be held at the Temple Beth El on W. Market-st. Orthodox services will be held in the City Bank building.

BIDS TO BE ASKED

Improvement of Delphos-Ft. Jennings-rd is Planned.

Bids for the construction of a paved road on the portion of the Delphos-Fort Jennings road situated inside the limits of Delphos will be asked by county commissioners Tuesday.

Contract for building the road will be let on October 17. The section is a part of Inter-county highway No. 137.

The continuation of the road from the city limits to the Putnam-co line two-thirds of a mile north is being constructed with state aid. George Walthers, Lima, has the contract. The road is macadam base with a tar penetration on surface.

North of the county line the road is already paved into Fort Jennings. The section to be let by the county is two blocks long.

The county is also building by force account, a one mile section east of Delphos to link up with the end of the present paving from Scott's Crossing to Wright's crossing. Walter R. Toy, county surveyor, has charge of the work.

PENSIONS FOR SIGHTLESS TO BE READY THIS WEEK

Quarterly distribution of pensions to the blind of Allen-co will commence Monday, the first day of the last quarter, Glen I. Wallace, clerk of the county board of commissioners announced Saturday.

More than $2,500 will be paid out in pensions, according to C. R. Phillips, county auditor. Phillips declared that the annual amount paid to blind persons is rapidly increasing.

The maximum allowance awarded is $200 a year. More than 90 persons will benefit by the distribution.

ELIMINATION OF POLES ATTEMPTED BY BINGHAM

A survey of the city pri to the instituting of a "joint ownership pole campaign" has been made by city officials, C. A. Bingham, city manager, announced Saturday.

It is planned to ask the utility companies needing poles in the operation of their business to own and operate them in partnership. This will cut the number needed to a small fraction of their present number.

Small forests of poles are to be found on many street Bingham says. This is especially true of Metcalf-st, near Kibby-st.

NEW HEARING IS DENIED ERIE BY JUDGE BECKER

A motion for new hearing in injunction proceedings instituted against the Chicago & Erie railroad by the county commissioners, was over-ruled by Judge C. Becker, Saturday.

The case is one of two years standing wherein the county sought to enjoin the railroad company in regard to a grade crossing in Harrod. The original injunction was dissolved by the court.

ROAD FUND ALLOWED

FINDLAY — County commissioners have allowed $43,000, for state highway funds in the 1923 road improvement program.

What Horror Happened in That House?

It Drove a Happy, Beautiful Girl Insane, Her Mother Died Raving Mad, and the Only Tell-Tale Clue to the Tragic Mystery Is a Broken Window

"Something more sinister and hair-raising than anything the authorities have yet imagined, may have leered or glared or gibbered in that jagged hole in the glass."

"Mrs. Sabo had one arm around the girl. Her high-pitched shriek went on and on. Both stared at the window."

WHAT was the horror that drove two women mad—and one of them to death—when a crash woke them at midnight, and they stared at—something—in the broken bedroom window?

Was it a shadow, a face, a clutching hand? Or was it some baleful spectacle that seemed less human than the Hound of the Baskervilles?

Only two living people know. One is the person who was the horror—or caused the horror—at the shattered window. The other is Mary Sabo, a nineteen-year-old girl, and she is a speechless lunatic in the asylum at Laurel Hill, New Jersey.

A third did know—Mary Sabo's mother. But she died of hysterical exhaustion at Laurel Hill, after eighteen days of tortura, in which she mumbled only gibberish.

The Sabos lived at Shadyside, New Jersey, a bit of a village nestled below the Palisades at the brink of the blue Hudson, just across the river from the tall apartments of upper New York. There was Emil Sabo, the father, a prosperous workingman employed at the chemical plant not far from Shadyside. There was Katherine, his wife. And there were the children—Pauline, the eldest, twenty-one; Mary, nineteen, and three little brothers and sisters.

They had all come over from Czecho-Slovakia a few years ago, and there was no happier family in all the country until the night when ghastly tragedy broke on them like some bolt from the pit.

Mary was the pride of the family. She was the beauty. She was "smart." She had graduated with highest honors from the high school, and at the factory where she worked they wanted her in the office.

But Mary thought she would get married instead. She was engaged to Paul Turanski, a Czech like herself, and a fine, stalwart young chap who had served three years in the United States army. They were to have been married in the Autumn.

There was no cloud in Mary's sky on the night she retired to her room in the Sabo home. There was no trouble, no fear, no premonition of disaster in the minds of any of the Sabos.

The Sabo house was an old-fashioned frame dwelling set on the slope at the foot of the Palisades. Circling the house was a narrow porch, or balcony, with steps leading down outside to the court. Mary's bedroom window looked out on this balcony.

She closed the window and locked it before she went to sleep, because there had been some talk of thieves in the neighborhood and she was alone in the room. Her mother occupied a room next to her. Mr. Sabo was in another room beyond.

He started out of bed shortly after midnight. Somebody was screaming. He rushed out of his room and along the hall toward the sound. The screams came from Mary's room, but it was his wife's voice. The door was open. Mr. Sabo plunged in, fumbled for the electric button, switched on the light, and stopped appalled.

His wife and daughter cowered on the floor in one another's arms. Mary's mouth worked convulsively, but she made no sound. Mrs. Sabo had one arm around the girl. Her high-pitched shriek went on and on. Both stared at the window. It was still closed, but in the centre of the pane was a jagged hole. Broken glass sprinkled the floor.

"Katherine!" cried Mr. Sabo. "Katherine! What has happened?"

He stood over his wife, shaking her by the shoulder. But her wild screams continued. He drew his daughter to her feet, caressing her, urging her to speak to him. But she only stared at him with horrible blank eyes and moved lips from which no words came.

The two women were insane. Where a few hours before Mary was a laughing, sparkling, exceptionally bright girl, she was now dumb, her mind gone. And Mrs. Sabo, the loving mother, though she kept her voice, had lost her reason. She could not recognize her husband. She could not answer his questions. She could mutter only maudlin fragments of words.

Pretty Mary Sabo, High School Graduate, Now a Raving Maniac in a Madhouse.

The county authorities came and took them away to the asylum. Not three weeks later Mrs. Sabo died there without recovering her sanity. Mary lives, but she is still a mute and demented. Doctors say her case is hopeless.

The other Sabos, almost crazy with grief themselves, could offer the police little help in solving the mystery. Mr. Sabo dimly remembered a noise like the crash of glass just before the screaming began, and he started wide awake. He believed his wife heard the crash and rushed to Mary's room; that she saw what Mary saw at the window. But what that thing was he could only guess. There was just one possibility he could think of, and this he told the officials.

When the Sabos first went to live in Shadyside part of the house was rented by Frank Katoshe, a Pole, who continued to live there until his lease expired, a period of several months. He was not a popular tenant.

Katoshe, said Sabo and his daughter Pauline, was a man of forty-seven, who was rumored to have a wife and children in Poland. He was described as a surly, leering fellow, and a hard drinker.

Katoshe liked the girls. He had a phonograph and a lot of pictures in his room and he used to try to get Mary and Pauline to come in there and listen to the music and look at the pictures. He offered them a drink, too, said Pauline.

But neither she nor Mary liked Katoshe. They wouldn't go into his room. They wouldn't have anything to do with him. Mary told Pauline that Katoshe asked her to marry him, and when she shrank from him he caught her by the hand and threatened her.

"He told her a dreadful thing," said Pauline. "He told her if she wouldn't marry him he would fix her so she would never marry anybody."

The neighbors around Shadyside confirmed much of what Pauline said. Mrs. Florrie Korvath, whose husband kept a cold-drink stand on the River road, said Katoshe told her he would "get that Sabo girl." The very night of the tragedy, said Mrs. Korvath, the Pole had come into the Korvath place, apparently intoxicated, and made threats against Mary Sabo.

The detectives started a hunt for Katoshe. But they couldn't find him. Several weeks passed. Katoshe had left some furniture at the Sabo home, and one day two men, John Taylor and Anthony Sylaski, came to the door and asked for Katoshe's things. They said Katoshe sent them.

Pauline called a policeman. He arrested Taylor and Sylaski. They proved they had only been employed by Katoshe as draymen and were entirely innocent. So they were released. But they put the detectives on the trail of the Pole. They found the place where he was staying in Bloomfield, but they didn't find Katoshe. He had heard of the arrest. He had fled again.

For ten days he hid in the Jersey woods. Finally hunger drove him to a store, and there Detective Hudd arrested him. Katoshe denied any knowledge of the broken window pane. He said he could establish an alibi for the night when the two women went mad. But he was held, pending trial.

Paul Turanski Was to Have Been Married to Mary This Autumn.

While the New Jersey police declare they will prosecute Katoshe on a charge of house-breaking, they are by no means sure he is answerable, even if guilty, for any greater crime. If his hand smashed the window-pane, if his face appeared in the opening, if it was the sight of him that drove Mrs. Sabo and Mary Sabo insane, can Katoshe even then be held responsible for anything other than "breaking and entering?"

While the prosecuting attorney is puzzled with this question, New Jersey alienists are baffled by another. They do not see, they declare, how the mere smashing of a window-pane and the sight of a man's head in the opening could make two women go mad.

It is true, they admit, that a sudden and violent awakening from sleep often has disastrous consequences. Numerous cases of sleep-walking are cited where the victim, if not wakened gently, goes raving mad. During slumber the brain relaxes. It is like a machine the controlling lever of which is slipped off. On waking the lever almost immediately is snapped on again. But in that brief instant between the relaxation of the brain and the renewal of its function something may happen to stop the lever—to throw the brain out of control permanently.

Something like that may have happened to Mary Sabo. But what the alienists do not understand is why her mother should have been affected in the same way. She did not leap from sleep into insanity in the same instant. She heard the smashing of the window-pane. Presumably her mind worked actively enough to send her out of her bedroom, along the hall and into Mary's room. She was practically in full control of her faculties when she entered the room and saw—what?

That is where alienists and police pause. Could a mere shadow, a face, a hand—no matter how fear-inspiring—have crazed Mrs. Sabo? Mustn't something else—something more sinister and hair-raising than anything the authorities have yet imagined—have leered or glared or gibbered in that jagged hole in the glass, to have given Mrs. Sabo the fright from which she died, to have scattered her daughter's reason and struck her dumb?

POSTOFFICE SITE TO BE SOUGHT

Committee Will Investigate Location for New Building.

Appointment of the committee of Lima business men to pick out the site for the new postoffice which it is believed Congress will authorize, will be announced by the chamber of commerce this week.

If Lima is to obtain a new postoffice it will be necessary for a suitable piece of property to be offered the government at a reasonable price.

Rather than condemn the property desired the treasury department will refuse to build the new building and will make the best of the old one, the chamber has been told.

It is believed that a suitable piece of property will be obtainable at a fair price if the local business men go at the proposition in the right way.

As soon as the committee is appointed a campaign will be mapped out and various properties investigated, it has been announced. Options may later be obtained should the ones selected meet the approval of the treasury officials.

CANNON WORRIES COMMISSIONERS

Excavation at Court House Threatens Civil War Relic.

Extra braces were placed in the pit excavated for the comfort station at the court house Saturday to prevent a cave in of the walls.

Excavation work is practically finished, and pouring concrete has started. Earth around the sides is commencing to loosen and cave, however.

To prevent the old cannon which stands at t ... e formed by the pit, from tumbling in, a beam has been placed under the muzzle.

The precarious condition of the cannon was called to attention of the county commissioners some time ago. It was planned to secure it with cables. This was not done, however, because it was decided the ground would hold as long as dry weather prevails.

Removal of the cannon to Memorial Hall, is advocated, if the G. A. R. will consent. Commissioners are of the opinion, however that the veterans of '61 may object.

FALLS IN RIVER

Big Four Conductor Has Narrow Escape at Kenton

KENTON—(Special)—A miraculous escape from death was seen here Saturday when Harry Wells, Big Four railroad conductor, fell 60 feet into the muddy water of the Scioto river.

Wells was in charge of a switching freight train when it stopped on the trestle over the river. He was in the locomotive cab and thinking they were on solid ground, swung clear of the engine.

His left arm and collar bone were broken by the impact but as he did not lose consciousness during the fall he was able to keep his head above the water and save himself from drowning.

Wells lives in Bellefontaine and has been a conductor on the Big Four railroad for several years.

She Bet That Her Jewels Weighed More Than Her Clothes—

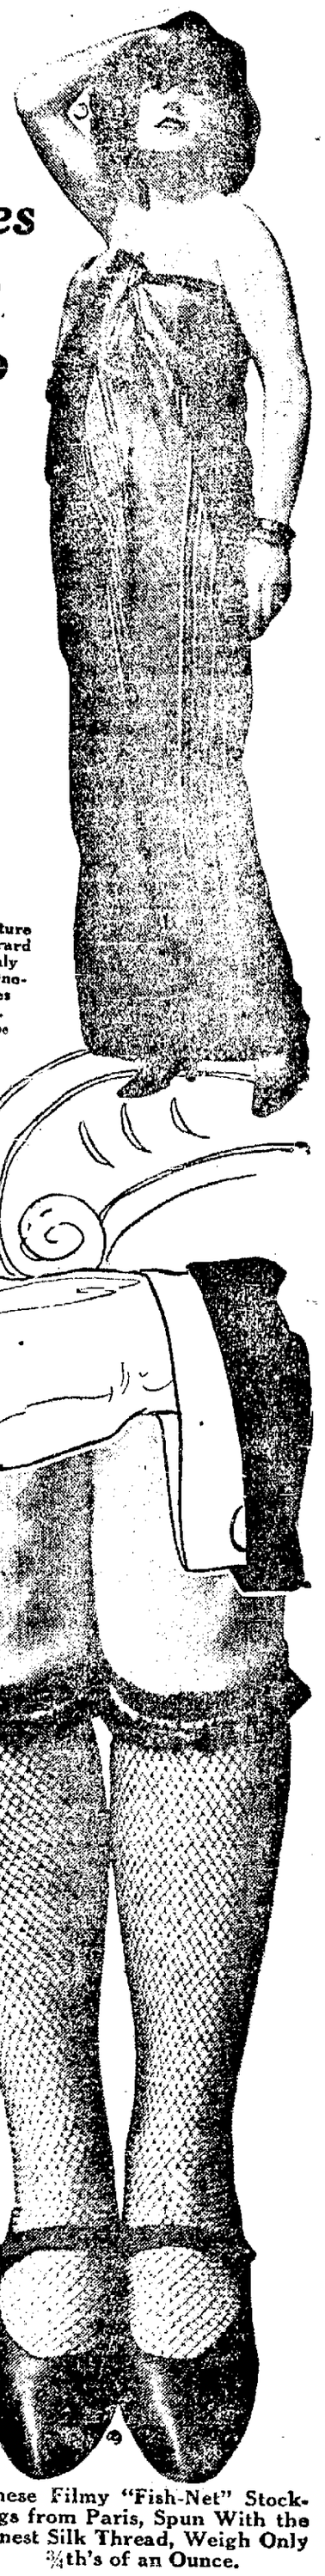

How Deauville Heaved the Season's Dying Gasp When the French Beauty's Airy-Fairy Fineries Floated Over the Screen and On to the Scales and Tipped Under a Pound

The Deauville Wager Inspired Pretty Gladys Core to Make—and Win—a Similar Bet in Chicago.

MLLE. GABRIELLE, the famous French beauty, bet that her jewels weighed more than her clothes—and won.

Not the clothes she wears when she prances in the Follies, but the regulation evening costume prescribed for this Winter by the ultra-exclusive modistes of the Rue de la Paix.

The story of the wager has just reached America, and at least one on-the-spot tourist says he'll willingly back a similar bet in this country, the subject to be any woman modishly attired for the evening.

"I was amazed at the result," he states. "I knew modern ball gowns were considered 'scanty,' but I didn't realize how feather-weight they are till I saw the proof in ounces and pounds."

Gabrielle made and won her bet at Deauville, the whizzy gambling resort on the coast of France which is annually the scene of so many bizarre episodes and picturesque adventures.

The Follies favorite wafted down from Paris for a holiday, taking with her a stock of new frillies to dazzle the eyes of the millionaires in the Casino and along the beach.

Among these were a dozen evening gowns patterned after the pre-Winter styles which manikins had been showing at the Longchamps races, together with zephyr lingerie and cobweb stockings recently introduced in the more advanced Paris shops.

When Gabrielle strolled into the Casino her first evening at Deauville she got more attention than the Shah of Persia or the Maharajah of Karputhala. This was 40 per cent directed at her beauty and 60 per cent directed at what she wore.

Her costume, say American tourists who were there, was not immodest as present-day fashions go. There was no back to the gown except two silver strands rippling across her shoulders, and it clung closely to the figure beneath two filmy panels on either side. But most 1922 evening gowns also lack backs and also cling.

What struck the spectators was the very gauzy effect of everything Mlle. Gabrielle had on. The gown was like so much bright mist. The few inches of stocking flashing beneath the hem seemed to have been spun on her ankles by silkworms. The fairies might have dressed her, so fragile she seemed.

By way of contrast, there were her jewels. Her dark hair was crowned by a blue-sparkling diamond tiara. Around her neck was a triple rope of pearls. The left arm, from wrist to elbow, was sheathed in bracelets. They glittered with the myriad colors of a prism in the sunshine.

Mlle. Gabrielle had come to make them stare, and stare she made them—for at least a minute. Which is quite a slash of time to grab from busy Deauville for one's own when the gambling rooms are running full blast. Mlle. Gabrielle made them stare—and before many hours she made them whoop and yell.

The Follies beauty had a bad night at the tables. In her own group of smart super-Bohemians she is known as a lucky gambler. But Fortune sat aside from her that evening and she is said to have pitched several thousand francs into the Casino coffers.

According to the version to reach America Gabrielle placed her last stake on the wheel—and lost—at the moment the Casino was invaded by a squad of zealous workers in the cause of the starving children of Austria.

Croupiers halted their rakes, wheels were stopped, card players turned in their chairs, and the money-grinding mill of Deauville slowed down for three minutes to listen to a tale of want and suffering.

A Russian countess mounted a table top and began to describe what she had witnessed in a provincial Austrian town, where children crawled in the gutters picking up garbage with feeble fingers for mouths that had tasted no food for weeks but black bread and pale soup.

"I do not come to you in the name of any country, but in the name of little children!" she cried to them in exquisite French and held out her arms.

The King of Spain started the ball rolling by pitching a shower of bank notes at her feet. As paper money and coins rained in from all directions the workers began to thread through the crowd, stopping at every table to shake their pasteboard "banks" under the noses of men and women.

Mlle. Gabrielle had nothing to give. So she told the Russian countess.

"You see, cherie!" Her shoulders shrugged and her white arms spread with an expressive gesture. "I am sorry. I have played my last franc. My hand-bag is at the hotel."

"Anything will do, dearie!" said the American actress who had swooped down on Gabrielle's group.

"But I have nothing—nothing but my clothes and my jewels!"

The group laughed. The American actress rattled her "bank." Gabrielle withered the last speaker with a glance.

"I insist!" he cried irrepressibly. "Ladies and gentlemen, which shall Gabrielle give—clothes or jewels? Let us take a vote! The jewels may be worth more, but the clothes weigh more"——

"In your hat!" shouted another wag, or words to that effect. "I'll bet her bracelets weigh more than all she has on!"

The crowd cheered. The American actress rattled her "bank" again. Suddenly Gabrielle held up her hand. Her eyes sparkled.

"I will give!" she cried dramatically. "It is for the children! One of the gentlemen says my clothes weigh more than my jewels. The other denies it. Which is right? Will you wager, monsieurs? And will you give your winnings to the cause?"

"Sixty thousand francs on the bracelets!" cried wag number two.

That particular part of the Casino became a hubbub. Here was a sensation after Deauville's own heart. While half the crowd made a dash for one door, crying "Scales! scales!" the other half swept through another door into an anteroom.

Here scales were brought and placed on a console in the centre of the room. A huge Japanese screen was placed in one corner. Judges were selected, two piles of sixty thousand francs each were heaped beside the scales.

The bet was that Mlle. Gabrielle's jewels weighed more than her clothes. Each of the betters agreed, in case he won, to donate his sixty thousand francs ($5,000) to Gabrielle, who in turn would donate them to the cause of Austrian relief. Everything Gabrielle had on when the wager was made, from tiara to slippers, was to be counted.

Before Gabrielle retired behind the screen she made a little speech, in which she declared she submitted to the test only because her heart went out to the starving children. Then she disappeared—and over the top of the screen zipped first a crimson garter and then a ruby ring.

They were followed by the diamond tiara and half a dozen bracelets, a silver slipper and one sleazy stocking.

"Bravo!" shrieked the other half, as the opposite side of the scale sagged beneath the weight of the slipper.

It was nip and tuck between clothes and jewels until the last of Gabrielle's seventeen bracelets and the last of her gauzy garments reposed on the scales. Then the decision was announced as follows:

CLOTHES.
Slippers	5	ounces.
Dress	2¼	"
Combination	1	"
Garters	½	"
Stockings	¾	"
Chemise	¼	"
Total	9¾	ounces.
JEWELS.
Diamond tiara	4	ounces.
Pearl necklace	2	"
Rings	1¾	"
Bracelets	3½	"
Earrings	1	"
Barpin	¼	"
Total	12½	ounces.

By two and three-quarter ounces the man who bet Mlle. Gabrielle's jewels were heavier than her clothes won. Gracefully he handed her the 60,000 francs after she emerged from behind the screen, radiant and slightly disheveled, but completely clothed once more. And gracefully she handed over the 60,000 to the relief of the starving children of Austria.

Since the story of Mlle. Gabrielle's bet seeped through America a Chicago girl, Miss Gladys Core, has made and won the same wager.

The cob-web "Gabrielle gown," say the fashion editors, can be pulled through a dinner ring or crammed into a vanity case.

It Was Nip and Tuck Between Clothes and Jewels Until the Last of Gabrielle's Seventeen Bracelets and the Last of Her Gauzy Garments Reposed On the Scales. Then the Decision Was Announced. By Two and Three-quarter Ounces the Man Who Bet Mlle. Gabrielle's Jewels Were Heavier Than Her Clothes—Won.

Both general railway shops have work ahead for the entire winter. The Solar and clear industries maintain their capacity operations.

Some slight pick-ups are noted in real estate circles, referring more directly to down town property. Two deals are under way, either one of which will prove a revelation in retail circles. One of these I all but closed, a broker makes assurance.

Money is the foundation stone on which many dreams are now building. Banks while in splendid funds are not taking long time paper, while Building & Loans are in no position to undertake big underwriting for building purposes. House construction has been far greater this year than expected. Homes of the modern mode are distinctly in demand. Apartments erected during the summer are already rented to capacity with a waiting list. This is as true on the south and north sides as in the west end. The State Street colony is running out of vacant lots and there will be few available at the close of the season. The next residence development seems almost sure to center in the new Market street extension and the Roby-Pletcher west of Woodlawn enterprise.

Collections remain only fair, and the farmer is yet to come into the market for any coal buying. Coal is still sadly missing, with poor lump grades commanding above $10 the ton, and no Pocahontas or hard coal available.

AN EQUITABLE VALUATION

With the city facing a huge deficit bordering on bankruptcy, much is being heard concerning revaluation of Lima property. Taxes now are figured on a valuation of approximately $50,000,000, admittedly too low in the aggregate.

None can dispute the fact that a revaluation is needed in Lima, but when it is made it should be placed on a more equitable basis than it is in many cases at present. A survey of records shows that scores of residence properties are on the duplicate at a much higher proportionate value than many business blocks. It is not fair that a penalty should be placed upon homes, that the man who owns only his modest dwelling should pay taxes on a higher proportionate valuation than owners of valuable downtown realty.

This condition should be taken into consideration when a revaluation is made in the city. If residence property is on the duplicate for 80 per cent of its true value, then business property should be listed equally high.

SANE TIME AGAIN

At last we are back to normalcy in one thing time. Daylight saving, the time foisted upon the city last June, has run its course for the present year. We believe the rejoicing should be general.

Will it return again next year? The voters of Lima must decide that at the election November 7. If you want daylight time with its inconveniences, vote "Yes" on your ballot. If you want the legal time for Ohio, the time that will give you an hour less daylight for your golf but an hour more for sleep on cool mornings of scorching days in summer, vote "No" when you mark your ticket. You're the court of last resort now.

GUN TOTING IS CURSE

Pistol toting is the curse of America, says Chief Magistrate McAdoo of New York City. "There are more persons who carry pistols in New York and Chicago than in the whole of Europe."

McAdoo declares that the police's greatest problem is the free sale and use of firearms.

Then why not stop the sale, make it a penitentiary offense to possess or carry a revolver? If the penalty were stiff enough, and enforced, it would counteract the householder's disadvantage in not having a pistol for protection. Then, too, the home could keep a rifle or shotgun, weapons which crooks cannot carry concealed.

YOUR HONEY

Till recovery of business this year has extended into that mysterious civilization of the insect world - the activities of bees.

Bees have speeded up. And the 1922 yield of honey will be a whopper, possibly breaking all records, if preliminary reports to the Department of Agriculture pan out as expected.

Next time Willie spreads honey too thickly on his bread or buckwheat cakes, maybe you can check him by telling him this:

To make one pound of honey, bees have to carry 37,000 load of nectar from flowers to hive.

Infinitely patient and elaborate preparation, then it all vanishes down the human throat in a twinkling. Such is life—nine-tenths preparation, one-tenth realization.

They toil from sunrise until the last glimmer of light after sunset. In summertime, at the height of their activity, the life of worker bees is only a matter of two months.

They foolishly work themselves to death. And then some one else—man, not a bee—eats the honey. It reminds you of the man who slaves himself into the grave, leaving his fortune to heirs who squander it quickly.

With autumn comes rest for some of the bees, death for many. The queen and some of the workers will survive winter.

When next spring comes, the workers will house clean the hive and build new comb cells in which the queen will lay eggs. Then the workers split into two squads, one gathering honey, the other serving as nursemaids for the babies.

The workers are females with their development arrested so that they cannot reproduce.

The men bees—drones—are of little use except as professional husbands, dodging work, not gathering enough food even for themselves. They gorge on honey brought in by the women folks and, when not loafing in the way, "show off" by flying around near the hive and making a great fuss about it.

The life of bees is an existence of no permanence, brief, seemingly futile. You wonder if there is any purpose behind this intense activity which never seems to get anywhere. Many philosophers wind up by wondering the same about the activities of man.

FIRE PREVENTION

Beginning tomorrow, Lima will cooperate with the rest of the country in observing Fire Prevention Week. Special programs and other means of bringing this important matter to the attention of the public have been arranged.

This work is intended to cut down the terrific loss from fires in the United States. The National Fire Protection Association, which fosters the work, is authority for the statement that fire losses in this country in 1921 totalled the appalling sum of $185,000,000. The loss of life amounted to 15,000 and in addition 16,000 were injured in fires.

Hearty cooperation should be given this movement. It should not be a campaign for one week but for the entire year. Education will bring comparative security. Various officials can do much along this line, but without the assistance of the individual cannot gain the success desired. Each person should appoint himself or herself a committee of one to battle the fiery demon.

POEMS YOU WILL ENJOY

By BERTON BRALEY

BON VOYAGE

Goodby, old friend. You needn't look astounded
And ask me why I speak in accents glum.
My sorrow is exceedingly well founded.
Things will be altered in the days to come,
For you're engaged—a girl has come between us!
Oh, yes, you think that all will be the same,
But it's not true, you're in the spell of Venus,
And life henceforth will be an altered game.

Goodby, old friend; no, I'm not jealous of you,
I didn't want to win her for myself,
I'm glad you've got so nice a girl to love you—
Better true love than heaps of golden pelf.
But this I know, I've lost my pal forever,
No matter how intensely you deny,
Friendship we'll keep, but comradeship—ah, never;
Old chum, goodby!

Your friends are hers, she says? I do not doubt it,
She means it, too, I know; but none the less,
A wife's a wife, there's no two ways about it,
And though she'll want to aid your happiness,
Somehow she'll never look at me as do,
She'll change you too, for that's a woman's trend,
Marriage, you know, is chum-ship's certain hoodoo,

YOUR HEALTH

COMMON SENSE WAYS TO KEEP WELL

BRUISES—CONTUSIONS

A contusion is a blow to any part of the body without the piercing of the skin. Some contusions are of slight importance, others are serious.

The little boy who falls down stairs and bumps his head has a contusion. It may show a red or blue because the force of the blow broke blood vessels beneath the skin. It, however, it is a severe contusion of the leg, parts protected by a great deal of muscle, you will not get the results just mentioned as far as outward appearance is concerned.

Bruises, however, develop and become black and blue later on. A person may accidentally be hit in the leg and go on for several weeks and consider the injury a nothing very serious. But such a person may die because the small blood vessels, not the big ones, got broken and formed a hematoid condition, an infection of the blood.

You may have seen someone who has injured his finger by a hard blow. And later you may see the same person without that particular finger or finger tip. The injury may develop a felon, not so large at first but later serious effects.

In the case of a contusion to the head, there may be a severe jar or partially broken bone. Semi-consciousness or unconsciousness sometimes follows. If you are aware of having had a blow of some kind, tho no serious results immediately followed, don't neglect it until too late.

WITH APOLOGIES

BY OH. OH. JACKENRIM

A Page from the Diary of an Undquated Reporter. I up betimes, and below stairs. No fruit, melon or porridge in the chateau. So, George gave me toasted biscuits, with a rasher of bacon. Abroad and walked.

To the office, where long cast up accounts against the week end payrolls to little satisfaction. General Prosperity still on the defensive. Refuses to appear in the open. Stocks on the downgrade, and bonds skidding. This day will sell another block of Fisk.

Out to Bill Mason's Lizzie st bakery for a half dozen Parkerhouses. Saw Harry Tibbot, the electrical engineer and M'sieur Fisk of the pianola factory, a wonderful musiquer whom I much admire. They are going to charge Mike Sullivan, the retired patrolman, rent by the month for his chair and cot in the North side hose house.

To lunch with my wife, and joined by two charming society dames at Jakes Place. A very good meal, with a tomat soup for intrée, and cantaloupe for the sweet. Out to wave at Dureon Hughes, of the Solar and Austin Potter, the banker. And a fairy whispered me a tayle about Ralph F. Neidhardt, the expert salesman at the greate Bluem stores. Who with his brother, Walter, the contractor, fought a battle on Spencerville rd. Against a mulch cow. And the cow won duching the broth ers and their gas waggon.

In the afternoon, strolled about the towne. Standing at the Savings building corner, saw the whole world pass by. The shoppers were in battalions and all carrying arms akimbo. It will be a greate day at the receiving tellers' windows of the moneries this day. Met a coterie of Chicago bankers coming here for conference, but pledge me to silence. And did.

Greeted E. A. Williams, the motor truck king. And spoke in fyne fryendliness to Ralph Austin, all a-thuse over the half million dollar school house election. Into the Rowlands company to buy a bauble against my sister's birthday and found a neat piece of crockery she will well love. Being a handy girl around crockery. There's Al Patterson, the renowned stone baron. And with him a man I should know. But memory faileth me in the crisis.

To Jimmie's for a trim. My old college fraternity brother Bert McPheron in the chair. He's a handsome boy when all painted up in Palm Olive lather. But you should have seen him when initiating a freshman into the Chi Hai Phi inner circle. On the greate porch, Jim Mooney, the life insurance broker, and the Hon James Wesley Halfhill, dean of barristers and statesman.

Dined en famille on a good roast, with Lima beans and cabbage for side service. The sweet, a real lemon pie. Strolled down past the new Orpheum between-act tyme. Albeit, saw none of the chorines heralded as equal to the bathing sevlette. So, home to read Pilgrim's progress and get a good night's rest for early mass at the Episcopal church.

ALIAS THE LONE WOLF

BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Monk turned the keys, but all at once forgot his purpose and cocked his ears attentively to rumors of excitement and confusion on the deck. The instinct of the seafaring man uppermost, Monk stiffened, grew rigid from head to [illegible].

"Monsieur! Monsieur!" Liane hallooed. "Open that box!"

The words were on her lip when she was thrown on her feet by a violent shock which stopped the [illegible] of all her career. The woman cursed against Monk, shouldering him bodily aside.

Instinctively snatching at the box, Monk succeeded only in dragging it to the edge of the deck before a second jerk seemed to make the yacht jump like a live thing. Broken metal [illegible].

The dispatch box went to the floor. Liane beforme was propelled headless into a corner. Monk thrown to his knees. Phinuit lifted out of his chair and dove prowling into the arms of Lanyard who possessed sufficient presence of mind to disarm Phinuit before that one [illegible] what he was about.

Of a sudden the engines ceased, and there was no more movement of any sort.

Lanyard had no means to measure how long that dumb suspense lasted. It seemed interminable. Eventually he saw Monk pick himself up and dash out.

As if he had only needed that vision of action to animate him, Lanyard threw Phinuit off, so that he staggered under the threat of his own pistol in Lanyard's hands. He lingered for a moment, then apparently realizing his [illegible], faded away into the saloon.

With a roughness dictated by the desperate extremity, Lanyard strode over to Liane beforme, fairly jerked her to her feet, and thrust her

He went to work swiftly then, in a fever of haste.

Stripping off coat and waistcoat, he took from the pocket of the latter the wallet that held his papers, then ripped open his shirt and unbuckled the money belt around his waist. Its pockets were ample and lined with trustworthy fastenings, and all but one, that held a few English sovereigns, were empty. The jewels of Madame de Montalais went into these as rapidly as his fingers could move.

Thus engaged, he heard a pistol explode in the saloon, and saw the polished writing-bed of the captain's desk scored by a bullet. A stream of bullets followed, one after another boring the [illegible] as if their consistency had been that of cheese.

Lanyard stepped out of their path and turned the partition while he finished stuffing the jewels into the belt and, placing the thin wallet beneath it, strapped it tightly round him once more.

Lanyard edged along the partition to the door, calculated the distance in the saloon from the angle at which the bullets were coming thru, and emptied the pistol he had taken from Phinuit at the panels as fast as he could pull the trigger.

There was no more firing.

He tossed aside the empty weapon made sure of Paquet's on his hip, approached one of the deadlights, placed a chair, climbed upon it, and with infinite pains maneuvered to wriggle and squirm a head and shoulder thru the opening.

After that he had to work his way round, inch by inch, until it seemed possible to drop into the sea and escape hitting the screw.

CHAPTER XXII

Finis

The windows in his suite at the Walpole commanded a southward vista of Fifth avenue, whose enchantment was so potent that Lanyard, on the first day of his tenancy, thought it could never tire. Yet by noon of the third he was viewing it with the eyes of soul-destroying ennui.

Three days before, immediately on arriving, he had cabled Eve de Montalais:

"Mission successful," he had wired—"returning France by La Savoie in five days, having arranged safe transportation your property—please advise if you can meet me in Paris to receive same or your commands otherwise."

And to this, silence only!

When the telephone did ring—toward noon of that third day, he fairly stumbled over himself in his haste to reach the instrument.

"Yes . . . Yes, at once."

His callers filed into the room with cheerfulness of mien, Liane Deforme first, then Monk, then Phinuit, rather bleached of color and wearing one arm in a sling; all very smart in clothes conspicuously new and costly as the avenue afforded.

The woman murmured blankly: "Mine?"

He said in a guarded voice: "Papers I found in the safe in your library, that night. You are unwise to keep such papers, Liane. Good-by."

Lighting the flap, the woman half withdrew the enclosure, recognized it at a glance, and crushed it in a convulsive grasp. For an instant she seemed about to speak, then bowed her head in dumb acknowledgement, and left the room.

Lanyard nodded to Mr. Murray, who amiably closed the door, keeping striking figures of contentment in prosperity.

"Be that as it may," said Phinuit—"here is the happy family reunited and ready to talk business."

"And no hard feelings, Monsieur Phinuit?"

"We don't want to pull any rough stuff on you, Lanyard.

"Rough stuff, monsieur? You mean, physical force?"

"Not exactly. I've got a couple of friends of mine from Headquarters waiting downstairs this very minute, ready and willing to cop out the honor of putting the Lone Wolf under arrest for stealing the Montalais jewels."

"But is it possible," Lanyard protested, "you still believe I am a thief at heart and interested in the jewels only to turn them to my own profit?"

"My God!" Lanyard pronounced in comic despair—"it passes understanding!"

"Now I, in my turn, have the honor to inform you that I have had relays of detectives waiting in this hotel day and night, with instructions to guard the doors as soon as you were shown up to my rooms."

"He's lying," Monk jeered, putting a restraining hand on Phinuit's arm.

"Madame!" Lanyard gasped—"Madame de Montalais!"

She entered with a gladness in her face that was carried out by the impulsive gesture with which she gave him her hands.

"My dear friend!" she cried happily—"I am so glad! And to think we have been guests of the same hotel for three blessed days and never knew it. I arrived by La Touraine Saturday, but your message, telegraphed back from Combs-la-Ville, reached me not five minutes ago. I telephoned the desk, they told me the number of your room and here I am!"

"But I cannot believe my senses!"

With unanimous consent Jules, Phinuit and Monk sprang to and made for the door, only to find it blocked by a substantial form.

"Steady, gents!" he counseled coolly. "Orders are to let everybody in and nobody out."

Grasping the situation, Eve de Montalais turned to the quartet of eyes that glimmered in a face otherwise quite composed.

"But how surprising!" she declared. "Madame la Comtesse de Lorgnes—Monsieur Monk—Mr. Phinuit—how delightful to see you all again!"

The civility met with inadequate appreciation.

"Nothing could be more opportune," Lanyard declared; "for it is to this lady, Madame de Montalais, and to these gentlemen that you owe the recovery of your jewels."

"But how can I thank them?"

"Well," said Lanyard, "if you ask me, I believe they would be most grateful to be permitted to leave and keep their numerous and pressing appointments elsewhere."

"I am entirely of your mind, monsieur."

Lanyard nodded to the man in the doorway—"All right, Mr. Murray"—and he stood indifferently aside.

In silence the three men moved to the door and out. Phinuit with a brazen swagger, Jules without emotion visible, Monk with eyebrows adroop and flapping.

But Lanyard interposed when Liane Deforme would have followed.

"A moment, Liane, if you will be so good."

She paused, regarding him with a somber and inscrutable face while he produced from his coat-pocket a fat envelope without endorsement.

The woman murmured blankly: "Mine?"

He said in a guarded voice: "Papers I found in the safe in your library, that night. You are unwise to keep such papers, Liane. Good-by."

Lighting the flap, the woman half withdrew the enclosure, recognized it at a glance, and crushed it in a convulsive grasp. For an instant she seemed about to speak, then bowed her head in dumb acknowledgement, and left the room.

Lanyard nodded to Mr. Murray, who amiably closed the door, keeping himself on the outside of it.

"That woman loves you, monsieur," she stated quietly.

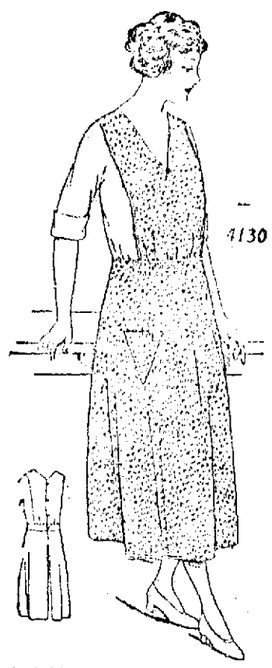

He succeeded admirably in looking as if the thought was strange to him.

"One is sure madame must be mistaken."

"Ah, but I am not!" said Eve de Montalais. "Who should know better the signs that tell of woman's love for you, my dear?"

THE END.

A SIN TO LET HAIR FALL OUT

35c "Danderine" Saves Your Hair—Ends Dandruff! Delightful Tonic

Hurry! It's your turn! Each day you see a little more hair falling out and you are making no effort to avoid baldness. What a pity. Falling hair means your hair is weak, sick—possibly dandruff is strangling it, or the hair root pores in the scalp are not firm and tight, thus wasting hair-growing oil.

Danderine almost instantly stops falling hair of men or women and cleans every particle of dandruff away, then the hair takes on new life, vigor and strength to grow strong, thick, and long.

Danderine is delightful—not sticky or greasy. Go to any drugstore now and get a bottle. Use it. Have healthy, heavy, beautiful hair and lots of it.—Adv.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

THE FAIRIES BEWITCHED

By Olive Roberts Barton

He saw a queer person striding through the sky.

Flap-Doodle, the purple fairy, who flew by his ears, flew up to the Beamy Gleamer Star.

"I've got the Fairy Queen's wand and I'm going to have some fun," said he to himself. "Those Twins are far away, down on the earth, and they can't catch me now.

"Let's see! I'll begin on all the people who have helped the Twins to chase me. This is my chance to get even."

He looked down at the earth far below and spied fat Mr. Tingaling, the fairy landlord, who collected rents in Whispering Forest.

"I'll begin with him," said Flap-Doodle. "He's a good friend of the Twins and I don't like him!"

So he waved his wand and said some words, and what do you think! Mr. Tingaling turned into a turtle.

"Now for Rubadub!" cried Flap-Doodle. "He's another friend of the Twins that I don't like. I'll turn him into a beetle!" which he did.

Then he turned nice Mr. Sprinkle-Blow into a rain-toad, and Mr. Scribble-Scratch, the fairy school-master, into a lizard, and Mr. Pim-Pim, the Brownie, into an angle-worm, and nice little Buskins, who ran the elevator in the apple-tree, into a spider. Wasn't he dreadful!

"Tee, hee, hee," he tittered delightfully. "I guess that's all! If I knew where the Twins were, I'd change them into bats, but I don't know where they are."

Just then he saw a queer person come striding thru the sky. It was Flippity-Flop in his magic boots.

"Here's a new one," said Flap-Doodle. "I never saw him before. He's got the biggest shoes I ever saw in my life."

Little did he guess that Nancy and Nick were inside those shoes.

CINDERELLA SALLY

Wonders!

Sally Begins to See at First Hand Miracles of New York

By Zoe Beckley

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SYLVIA, a photographer. She is now on her way to New York where her prize entitles her to a tryout in the chorus of the Manhattan Frolics. She is accompanied by MISS BENNETT, a newspaper reporter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The white perfection of the dining-car linen, the gleam and order of the table silver, the busy waiters, the bland well-dressed persons among whom they were traveling, the unnatural feeling of being served instead of serving, even the occasional curious glances of the passengers, made life seem thoroly unreal to Sally, but deliciously so.

She had whispered, in answer to Miss Bennet's invitation to "order anything you like—anything!" "Do you suppose they've got—oysters?"

The oysters arrived, cool and fresh, each in its half shell on a bed of ice. Sally gazed at them uneasily. Never before in her life had she seen oysters except in a stew, after they had arrived in sealed cans from the far distant salt water.

Furtively she watched the reporter, furiously she copied her use of the proper knives and forks. Miss Bennet saw, without seeming to, and tried to guess from Sally's quickness in learning what the life city would do to her. It seemed to Miss Bennet Sally picked things up with astonishing poise and cleverness.

As the train approached New York Sally grew more nervous. Almost literally she drew nearer Miss Bennet for when she felt a swift friendship and a great admiration.

"Darling dear," counseled the older girl, "think of things you don't understand as tho they were a newcomer to your town. You won't be a scared of them then."

It was a big order to give a foundling from a small town, a girl who had actually worked as a servant and as a store clerk, to treat the great city thus. But Sally meant to try. Better to fail from over-boldness than be crushed under a cause of insignificance.

She would take a deep breath, try not to look so slowly at what might frighten her, and do whatever she had to do with such concentration and sincerity that she would not think of anything else.

Towns followed one another faster,

SALLY CLUNG TO HER NEAR-ALLIGATOR BAG.

and grew bigger and bigger. When the train reached Newark, it seemed so huge to Sally that she felt it must be New York and reached for her imitation leather bag. Finally they did pull slowly into the great metropolis, so vast a place that no conductor announced it.

Sally clung to her near-alligator grip and would not let the red-capped porter take it, so lost she felt in the great splendid cavern of a railroad terminal.

Surely it must have been built for a race of giants! And this was what Miss Bennet had told her to treat as a newcomer in her town!

A taxi whirled them from the station. Sally turned pale at the whirl and thunder, the noise and wonder of the city, its juggernaut traffic, its tremendous unaccustomedness to itself.

Shopgirls chewed gum, so complacent were they, so scornfully critical—and these were the least of those before whom she would soon be placed in the glare of exhibition.

Sally's blood seemed turned to water. . . .

Little Children Brighten Homes

EVERY young couple starting out in life has visions of joyful hours spent before the fireside with healthy, happy children; but, alas, how often young women who long for children are denied that happiness because of some functional derangement which may be corrected by proper treatment. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is just the medicine for these conditions, as the following letters show:

Chicago, Ill.—"You surely gave women one good medicine when you put Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on the market. After I had my baby I was all run down and so nervous it kept me from gaining. My doctor did everything he could to build me up, then he ordered me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with his medicine and I am now a new woman. I have had three children and they are all Lydia E. Pinkham babies. I have recommended your medicine to several friends and they speak highly of it. You are certainly doing good work in this world."—Mrs. ADDITH TOMSHECK, 10557 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without this Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. FRED MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

Many such letters prove the reliability of

PROHIBITION LAW GIVEN ENDORSEMENT BY WOMEN IN LIMA CLUB MEETING

Woman Agent of Federal Dry Staff Is Speaker at Gathering

Decisive opposition to any loosening of the prohibition laws was voiced by the general committee of the City Federation of Women's clubs following an address by Miss Georgie Hopley, Bucyrus, at the home of Mrs M. M. Keltner, W. North-st, Saturday.

Seventy-five members of the committee present adopted the following resolution unanimously upon the motion of Mrs. W. E. Crayton.

"It is moved that this federation place itself on record as opposed to any loosening of the prohibition laws and unanimously in favor of the 18th amendment as it now stands and will at all times stand by and work for it."

Miss Hopley spoke on, "Responsibilities of Women of Today," delivering her subject in a forceful and striking manner.

Regarding prohibition, Miss Hopley said: "In every community, men and women have had an opportunity to know what prohibition means. They know that debts are more promptly paid, that families are better clothed and fed and that more money finds its way into the savings banks. The liquor traffic was destructive of much that was most precious in American life. In the face of the evidence on that point, what conscientious man would want to let his own selfish desires influence him to vote to bring it back?"

Miss Hopley, who is a member of the educational staff of Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, is a daughter of the late John Hopley, editor and proprietor of the Bucyrus Journal and the Evening Telegraph.

REPRESENTED OHIO WOMEN

Mrs Hopley represented the women of Ohio at the Paris Exposition and was also a member of the board Woman Manager at the Pan Exposition at Buffalo. In 1901 she was appointed special agent to examine Ohio workshops and factories.

In response to a plea sent to Mrs Beecher Moke, president of the federation, by the council of the Boy Scouts for cooperation, a Tag Day will be held October 14th under the auspices of the federation. Committee appointed by Mrs. Moke include Mrs I. B. Taylor, chairman; Mrs Glen Webb, Mrs Kent W. Hughes, Mrs Stanley Blanner, Mrs B E Simonton, Mrs Maud Mathews, Mrs Maurice Hotellier, Mrs R E Yoakam, Mrs Fred Becker, Mrs. H. S Moulton, Mrs. E. M. Botkin, Mrs C P Dilbone, Mrs. E L Kridler, Mrs O C Plummer, Mrs Howard Fletcher, Mrs F. L Foust, Mrs Clemens Woodruff, Miss Gertrude ... Mrs A D. Peters, Mrs. J B ... and Miss Mary Par...

At Saturday's meeting Mrs A. W. K... gave an interesting talk on "... Educational Movement of the Orient."

ALLEN-CO COURT AWAITS ACTION

Judge Becker and Jury Will Open Term Monday

Altho the settlement of several cases by agreement of counsel during the past week may leave a hole in the court calendar for the opening of the September term, members of the petit jury will report Monday, October 2, for duty in common pleas court.

Beside upward of 400 civil cases awaiting trial, the jury may try some of the 29 criminal cases created by the recent grand jury.

Two juries may get into action November 13 when a second common pleas court created to clear up the mass of pending litigation, gets down to business. A fresh panel will probably be summoned before that date, however, to provide replacements.

Conspicuous on the panel scheduled to report Monday are two women, Mrs Elizabeth G Mitchell, and Mable Breese, both residents of Lima.

Others summoned are: Delbert McBride, Elida; H. F. Griffith, West Cairo; O O. Weaver, Spencerville; Joe Meyers, Landeck; Ed Gast, Lima; Jesse C. Clements, Lima; William Balmer, Bluffton; Finley Davis, Lima; A C. Winegardner, Lima; James Baxter, Amanda-tp; C. E Stiles, Lima; S A. Brenneman, Delphos; W. A. Wagner, Lima, W. P. Cramer, Lima; J. I Heffner, Lima; M. C Crossley, Lima; C E Johns, Elida; Daniel Dimond, Lima, Carl Reis, Lima; C R Gordon, Lima, A. A Ditto, Marion-tp, Ralph Helmkamp Delphos

OHIO REBEKAH ASSEMBLY TO HOLD SPECIAL SESSION

The Twenty-second Special Session and School of Instruction of the Ohio Rebekah Assembly of District No. 17 will be held Wednesday, October 4, in Golden Gate lodge rooms, Main and Wayne-sts.

The morning session will open at 9 o'clock. Dinner will be served by the ladies of Trinity M. E church at noon. The afternoon session will open at 1 o'clock and will continue thruout the day.

Hope A. Bell, state president and Emma M. Bell, secretary, will be present. A large attendance is expected.

WAR DECLARED ON FIRE HAZARDS

SCHOOLS TO HOLD DRILLS

Proclamation Designates Week for Elimination of Dangers

Fire laddies in full uniform will desert their regular apparatus at regulated intervals Tuesday, and will scour the city for fire hazards

Such is the principal feature of Lima's observance of Fire Prevention week set by a gubernatorial proclamation for this week, John Mack, chief of the Lima fire departments has announced.

Mack's fundamental precept of fire fighting is to prevent the fire by eliminating the cause, he declares.

As a result, this feature of his work will predominate on the program he has outlined for the week.

The inspection will begin early in the morning and will continue thruout the day until every residence and business house in the city is visited Firemen will be empowered to issue orders deemed necessary by them to eliminate fire hazards wherever they are found

With the exception of a sufficient number of men at each station to man the apparatus maintained there, in case of fire calls, they will all be delegated to the task of inspecting the city.

In addition to this feature, Mack is paying especial attention to school buildings here. Because of the enormous enrollment and the resulting overcrowded conditions careful consideration will be given them, the chief said Fire drills and talks by the chief are on the program.

Mack urges all residents of the city to set this week aside for the express purpose of eliminating the hazards in properties they may own or occupy.

"If people would realize that 15,000 lives are lost every year in this country thru fires, they would pay more attention to the elimination of the danger," he said.

DECREE TO WIFE

Husband Threatened Her Life, Testimony Shows.

Threats made by Charles Ross 105 1-2 Pearl-st, to kill Mrs Grace Ross, and over-heard by neighbors, won a divorce decree for the latter in common pleas court Saturday.

Testimony presented by Mrs. Ross showed that she was forced to beg food from the neighbors, because of her husband's neglect.

She told the court that the defendant was addicted to the use of alcoholic beverages, and once when intoxicated brandished a razor and threatened to cut her throat. Witnesses also testified that Ross suggested that his wife get out and get money from other men.

The plaintiff is employed in a local cigar factory.

SEPTEMBER BUILDING PROGRAM HERE TOTALS 80 THOUSAND DOLLARS

This compares with $456,000 in August when the Lima Locomotive Works, Inc., addition was started. Miscellanous building in September was 35 per cent greater than in August.

Issuance of permits for the erection of 25 garages during the month was the outstanding feature. New home building was very satisfactory, however, considering the lateness of the season.

Permits issued Saturday included an $85 porch to be erected by G. W. Hamilton, 568 S Scott-st; a $110 garage to be built by Marie Mueller and remodeling of the home of Mrs J. N. Hyne, 731 Fairview-ave, valued at $175.

SALE RESTRAINED

Wife's Request Brings Order From Court.

An order restraining Dan Savu, 1306 Norval-av from selling, encumbering, or disposing of real estate held by him was obtained in common pleas court Saturday by Mrs. Mary Savu, who is seeking to divorce Savu, because of alleged misconduct.

Savu is owner of property at 1306 and 1308 Norval-av, and elsewhere in the city In addition he is said to have a weekly income of $35. The restraining order was asked to safeguard the alimony rights of the plaintiff

Mrs Savu places blame for her marital difficulties on attentions alleged to have been paid by her husband to other women She also recites he has made improper advances to women of good character

The couple were married in 1910, and have two children, Aurelia, 11, and John, S. who have been temporarily placed in the mother's care Alimony in a substantial amount is sought.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE IN CHARGE OF WOMAN

KENTON—Hardin-co claims the honor of having the first woman acting sheriff in the state, following the swearing in of Mrs. Ethel Pfeiffer here Saturday

She was sworn in as chief deputy by her father, Sheriff Elmer E Johnson, who is ill and unable to attend to duties of the office.

Mrs. Pfeiffer started straightening out the affairs of the office at once and when the court house opens Monday she will take active charge of the police work in the county.

ROADS ARE OPENED FOR TRAFFIC

Half of 110 Mile Program Placed in Use Saturday

TWO MILES IN ALLEN-CO

Brick Shipments Slow, Delay Progress Around Lima

Fifty-five out of a total of 110 miles of new road placed under construction in eight counties in North western Ohio last spring, were opened to traffic Saturday, it was announced from the office of Grover F. Clements, division engineer in charge

Of this total, but two miles in Allen co are ready for travel, it was also announced

Difficulty in obtaining materials is blamed for the apparent delay here The work at present, however, Clements explains, is not lagging behind It is progressing as rapidly as possible.

Three fourths of the total mileage in the county is so well along that another two or three weeks will see it completed.

BRICK DELAYS WORK

Failure of brick shipments to arrive is seriously hampering contractors on the Dixie Highway. On this account work is practically at a standstill. Where they can, contractors are finishing up their curbs, hoping their long awaited brick shipments will begin to roll in soon

Macadamized sections are in better shape Asphalt, which has been hard to secure is now more plentiful, and the work of surfacing the roads is going forward rapidly.

East of Lima the Marion-rd, a section of the Harding Highway, is two-thirds in. C. V. Rector, contractor has a big asphalt mixer, manufactured especially for him by the East Iron & Machine Co. The plant is set up at a convenient point and a fleet of 27 trucks is engaged in hauling the hot mixture to points on the road where it is to be spread

Surfacing of the Elida-rd, will be will under way during the coming week, Clements announced A half mile of paving on the Elida-Scotts Crossing section of the Harding Highway is being completed each week.

Opening of state roads in Allen and nearby counties during October and November will prove highly convenient to Lima football enthusiasts who plan to motor to games in other cities

INDORSED BY W. C. T. U.

CLEVELAND — The Ohio W. C. T. U. has given its formal endorsement of the candidacy of Judge Florence E Allen for the state supreme court, says an announcement from Judge Allen's headquarters here.

LIMA OFFICIALS WILL ATTEND CITY MEETING

Mayors and managers of Ohio cities will go to the annual convention of the American Society for Municipal Improvement at Cleveland this week determined to revive the League of Ohio Municipalities.

Letters from approximately 15 Ohio cities to C. A. Bingham, city manager, show that sentiment is fully in favor of the reorganization of the league

Cities have been fighting a losing bettle against the decrease in operating revenues Bingham believes, simply because they have not been banded closer together.

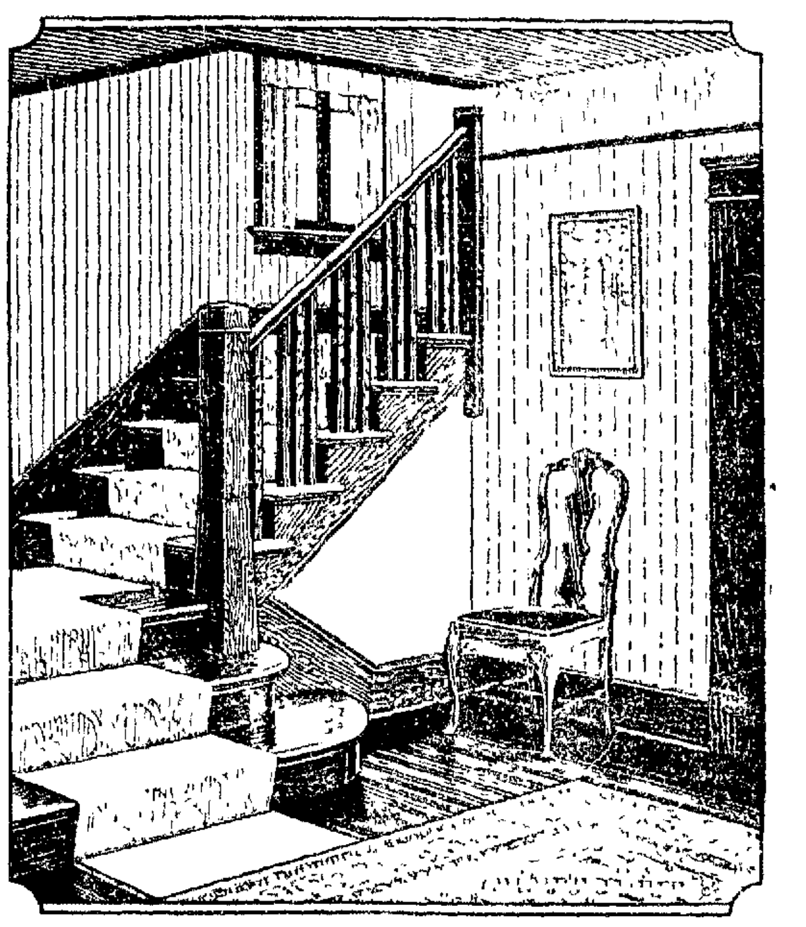

While it will be impossible for him to attend the meetings, Bingham believes that Mayor Harold Cunningham and several other city officials will be able to be there and represent the city.

MERRITT PRAISES NEW BUICKS

FOURTEEN MODELS IN LINE

Engineers Have Gone to the Very Heart of the Mechanism

By L. B. MERRITT
President Lima Buick Company

As remarkable as are the improvements in Buick body lines and appointments, they will be a small part of the 1921 achievement. The changes that have been made from an appearance standpoint are at once visible, but they only serve to indicate the great things that have been done to make the new Buick car more mechanically perfect.

Buick engineers have gone to the very heart of the mechanism. Nothing have they left undone to promote increased efficiency, greater accessibility and durability. Nor they have not overlooked refinements that improve Buick riding qualities, ease, smoothness and silence of operation.

All in all, each of the fourteen passenger models for 1921 is an unusual value—the greatest value Buick has offered in twenty years of successful and conservative manufacturing. There is no question but what Buick could dispose of the entire production for the new year at higher prices, but with the greatest production Buick has ever planned, prices have been established to permit Buick a reasonable profit and to pass on to the motoring public the benefits accruing from skilled engineering and scientific manufacturing.

The changes that have been made to improve the efficiency and life of the car are exceptional in their number and character. In the six-cylinder motor, for instance, the cylinder block has been raised and the pistons and connecting rods lengthened so that the pistons no longer overrun below the bottom of the cylinder at the lowest point of the stroke. The new pistons are machined with a tapered relief designed to insure a film of oil on the cylinder walls at all times.

The motor cylinder walls are now chilled by a special Buick foundry process which provides a hard surface where the cylinder walls are subjected to the greatest wear by the pistons.

The Six crankshaft is larger and harder babbitt is used in both the connecting rod and main bearings. Oil is supplied to the main bearings under pressure by individual pipe feeds.

Other bearings, such as the fan bracket bearing in the gearcase cover, have been given attention to prolong life.

The valve system has also been vastly improved. The push rod is now a combination of steel and aluminum which means that the valve will have the same clearance from zero to the boiling point. Felt has been placed around the valve stems inside the valve springs to carry oil for the valve stems and guides. More positive lubrication is also assured the front camshaft bearings by a new oil well.

The Buick specially designed clutch has also been improved. The clutch hub, for instance, is now a drop forging and the bearing surfaces are hardened, accurately machined and ground.

The electrical equipment has also received minute attention. The motor generator has a higher charging and cranking range and the brush holders have been improved, as well as more accessible oilers provided for the generator bearing.

The Six spring suspension has been modified so that the forward end of the rear spring is 14 inches nearer than the rear end. This results in lowering the car, reducing rebound and sidesway. The steering gear housing has also been changed to eliminate the possibilities of leakage of lubricant.

Changes in the Buick Four are similar to those of the Six. The bodies have been redesigned and a [illegible] sheet in the frame near the rear axle which permits the rear end of the car to be lowered.

It is really unnecessary to note the attention that has been given to the appearance of both the Six and Four. Upholstery trades have been made, incorporating added refinements such the practices that have made Buick the standard of comfort in general transportation for twenty years.

Out of the many lessons of Buick success developed the new line, fundamentally Buick, yet representing in everything that Buick has ever before offered the motoring public. Every change has put the revered name of Buick customers everything that it has been possible to do has been done to make Buick a better car.

The excellence of the complete line, combined with the astonishing prices has established a precedent not only in the history of Buick but also in the history of the motor car industry.

CLOSED CARS HAVE LEAD OF 40% OVER OPEN TYPES IN FRANKLIN SHIPMENTS

SYRACUSE, N. Y. "Shipment of Franklin closed cars are now running 40 per cent ahead of open," says H. H. Franklin, president of the H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Company, "and on some closed types we are sold into December. 55 per cent of our production for the year ending September 1 was closed cars, the sedan taking the lead.

"Despite the continued popularity of closed cars, however, there is still a heavy demand for open models and even at this season of the year when the demand for touring and other open models naturally slacks off somewhat, we are sold out a month ahead on these types."

HARVARD GIVES MAXWELL AUTO SEVERE EXAMINATION

Mason Laboratory, Sheffield Scientific School, Department of Mechanical Engineering, Harvard University, recently tested a road Maxwell purchased there by the Riever Motor Car Company, Maxwell Chalmers dealers, New Haven, Conn.

Of the results, Professor Lockwood, assistant professor of mechanical engineering writes our New York supervisor:

"Mr. N. L. Riever was optimistic about the performance of the Maxwell in advance of the test. The result proved that his anticipations were justified.

"Rolling friction of car, complete, 22 to 25 pounds is a low value, showing inch's frictional resistance. Based on weight of car, this is equivalent to 14 pounds friction per thousand pounds weight. The average value is 19 pounds for easy rolling cars with cord tires, and the lowest about 15 pounds.

"Grade in direct drive, 12.4 per cent is a high value. Only three cars on our list of one hundred tests have made 12 per cent grade in direct drive." (In this connection Prof. Lockwood mentions three high priced and very favorably regarded automobiles.)

"In general the performance of this Maxwell was excellent and reflects credit on the Maxwell engineering department for designing the car and on Mr. Riever for operating it to give a good test."

MANY CARS USED BY MASONS

Detroit Parade is Featured by Great Numbers of Cadillacs

The automobile played a prominent part in the parade of 40,000 Masons in Detroit prior to the laying of the cornerstone of the two million dollar Masonic Temple recently.

The day selected was the 129 th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the Nations capital, and the Masonic baton and trowel used by George Washington on that occasion, brought to Detroit by members of the Alexandria-Washington lodge, figured in the ceremonies that will be an outstanding incident of national Masonic history.

The new Temple, universally acclaimed as the most costly and architecturally the most impressive of all the shrines of Masonry, crowns many years of effort of local members of the fraternity, and the rites were attended by notables from many cities.

The parade from the old Masonic Temple to the site of the new building, with members of the various bodies following their lodge banner, and marching in close formation, 12, 16 and 20 abreast, took eighty minutes to pass a given point.

Cadillacs had been selected as the official cars and were used exclusively in the parade. A fleet of twenty five of them, of the seven-passenger touring model, fresh from the factory, carried guests of honor and officials members of the head of the columns marching on foot.

The leading car carried Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, Governor of Michigan Alex J. Groscheck, Congressman George P. Codd, and President of the District Masonic Temple Association Frederick A. Cook. It was followed by a phalanx of eight rows of Cadillacs traveling three abreast and carrying other guests of honor, grand lodge officials, Grand Commander William H. Wetherbee of the Knights Templar of Michigan and his staff, Grand Commander Leonidas P. Newby, of the Knights Templar of the United States, and officers of the grand chapter.

The national significance of the event was strengthened by the model and make of the cars chosen, which were the United States Army standard and ten passenger cars during the War. Ex-service men, acting as police, were United States uniforms.

President Harding, prevented from attending by the illness of Mrs. Harding, sent his personal friend and advisor, Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Navy, as his personal representative. As he laid the mortar, Mr. Denby was in possession of some of the most sacred relics of Masonry, wearing the apron and plying the trowel used by Washington when he took a similar part in laying the cornerstone of the National Capitol.

There had been installed a mimeo [illegible] There had been installed a mimeo under such circumstances. They carried the words of the speakers distinctly to the very outskirts of the throng of 200,000 massed in Cass Park, immediately in front of the Temple.

STUDEBAKER BIG-SIX IN 178 MILE DURATION RUN

Studebaker Big-Six economy was again demonstrated in a dramatic manner when a touring car made a run of 178 miles from Los Angeles to Arrowhead Lake and return and averaged nearly 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline. This was the record of the winner of a low-cost run in which nine Studebaker Big-Six touring cars participated. The record covered included a climb up the well-known Waterman canyon to an elevation of 6100 feet and the rules did not permit any coasting.

The cars were entered by Studebaker dealers of southern California and a silver loving cup was offered as a prize for the driver of the car which made the trip with the least expense for fuel.

The Long Beach entry won the prize with a total cost of $2.27 for fuel for the entire trip of 178 miles. This cost included an arbitrary assessment for one pint of oil, altho the gauge showed no perceptible decrease of level. The winning car averaged 19.77 miles per gallon and the average for all nine cars was 18.6 miles per gallon of gasoline.

RULES OF THE RUN

The rules of the contest required that the up-trip of 85 miles be made in four hours, and the winning car clocked in in three hours and forty minutes with heavy traffic conditions against it. As the cars could not exceed the speed limit and yet had to arrive within the stipulated time, it was up to the driver to choose an economical driving pace and thereby build up an artificial mileage record.

Each driver who took part in the contest declared that he could have made even a better showing if the rules had permitted him to coast down the hills where compression was not essential to safety. They also claimed that if the rules had allowed them to select the most economical driving speed for their cars they could have made still more remarkable records.

$23,743 WON IN SUIT AGAINST EASTMAN KODAK

ATLANTA, Ga. — A verdict awarding damages of $23,743.98 and attorney's fees of $5,000 to the Southern Photograph and Material Company of Atlanta, in its suit against the Eastman Kodak Company, has been handed down in federal district court here after three weeks of deliberation.

The suit, which alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, covered a period from 1910 to 1914, during which the local company charged the Eastman Kodak Company attempted to put out of business a number of Atlanta photographic supply houses.

HORSE IS KILLED BY LIONS

Armed Citizens of Mt. Victory Hunting Animals

MT. VICTORY. — (Special). — More than 100 heavily armed citizens of this village and the surrounding country left at dusk Saturday night to hunt down and slay the two lions which are terrorizing the neighborhood.

Discovery of the partly devoured carcass of a mule on the farm of Joseph Stiverson, four miles east of the village, has brought added fear to the citizenry. It is said the lions killed the horse.

Ten bands of 10 men each started out determined to sweep the country clean and bring about the death of the hunger-crazed animals before the town itself is invaded.

George Eastman, living near the Stiverson farm, saw the lions shortly after daybreak Saturday, and they have also been seen by Fred Donkley and James Black.

Until word has been brought that the animals have been killed, the villagers and farmers have been advised to stay close to their homes after nightfall. All livestock is also kept in tightly closed barns.

It is believed the lions escaped from one of the circuses passing over the Big Four railroad on their way into the southwest for the winter. No news as to any missing animals has been received, however.

Blowing of whistles and ringing of bells will signal success to the anxious citizens, it has been decided.

HOUTZ TO REMAIN ON BEAT, LANKER DECLARES

Traffic policemen now at work at Lima street intersections will remain permanent fixtures, Chief of Police T. A. Lanker announced Saturday.

His announcement followed reports of protests filed with Mayor Cunningham, against the removal of William Houtz from the traffic department to a beat and his replacement by Bruce Sodders, former patrolman on the corner previously guarded by Houtz.

Lanker announced the protests did not concern him. The change was necessary for the betterment of the department, he declared, and would remain permanent.

RUSH FOR NEW MOTOR GAS

By NEA Service

NEW YORK—Substitutes for gasoline are still being used to relieve millions of the gullible of their life earnings.

That the number of victims has not been reduced, in spite of recent disclosures, is maintained by Dr. Raymond F. Bacon, formerly head of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research of Pittsburg.

"In investigation of methods of charlatans and crack-brained inventors in the petroleum field," said Dr. Bacon, "it has been generally found that whatever motor fuel there was produced was put into the apparatus by some sleight-of-hand process."

PEAT FUEL

Motor fuel from peat has been the most popular goal of inventors. A useful oil can undoubtedly be obtained from peat, is Dr. Bacon's view, but it would cost several dollars a gallon. This has been the chief bait for the gullible and many have been caught in the net. Other kinds of fuel also have been "discovered," but they have all turned out to be impracticable or sheer frauds.

"Some of the inventors of gasoline processes foist upon the public a mixture of kerosene to which is added a little ether. The effect of the ether is to give a quicker ignition, but as this fluid is very costly, motor fuel of this kind really costs more than gasoline.

CHANCE FOR CHANGE

"Undoubtedly, cheaper substitutes for gasoline will be made eventually. At the present time there are mixtures of alcohol and tar oils which, altho more expensive than gasoline, have many good qualities.

"It should be borne in mind that all the large petroleum refining companies are spending many thousands of dollars in research work to find a lower priced motor fuel. Any inventor could interest the large corporations and reap a rich reward in royalties if he could convince them that his process would make gasoline at 18 or 20 a gallon.

"Any person who is considering the purchase of the patent rights of a process for making cheap gasoline would do well to consult a petroleum chemist."

BOND EXCHANGE ALLOWED

COLUMBUS — The state public utilities commission Saturday granted the Ohio Power Company and the American Gas and Electric Company authority to exchange $8,750,000 mortgage bonds bearing seven per cent securities.

BUICK VALVE-IN-HEAD OF 1906 LEADS PROCESSION

Sixteen years ago people used to stop and stare at an automobile; today these same people stop and stare when they see the styles of nearly two decades ago passing in front of them—and still running.

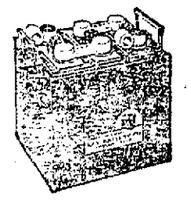

Atlanta, Ga., people proved that when they had an occasion to see a 1906 two-cylinder Buick, still hitting on all "two," leading a Prosperity Parade in that city.

The car which created a sensation in 1906 by its fine points, while outclassed today by the modern makes, still runs and is the prized possession of the Buick branch of Atlanta. The car was of a two-cylinder type with the engine under the seat and the gas tank up under the hood and the motor was cranked from the side of the car.

Following this car was a Buick Model 10 with a four-cylinder engine, with two speeds forward and driven by a planetary type transmission which after 12 years use runs fine. This car was followed by a six-cylinder one on which the present day models are based, while bringing up the rear was the latest Buick production in the sport car.

ALIAS THE LONE WOLF

Monk turned the keys, but all at once forgot his purpose and cocked his ears attentively to rumors of excitement and confusion on the deck. The instinct of the seafaring man uppermost, Monk softened, grew rigid from head to ...

"Monsieur! Monsieur!" Liane implored. "Open that box!"

The words were on her lips when the key thrown on her bed by a frightful shock which stopped the ... of it in full career. The woman cowered against Monk, dragging him bodily aside.

In time's ... snatching at the box. Monk succeeded only in displacing it to the edge of the bed before a second lurch seemed to make the yacht leap like a live thing under them.

The displaced box went to the floor. Liane Delorme was propelled headlong into a corner. Monk thrown to his knees. Phinuit lifted out of his chair as ... arms sprawling into the arms of Lanyard who possessed sufficient presence of mind to disarm Phinuit before the latter ... what he was about.

Of a sudden the engines ceased, and there was no more movement of any sort.

Lanyard had no means to guess ... how long that death suspense lasted. It seemed interminable. Eventually he saw Monk pick himself up and dash out.

As if he had only needed that vision of action to animate him, Lanyard threw Phinuit off, so that he staggered under the threat of his own pistol in Lanyard's hands. He lingered for a moment, then apparently realizing his ... fled away into the ...

With a resolve ... dictated by the desperate extremity, Lanyard strode over to Liane Delorme, fairly jerked her to her feet, and thrust her

He went to work swiftly then, in a fever of haste.

Stripping off coat and waistcoat, he took from the pocket of the latter the wallet that held his papers, then ripped open his shirt and unbuckled the money belt around ... waist. Its pockets were ample and fitted with trustworthy fastenings, and all but one, that held a few English sovereigns, were empty. The jewels of Madame de Montalais went into them as rapidly as his fingers could move.

Thus engaged, he heard a pistol explode in the saloon, and saw the polished writing-bed of the captain's desk ... by a bullet. A stream of bullets followed, one after another boring the ... panels as if their consistency had been that of cheese.

Lanyard stepped out of their path and ... the partition while he finished ... the jewels into the belt and, placing the ... wallet beneath it, strapped it tightly round him once more.

Lanyard ... along the partition to the door, ... the minute in the saloon from the angle of which the bullets were coming thru, and ... the pistol he had taken from Phinuit at the panels as fast as he could pull the trigger.

There was no more firing.

He tossed aside the empty weapon, made sure of Dupinot's on his hip, approached one of the deadlights, ... a chair, climbed upon it, and with infinite pains ... and squirm a head and shoulder thru the opening.

After that he had to work his way ... inch by inch, until it seemed possible to drop into the sea and escape hiding the screw.

CHAPTER XXII

Finis

The windows in his suite at the Walpole commanded a southward vista of Fifth avenue, whose enchantment was so potent that Lanyard, on the first day of his tenancy, thought it could never tire. Yet by noon of the third he was viewing it with the eyes of soul-destroying ennui.

Three days before, immediately on arriving, he had cabled Eve de Montalais:

"Mission successful," he had wired—"returning France by La Savoie in five days, having arranged safe transportation your property—please advise if you can meet me in Paris to receive same or your commands otherwise."

And to this, silence only!

When the telephone did ring—toward noon of that third day, he fairly stumbled over himself in his haste to reach the instrument.

"Yes . . . Yes, at once."

His callers filed into the room with cheerfulness of mien, Liane Delorme first, then Monk, then Phinuit, rather bleached of color and wearing one arm in a sling; all very smart in clothes conspicuously new and costly as the avenue afforded, striking figures of contentment in prosperity.

"Be that as it may," said Phinuit—"here is the happy family reunited and ready to talk business."

"And no hard feelings, Monsieur Phinuit?"

"We don't want to pull any rough stuff on you, Lanyard.

"Rough stuff, monsieur? You mean, physical force?"

"Not exactly. I've got a couple of friends of mine from Headquarters waiting downstairs this very minute, ready and willing to cop out the honor of putting the Lone Wolf under arrest for stealing the Montalais jewels."

"But is it possible," Lanyard protested, "you still believe I am a thief at heart and interested in the ... jewels only to turn them to my own profit?"

"My God!" Lanyard pronounced in comic despair—"it pains me understanding!

"Now I, in my turn, have the honor to inform you that I have had relays of detectives waiting in the hotel day and night, with instructions to guard the doors as soon as you were shown up to our rooms."

"He's lying," Monk ... put that a restraining hand on Phinuit's arm.

"Madame!" Lanyard ... gasped—"Madame de Montalais!"

She entered with a gladness in her face that was carried out by the impulsive gesture with which she gave him her hand.

"My dear friend!" she cried happily. "I am so glad! And to think we have been guests of the same hotel for three ... days and never knew it. I arrived by La Touraine Saturday, but your message, telegraphed back from Cherbourg-Redonde, ... me not five minutes ago. I telephoned the desk, they told me the number of your room and here I am!"

"But I cannot believe my ears!"

With unanimous consent Liane, Phinuit and Monk ... and made for the door, only to find it blocked by a substantial form.

Grasping the situation, Eve de Montalais turned to the quartet of eyes that glimmered in a face otherwise quite composed.

"But how surprising!" she declared. "Madame la Comtesse de Lorgnes—Monsieur Monk—Mr. Phinuit—how delightful to see you all again!"

The civility met with inadequate appreciation.

"Nothing could be more opportune," Lanyard declared; "for it is to this lady, Madame de Montalais, and to these gentlemen that you owe the recovery of your jewels."

"But how can I thank them?"

"Well," said Lanyard, "if you ask me, I believe they would be most grateful to be permitted to leave and keep their numerous and pressing appointments elsewhere."

"I am entirely of your mind, monsieur."

Lanyard nodded to the man in the doorway—"All right, Mr. Murray"—and he stood indifferently aside.

In silence the three men moved to the door and out. Phinuit with a brazen swagger, Jules without emotion visible, Monk with eyebrows adroop and flapping.

But Lanyard interposed when Liane Delorme would have followed.

"A moment, Liane, if you will be so good."

She paused, regarding him with a somber and inscrutable face while he produced from his coat-pocket a fat envelope without endorsement.

The woman murmured blankly: "Mine?"

He said in a guarded voice: "Papers I found in the safe in your library, that night. You are unwise to keep such papers, Liane. Good-by."

Lighting the flap, the woman half withdrew the enclosure, recognized it at a glance, and crushed it in a convulsive grasp. For an instant she seemed about to speak, then bowed her head in dumb acknowledgement, and left the room.

Lanyard nodded to Mr. Murray, who amiably closed the door, keeping himself on the outside of it.

"That woman loves you, monsieur," she stated quietly.

He succeeded admirably in looking as if the thought was strange to him.

"One is sure madame must be mistaken."

"Ah, but I am not!" said Eve de Montalais. "Who should know better the signs that tell of woman's love for you, my dear?"

THE END.

CINDERELLA SALLY

Wonders!

Sally Begins to See at First Hand Miracles of New York

By Zoe Beckley

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SALLY, an orphan girl, has won a prize ... newspaper beauty contest third ... winners of her town.

MARTIN, a photogra... She is now on her way to New York where her prize entitles her to a report in the ... of the Manhattan Frolics. ... is accompanied by ... BENNET, a newspaper report...

HOW TO GO ON WITH THE STORY

The white perfection of the dining-car linen, the gleam and order of the table silver, the busy waiters, the ... well-dressed persons among whom they were traveling, the unnatural feeling of being served instead of serving, even the occasional curious glances of the passengers, made life seem thoroly unreal to Sally, but deliciously so.

She had whispered, in answer to Miss Bennet's invitation to "order anything you like—anything:" "Do you suppose they've got—oysters?"

The oysters arrived, cool and fresh, each in its half shell on a bed of ice. Sally gazed at them uneasily. Never before in her life had she seen oysters except in a stew, after they had arrived in sealed cans from the ... salt water.

Furtively she watched the rest, furtively she copied her use of the proper knives and forks. Miss Bennet saw, without seeming to, and tried to guess from Sally's quickness in learning what the big city would do to her. It seemed to Miss Bennet Sally picked things up with astonishing poise and cleverness.

As the train approached New York Sally grew more nervous. Almost literally she drew nearer Miss Bennet, for whom she felt a swift friendship and a great admiration.

"Listen, dear," counseled the older girl, "think of things you don't understand as tho they were a newcomer to your town. You won't be so scared of them then."

It was a big order to give a foundling from a small town, a girl who had actually worked as a servant and as a store clerk, to treat the great city thus. But Sally meant to try. Better to fail from over-boldness than be crushed under a sense of insignificance.

She would take a deep breath, try not to look so slavishly at what might frighten her, and do whatever she had to do with such concentration and sincerity that she would not think of anything else.

Towns followed one another faster,

SALLY CLUNG TO HER NEAR-ALLIGATOR BAG.

and grew bigger and bigger. When the train reached Newark, it seemed so huge to Sally that she felt it must be New York and reached for her imitation leather bag. Finally they did pull slowly into the great metropolis, so vast a place that no conductor announced it.

Sally clung to her near-alligator grip and would not let the red-capped porter take it, so lost she felt in the great splendid cavern of a railroad terminal.

"Surely it must have been built for a race of giants! And this was what Miss Bennet had told her to treat as a newcomer in her town!

A taxi whirled them from the station. Sally turned pale at the whirl and thunder, the noise and wonder of the city, its juggernaut traffic, its tremendous accustomedness to itself.

Shopgirls chewed gum, so complacent were they, so scornfully critical—and these were the least of those before whom she would soon be placed in the glare of exhibition.

Sally's blood seemed turned to water.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

THE FAIRIES BEWITCHED

By Olive Roberts Barton

He saw a queer person striding through the sky.

Flap-Doodle, the purple fairy, who flew by his ears, flew up to the Beamy Gleamer Star.

"I've got the Fairy Queen's wand and I'm going to have some fun," said he to himself. "Those Twins are far away, down on the earth, and they can't catch me now.

"Let's see! I'll begin on all the people who have helped the Twins to chase me. This is my chance to get even."

He looked down at the earth far below and spied fat Mr. Tingaling, the fairy landlord, who collected rents in Whispering Forest.

"I'll begin with him," said Flap-Doodle. "He's a good friend of the Twins and I don't like him!"

So he waved his wand and said some words, and what do you think! Mr. Tingaling turned into a turtle.

"Now for Rubadub!" cried Flap-Doodle. "He's another friend of the Twins that I don't like. I'll turn him into a beetle!" which he did.

Then he turned nice Mr. Sprinkle-Blow into a rain-toad, and Mr. Scribble-Scratch, the fairy school-master, into a lizard, and Mr. Pim-Pim, the Brownie, into an angle-worm, and nice little Buskins, who ran the elevator in the apple-tree, into a spider.

Wasn't he dreadful!

"Tee, hee, hee," he tittered delightfully. "I guess that's all! If I knew where the Twins were, I'd change them into bats, but I don't know where they are."

Just then he saw a queer person come striding thru the sky. It was Flippity-Flop in his magic boots.

"Here's a new one," said Flap-Doodle. "I never saw him before. He's got the biggest shoes I ever saw in my life."

Little did he guess that Nancy and Nick were inside those shoes.

A SIN TO LET HAIR FALL OUT

35c "Danderine" Saves Your Hair—Ends Dandruff! Delightful Tonic

Hurry! It's your duty! Each day you see a little more hair falling out and you are making no effort to avoid baldness. What a pity. Falling hair means your hair is weak, sick,—possibly dandruff is strangling it, or the hair root pores in the scalp are not firm and tight, thus wasting hair-growing oil.

Danderine almost instantly stops falling hair of men or women and cleans every particle of dandruff away, then the hair takes on new life, vigor and strength to grow strong, thick, and long.

Danderine is delightful—not sticky or greasy. Go to any drugstore now and get a bottle. Use it. Have healthy, heavy, beautiful hair and lots of it.—Adv.

Little Children Brighten Homes

EVERY young couple starting out in life has visions of joyful hours spent before the fireside with healthy, happy children; but, alas, how often young women who long for children are denied that happiness because of some functional derangement which may be corrected by proper treatment. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is just the medicine for these conditions, as the following letters show:

Chicago, Ill.—"You surely gave women one good medicine when you put Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on the market. After I had my baby I was all run down and so nervous it kept me from gaining. My doctor did everything he could to build me up, then he ordered me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with his medicine and I am now a new woman. I have had three children and they are all Lydia E. Pinkham babies. I have recommended your medicine to several friends and they speak highly of it. You are certainly doing good work in this world."—Mrs. ADRITH TOMSHECK, 10557 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without this Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. FRED MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

LIMA DEALERS SHOWING NEW MOTOR CAR MODELS—LOCAL AUTOMOBILE NEWS

GARFORD COACH IN EXHIBIT

New City Bus to be Displayed at Chicago Convention

One of the largest industrial conventions held since the war—that of the American Electric Railway Association on the Municipal Pier, Chicago, October 2-6, will be attended by several local transportation men. Included among those who will go from here are Mr E. A Williams, Jr., J. A. Kraus, J. F. Bowman, G. C. Nicol, F. E. Borer, of The Garford Motor Truck Company who will have on exhibit during the Convention Week one of the new Garford City-Coaches and one City-Coach Chassis.

The fact that the electric railway industry generally now is engaged in rehabilitation work, making conference of the leading minds imperative, that there was no exhibit of materials and supplies at the Atlantic City Convention last year and that the meeting this year for the first time in many years goes to the Middle West, presage a gathering of 5,000 persons. One entire side of the mammoth Municipal Pier and all of its meeting halls will be utilized.

The story of transportation from the days of the Indiana runner to the present high speed electric car and the bus will be told in word and picture. All living past presidents of the Association, whose services go back to the horse-car days will talk, and a pageant showing transportation from Indiana runner, down thru prairie schooner, stage coach, high bicycle and horse car days will be staged on Michigan-ave and at the Pier on the opening day.

Leading subjects to be discussed are public relations taxes, and trackless transportation. Public relations are of unusual interest because of the increased number of lines which are trying to "tell their story" to the public thru frank dealing; taxes because many communities are recognizing the injustice of compelling electric railways to pay for pavement used chiefly by automobiles and carrying other burdens originally intended for horse cars; the trackless transportation because it involves the whole bus question. A special committee has been making a study of the bus situation for more than a year and its report will be one of the outstanding features of the meeting.

SEDAN WEEK FOR LOCAL FRANKLIN DISTRIBUTOR

SYRACUSE, Sept. 30 — During the week of October 8, according to notice issued today by the Franklin factory, the Franklin sales organization thruout the United States will devote its entire efforts to the showing and demonstrating of the Sedan, the Ace of the Franklin line.

When, in 1913, Franklin introduced to motoring America the first Sedan on regularly scheduled production, there were many who predicted that such a car would never be popular. They belonged, it has proved out, in the class with those who, in the earlier days, dubbed the automobile a plaything. Because, from that first year when Franklin built and sold thirteen Sedans, the demand for this model has grown remarkably with each passing season. Today over 50 per cent of the entire production of the Franklin factory, which covers over 34 acres of floor space, is Sedans.

In some of the large cities, the sale of Franklin Sedans has risen to a point where it is almost 90 per cent of the total sales. Of late years, country territories and especially the South have shown considerable increase in Sedan sales. In the opinon of Sales Manager Ackerman, this latter increase is due to the growing realization that this type of car, as produced by the Franklin Company, while affording both winter and summer protection against the elements also removes any limitations to roadability, thereby making the car the means of all-year-around transportation.

AUTO NOTES

Tire wear increases with speed.

Tighten up the steering gear regularly.

Advance the spark as the speed increases.

Dab some paint and varnish over bald spots.

If the car steers hard the front tires may be soft.

If the brakes do not hold use the engine as a brake.

5 Semi-Pneumatic Reason-Why Clinchers

1. One Piece Steel Base Pressed On
Only one-piece, steel base, hollow center truck tire. Fits all S. A. E. standard wheels. No flanges. No bolts.

2. Air Chamber Center
Provides throughout life of tire most of the cushion-like shock absorbing qualities of a pneumatic.

3. Grooved Tread
Reduces skidding to the minimum.

4. Side Blocks
Provide maximum traction in any and all conditions.

5. High Tread
Results in long-life service.

Different in five points of construction, they give different service in at least five points of superiority.

Come around and let us show you why Semi-Pneumatics, in a single year, revolutionized all motor truck operating standards.

Let us show you how the air chamber center makes it "Two Truck Tires in One." Much of the resilience of pneumatics added to the puncture-proof durability of solids.

If you cannot come, telephone us, and we'll come and prove to you that Semi-Pneumatics increase the operating range of your truck and decrease its operating cost.

PAIGE

The Most Beautiful Car in America

13 Models Backed by One Principle

The Paige and Jewett group of motor cars consists of thirteen distinct models—all Sixes—and ranging in price from $995 to $3350.

In this great field of choice there are standard open and closed models and very distinctive "specials" in a variety of colors.

So, no matter what your purse or fancy may dictate, Paige is prepared to satisfy it with the right car at the right price. Such is the advantage of a concentrated manufacturing policy.

But whether you buy a Jewett or a Paige—standard or special—it must be a Six. For that is the one principle of engineering recognized in this factory.

As to the wisdom of this policy, there can be no question among enlightened people. Paige builds Sixes exclusively because they are more economical, more comfortable, more dependable and most efficient. Sixes do beat fours.

The thirteen Paige-Jewett Passenger cars follow:

JEWETT—5-Passenger Touring, $995; 3-Passenger Roadster, $995; 5-Passenger Special, $1095; 4-Passenger Coupe, $1445; 5-Passenger Sedan, $1465. PAIGE—7-Passenger Touring, $2195; 4-Passenger Sport, $2245; 7-Passenger Special, $2395; 4-Passenger Special, $2445; 3-Passenger Daytona Roadster, $2495; 5-Passenger Coupe, $3100; 7-Passenger Sedan, $3155; Limousine, $3350.

Its known value inspires confidence in Cadillac Owners

In the first place, Cadillac dependability has been demonstrated over a period of years. This dependability is something more than is generally included in the meaning of the word. It embraces a degree of constant, unimpaired performance that has placed Cadillac in a distinct and separate class.

Secondly, Cadillac owners realize that in every new model this Cadillac dependability finds an even fuller expression. Type 61 represents the highest attainment Cadillac has thus far achieved.

Then, again, they know that leading automotive engineers in Europe and America have stated without reserve that Cadillac stands supreme as the world's leading motor car value.

Lastly and of equal importance to Cadillac owners is the fact that the American public by an overwhelming majority has conceded leadership to Cadillac. More Type 61 cars have been sold this year than all other cars combined selling at the Cadillac price or higher.

In view of these known facts, combined with their personal experience, could it be expected that owners would have other than the deepest confidence in their Cadillacs

TILES for the Bath; the More Tile, the Better it is

Tiles In The Home Beautiful

Tilings of floors and walls in good homes is the logical outcome of the aim to build homes more distinctively, more permanently, more healthful and easier to care for.

A most appealing point about tiled surfaces is the distinct originality and individuality of each effect. Tiles can be used in any room with the assurance that they will serve the purpose well.

Closed Car Luxury Unsurpassed

The 1923 Six Cylinder Seven Passenger Sedan—$2195

Lengthening the body, lowering the top and raising both hood and radiator have improved the streamline appearance made possible by the long wheel base, and added attractiveness has been given by the handsome nickeled drum-type head and cowl lamps.

The roomy Fisher built body is furnished in rich plush. Deep cushioned seats for five with two comfortable folding chairs accommodate seven grown persons with ample room for everyone.

The chassis has been improved materially and its easy riding qualities heightened by a new rear spring suspension.

In every detail of body, chassis and power plant, this Sedan has no superiors among closed cars of even greater price.

WHAT WE REALLY SELL IS SATISFACTORY TRANSPORTATION

A doctor sells health, and a tailor sells garments. You wouldn't care to patronize a doctor who sells merely pills, or a tailor who sells only cloth.

An automobile dealer sells transportation, so why think of him as one who sells only a car? We sell our customer satisfactory transportation. Our knowledge and experience lead us to recommend the splendid new Buick models. Our equipment for the service of Buick owners assures the desired result.

Pressure Lubricaton of Bearings

The center main bearings of the Buick Valve-in Head engine are lubricated by oil under a constant pressure from a gear pump insuring a film of oil at all times between the wearing surfaces. The pump also forces a volume of oil directly into the crank case at each connecting rod pocket making certain perfect lubrication of these bearings also.

GRAY GOOSE IN RECORD TRIP

Makes Fast Time From California to Detroit

From Los Angeles, California, to Detroit, Michigan, a distance of 2,947 miles in 92 hours and 15 minutes. So Gray Goose has just flown. In fact this flight just completed is in many respects the most extraordinary feat of endurance, speed, and roadability of the many record feats of the Wills Sainte Claire.

Two men in a dust coated Wills Sainte Claire Phaeton drove into the Wills Sainte Claire factory at Marysville on September 11th. They were A. A. Stubbs, of the A. A. Stubbs Motor Company, Wills Sainte Claire dealers at Whittier, Cal., and A. B. Marshall, of the Troy Motor Sales Company, Los Angeles.

They had come to Marysville to exhibit their record breaking "Gray Goose" and to have the car inspected after this gruelling test of stamina. The car was not only a standard stock car in every particular, but it had been driven ... miles before starting on this transcontinental dash.

Here are some of the outstanding facts taken from the journal of this trip. The average speed maintained for 2,947 miles was ... miles per hour. The average gasoline consumption—even at this consistently high speed—was 14.16 miles per gallon. The oil was changed every ... miles. ... [illegible] ... longest day's run was made on the excellent roads from La Junta, Colo., to Kansas City—a distance of 61... miles. This ... in the amazing time of 19 hours flat.

The only trouble of any kind whatever encountered in the entire trip of ... miles was a single puncture. ... A wild steer on the plains of Colorado voluntarily supplied a little incident that might be ... trouble ... at least for the ...

Evidently the steer didn't like the looks of Gray Goose. Maybe he had ... himself as a local traffic officer. Anyway he charged the car ... There was no turning or ... on the narrow road, and the Wills Sainte Claire was doing fifty miles an hour. The only chance was to ... and try to get past the belligerent steer before he reached the car in the center of the highway. They didn't quite make it. The steer ... down ... the rear fender. The Wills Sainte Claire didn't swerve. But that particular steer will never have in this life another run-in with a Wills Sainte Claire. That at least was ... settled.

The ... Wills Sainte Claire ... by Messrs. Stubbs and Marshall was taken into the service garage of C. H. Wills & Company and given a thorough inspection. Not only were no repairs of any kind necessary but literally not an adjustment.

After filling the car with gasoline ... their story and receiving the congratulations of Marysville ... the ... on ... flyers turned Gray Goose westward and headed for home.

SINGLES TITLE WON BY VOSS

Voss won in straight sets, 6-1 and 6-4 by clever placements and his opponent's error The games were much hard fought than the score would indicate, many games going to deuce.

The courts were in poor condition, a quarter on an inch of dust covering them, and both players were bothered by erratic bounces.

The finals in the doubles tournament will probably be played next week, with Stolly and Dixel and the team of Schmidt and Chew the victories to come thru for the finals.

WILL FORM CAGE, PIN LEAGUES

Organization of industrial, church and Sunday school basketball leagues on the same plan as last year is announced by J. G. Maxwell, physical director of the Y. M. C. A.

The church loop attracted more interest than the other leagues last season, being composed of teams from the Grace M. E, Calvary, Reformed, South Side Church of Christ, United Brethren and Baptist. Grace led the scramble at the end of the season

With teams from the Loco, Garford and other plants available, the industrial circuit is expected to outrival previous seasons.

Business men's bowling league will open this week at the "Y" and the industrial pin loop is scheduled to begin October 16. Organization of a church league is also promised by Maxwell.

SOUTH DEFEATS BLUFFTON; CENTRAL LOSES

SCORE IS 20 TO 0

SOUTH high school romped thru the vaunted Bluffton grid ranks at South field Saturday afternoon and won its third consecutive game, in all of which the husky Lima eleven held opponents scoreless. The score yesterday was 20 to 0, South tallying three touchdowns and two points after touchdown.

Good work of Coach Burdette's backfield again became apparent to the 1,500 spectators who crowded the athletic field. It worked beautifully behind the strong offense and defense put up by Captain Berger and the remainder of the line.

South scored its first six points in less than five minutes after the local kickoff, Bluffton's defense yielding to the hearty plunging by the local backs. Those first five minutes established the keynote of the entire fray, Bluffton seeming to wilt while South took on added confidence.

PASS FAILS

A long forward pass from Fisher to Emans, carrying from Bluffton's 40 to 15-yard line, almost resulted in an earlier touchdown, but Emans, who had a clear field ahead of him, stumbled and was overtaken by Bluffton's charging left tackle, Murray. Emans fell on the ball.

In two downs South edged to the Bluffton goal and then Fullback Dupere slipped thru for the first points. Captain Berger's first attempt for a point after a touchdown failed, Bluffton blocking his kick. His two later efforts, however, were beautifully boosts over the bar.

Berger's kickoff carried almost to the Bluffton goal, but the visitors managed to carry the pigskin to their 15-yard line. Stratton, Bluffton right halfback, plunged five yards thru center, the South line repelled two energetic bucks and Bluffton lost the ball on its 10 as the quarter ended.

It required only two minutes for South to pierce the opposing line for the second touchdown, Fisher carrying the ball. Berger's kick from placement brought the score to 13 to 0.

GOOD BLOCKING

Barrington, Williams and Berger, South's ring wing trio, halted Bluffton's backs in two desperate attempts around their side after Bluffton carried the ball to midfield following the kickoff. Emans plucked a long pass out of the air and then Bluffton's quarterback, Pogue, punted to Fisher on Lima's 30-yard line. Fisher carried the ball 12 yards before pulled down.

At this juncture South drew one of Referee Hoffman's numerous penalties, being set back 15 yards for what he claimed was unnecessary roughness. Bluffton punted and Fisher carried the ball 25 yards. On the third down South lost the ball on an attempted pass.

Pogus punted to midfield, Fisher trapped the oval. The Bluffton line held on South's first plunge, but the two following gave the Lima team six yards. Berger's onside kick carried to Bluffton's 20 and the ball was taken by Crossen, who was pulled back several yards from the point where the ball was taken. The quarter ended with Pogue making a daring attempt around South's left and being injured when projected against the fence.

MANY PENALTIES

Bluffton kicked off to South's 20. Both lines were pulled back after slight advances by penalties and South finally cleared out of its own territory when Berger booted the pigskin to midfield. The visitors line yielded but little and Berger punted to the opposing 15-yard line.

At only one stage in this period did Bluffton display good form. That occured when Berry snared a pass on his own 10 and with good interference ran 30 yards around South's left end, but luckily Fisher hopped in and captured the ball when the Bluffton fullback lost it after being tackled.

The pigskin was again worked into Bluffton's danger zone The third quarter whistle halted proceedings a minute and South had not trouble pushing over in the first few seconds of the last period. Berger's third attempt for the extra point was the best, the oval sailing over beautifully.

SECOND TEAM IN

The last quarter indicated the strain under which Bluffton was working. The players were fatigued and South also gave indications of tuckered out. In the last few minutes of play Burdette ran in the major part of his second team and the youngsters, mostly all freshmen, kept Bluffton from scoring, although the later strove desperately to take advantage of the stars-to-be.

South's next game will be at Findlay Saturday. Word was given out last night that Weldon Winegardner, right halfback, injured in the first game against Van Buren two weeks ago, will be back in the line-up for the Findlay game. Lineups and score:

LIMA ELKS' GUN CLUB PLANS OTHER SHOOTS FOR FALL

Having successfully won the first of the annual series of prize shoots Friday, the Lima Elks' Gun club is figuring on several more to follow within a few weeks. They will terminate late in fall in the big pork shoot.

Keen competition that developed Friday lead to the belief that Lima will be the Meeca for hundreds of Ohio marksmen in the near future.

Shooting of C. O. Carothers of Kenton and Dr. N. V. Noble of St. Marys was keen. Both are champions in their district. In the 20-bird shootoff, Carothers defeated the doctor by only one point, smashing 20 pigeous for a clean record against Noble's 19.

John Reed of Lima was the runner-up. He copped the honors confined to Allen-co. Carothers also took the doubles event.

KRAMER AND BIBLE ARE INJURED

GROVE CITY, Pa. — Sam Kramer, former Erie Central High full back and last season at Grove City, injured his right knee last basketball season, and the old injury is bothering him quite a little this fall. Kramer's injury, altho not of a serious nature, handicaps his playing to no little extent. That this trouble has arisen has been a keen disappointment to Coach Williamson.

It is probable that Coach Williamson will use Kramer for cases of emergency until his knee fully recovers from its present injury. The intensive scrimmage periods which have been prescribed by Coach Williamson have taken their toll in several instances where minor injuries have resulted. Captain Bible has been nursing a sore knee also.

Both Bible and Kramer were taken over to Bonesetter Reese in Youngstown. The bonesetter stated that nothing was out of place in either instance and ordered rest and care for the injured members. Everything considered, the squad as a whole has been mighty fortunate in getting thus far thru the pre-season training without any serious accidents.

TAKE UP TUSSLING

TIGERS DROP JOHN HOPKINS UNI

PRINCETON, N. J — Princeton Tigers met the Johns Hopkins eleven here Saturday and completely outclassed the southerners in a one-sided contest that ended in a score of 30 to 0.

The Princeton goal never was in danger, even tho Coach Roper used but three letter men in his line-up and made frequent changes to see how some of his new material looked in action.

Four touchdowns and a drop kick accounted for Princeton scores while Cleaves and Gray of the Tigers made things interesting for the visitors by staging some sensational runs.

OPENER GOES TO HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass — Playing under a broiling sun, Harvard opened its 1922 football season in typical baseball weather, trampling down the resistance of middlebury College by a score of 20 to 0.

The most spectacular play of the game occurred when Karl Pfaffman intercepted a forward pass and scored a touchdown after a 75 yard run in the second half.

O'HEARN STARS AS YALE DOWNS TECH

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Yale won the second football game of the season in the bowl here Saturday afternoon, before a crowd of 20,000 spectators by defeating Carnegie Tech 13 to 0.

O'Hearn, Yale quarterback, pulled the feature of the game when he booted over a drop kick from the 52-yard line

Diegel, Mitchell In Southern Golf Tie

NASHVILLE, Leo Diegel, of New Orleans, and Abe Mitchell, of England, finished in a tie for first place in the fourth annual southern open golf championship here Saturday. They scored 280.

Announcement was made Saturday night that these two would play 36 holes Sunday to decide the winner

DEMPSEY IS BACK

NEW YORK—Jack Dempsey was back yesterday from a hunting trip in the Maine woods, where he bagged among other game, a 700 pound moose. Dempsey, pronouncing himself fit and ready to meet Battling Siki, conqueror of George Carpentier, or any other rival for his title, plans to resume exhibition work after a week's rest. He is scheduled to box in Boston October 7 and in Toronto October 9.

STATE IS SET FOR OPENER

COLUMBUS — With the first game in their brand new million dollar Stadium now less than a week off, Ohio State University grid candidates will be called upon to let out another notch in practice sessions for the next four days. Next Saturday Ohio Wesleyan will make its annual invasion.

At this stage of the season, Buckeye prospects for the strenuous Western Conference campaign ahead are problematical. The veteran remnant of last year's near-championship outfit is pretty well concentrated in the backfield. New linemen will begin to brand their identity into the minds of the fan flock next Saturday.

The way Dr. Wilce has been juggling his material, particularly in experimenting with ends, it's a guess at best who will start the first game in the Stadium. Captain Pixley, 249-pound guard is of course a certainty at one guard. Pauley, another veteran, is the best bet at center, while "Tee" Young, last year's center, will be found at a tackle. Petcuff at tackle, Kutler at guard, Elgin, Florette, Schmeinsberger of Honaker at ends are starting possibilities along the line.

Several combinations are possible in the backfield. N. Workman, H Workman, Michaels and Isabel may be the starting quartet, but if so they are certain to yield during the game to Blair, Hamilton, Klee, Moorehead, Farcasin, Harter, Cameron, Shafter and others

Ahead of Saturday this much can be said. Whatever combination Dr. Wilce decides to start against Wesleyan, the line will not lack for weight. The average from end to end is certain to hover around 190 pounds.

MANY OFFERS FOR GROSS

Jake Gross, Lima's pugilistic pride and Southern featherweight champion, is in much the same position these days as a favorite debutante at her coming-out party

In both cases superabundance of proposals is noted, but they differ. In the case of the fair one they are propositions to settle down and in Jake's case proposals to shake 'em up

Terre Haute; Ind., Louisville, Ky., Toledo and Lima are the cities that are bidding for Jake's services. The first wants him October 13, the Moose want him here October 17 for their card and Louisville and Toledo seek him for October 23

According to intimation given out by Smith he may take Gross to Louisville October 23. His opponent has not yet been named. Two clubs in the Kentucky burg are after him, one of them later than October 23.

It looks more and more like Willie Ames, the long-nosed Akron slugger, will be the main attraction with Gross on the Moose bill Nothing definite has been decide, however, the boxing commission having failed to act on permits.

While occupied with Gross' affairs, Smith is not forgetting that his star welterweight, Red Young, needs work Red is as good as set to box Speck Kasler, the Delphos pride, in the Moose show.

Since Young last met Speck the Delphosian won a newspaper decision over Clyde McHenry, the Hoosier boy who gave Red considerable trouble before his finally land him away at Kokomo, Ind.

Smith is receiving some offers for Young, but is holding off a while in order that he will be given a worthwhile and continuous program once he gets started.

Jimmy Andrews, the bantam in the Smith stable, is sought to fight Oscar Kopf a Cincinnati. The bout would be just the step needed to advance Jimmy from the younger class into a full-fledged bantam.

THORPE AT KENTON

KENTON -Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete who is piloting the Marion football team, will bring his gridders here October 11 for a game with the Kenton Wild Cat. The local team will secure the Lincoln brothers, Chum, a W. & J. college star and Brandy, pitcher for the Milwaukee Brewers, to play in the game.

GAME TO BUCYRUS

CENTRAL'S expert blocking and hard tackling failed, Saturday, to stop the strong Bucyrus high school team from sailing thru for a touchdown and a 7-0 victory.

The game taken from the standpoint of hard fighting was the best played on a Bucyrus field according to fans there First one team and then the other would make a good gain only to lose the oval on downs.

Central's downfall is still a big puzzle to Lima fans who saw the game Their usually good tackling and blocking was away off many of the players missed tackles which they would ordinarily have gotten hold folded Probably overconfidence was the main reason, as the boys were so sure that they were going to be victors that they went into the first half and found themselves able to do nothing.

Bucyrus won the toss up and decided to kick off Burdette receiving the kick off on his own 10 yard line. Central tried many line plunges and after finding the Bucyrus forward line impenetrable, they resorted to end runs Central looked good here until the Bucyrus secondary defense started to break thru and break up these end runs.

Ellis Michael gave the Bucyrus boys a run for their money when before across the right side of the field and a lucky tackle alone prevented him from scoring a touchdown. He made 30 yards on the play. Both teams punted up and down the field until with the ball on Central's 40-yard line Harris passed to Smith, who ran 20 yards for the lone counter of the game Harris place kicked for an extra point after the touchdown.

From then until the last quarter the game was a punting duel between the Central quarterback, Burdette and Harris, the opposing fullback. They were even on the punts altho Burdette's produced better results because of the good height and spirals which he put on them.

Coming back in the second with the determination to do or die, the teams see-sawed about the field in the third quarter but in the last frame the Central boys put up a brand of fighting which brought the fans to their feet for the wonderful spirit being displayed.

Playing like the proverbial demons Central put every ounce of energy it could muster into the game in order that they might win. Thrice the Red and Greens were within the 10 yard line in the period of ten minutes but thrice they failed, altho fighting miles farther than the last ditch

With only a few minutes to play Unger, Bucyrus captain, was removed from the game for slugging and the ball given to Central in the middle of the field.

With only two minutes to play Seeley came back for a punt but the referee did not notice that Lones was back of him. Seeley punted and Lones like a flash of lightning was down under the oval and after catching it ran ten yards, bringing the ball to his own 26-yard line. The play was really an onsides punt but the referee would not allow it and soon after the final whistle blew.

Central will take on the Van Wert team next Saturday and is resolved to make up for the hard defeat of yesterday Lineups for both teams were as follow

CARP BEGINS ANEW

PARIS—"Now I am ready to begin again in a few months, for I am far from giving up boxing," said Georges Carpentier, in an interview published in Le Journal, regarding his defeat last Sunday by Battling Siki.

"On the contrary," he continued, "what has happened to me has made me want all the more to box as often as possible and to win. It was my own fault that I was beaten. Descamps (his manager) admitted it yesterday at the meeting of the boxing federation, where he filed no claim."

Witt, Stengel Compared

WITT, NEW YORK AMERICANS
Witt is one of the fastest runners in the majors going down to first base. After reaching first he doesn't use his speed to its best advantage.

Witt is a good outfielder, but not a great one. He is a fair judge of distance [illegible] a trifle uncertain on the [illegible] His arm is about the [illegible]

At the bat Witt is a hard man to pitch to. He usually works the pitcher to the limit. I would rate him a good hitter. He is a past master at the art of bunting. He is away with the tap of the bat and his great speed makes it difficult to throw him out if the bunt is half good.

* * *

STENGEL, NEW YORK GIANTS
Stengel with Cunningham is used in center field for the Giants as a [illegible] combination. Stengel was [illegible] uncertain [illegible] last season. This year when the Giants were hard pressed [illegible] he jumped into the [illegible] and has played great ball for McGraw.

Stengel is a left handed batter. He is used by McGraw against right hand pitching. He has batted well over .300 all season. Always a good fielder, the veteran Stengel continues to play a very neat game in [illegible]

GIANTS HAVE EDGE IN FOUR WAYS--RICKEY

BY BRANCH RICKEY
Manager St. Louis Cardinals

SINCE the New York clubs will be the world series contenders, let it be said right off the bat that any comparative estimate of the strength of these clubs is as likely to be wrong as right, if said estimate gives a decided advantage to either team.

However, in the different departments of the game, the two teams are very unequal.

Suppose the game to be divided into the six departments of hitting, speed, run making, reserve strength, fielding and pitching. This fairly covers the game and in these six departments the Giants have a marked advantage in four, one is a toss up and the Yankees hold a decided edge in the sixth.

Offensively the Giants lead. The team has a batting average of .310 to the Yankees' [illegible]. The Giants also have a better percentage of extra base hits on the basis of an equal number of safe drives. Ruth's prowess as a slugger has somewhat set up the Yankees as the extra base wallopers of the league, but the Giants will lead by the end of the present season by approximately [illegible] bases.

BEST RUN MAKERS

In run making the Giants lead easily on the basis of equal number of hits and have a comfortable margin if the run making ability is computed on the basis of an equal number of extra base hits.

To be sure in comparing the clubs as to batting and run making these are not all the factors to be taken into consideration in determining superior offensive strength.

Assuming these extraneous factors to be equal, the Giants at bat are clearly superior to the Yankees—judged on the present season's work.

DOESN'T PROVE ANYTHING

The fact that the Giants have stolen about twice as many bases as the Yankees does not in itself prove superior speed. That may be due to different method of attack and managerial tactics. However, Groh and Kelly and Bancroft and Frisch will gallop across the plate in [illegible] the Yankee infield made up of Scott and Ward and Pipp and Dugan.

In the outfield the Meusel boys [illegible] about equal in speed. Young and Witt compare favorably while Ruth and Meusel, as running outfielders will be about the [illegible] Smith is faster than either Smith or Snyder.

Schang is the ace of the Yankees' catching staff. Either Snyder or Smith can take care of the catching for McGraw.

Rawlings as utility infielder, ranks in versatility and batting and fielding with most first-string infielders in the country. He is tricky, game and aggressive.

McNally is faster than Rawlings, and Baker will outhit him, but both cannot play the same position at the same time.

GIANTS ARE FAVORED

So in this department the Giants are to be favored.

In fielding, each club is the best in its league.

McGraw has lost Douglas—a great if not the greatest pitcher in the 1921 world series.

Huggins has added Jones and Bush to an already strong staff of pitchers, made up of Shawkey, Mays and Hoyt.

TWO GREAT HURLERS

In Barnes and Nehf, McGraw has two great pitchers and Barnes' performances against the Yankees in two games last fall will make him seriously regarded by the Yankees when he walks out on the field for his first game this October.

Rommel Is Real Find For Mack

As a developer of players the Athletics' tall leader is in a class by himself. On practically every American League club there is some star player who received his early schooling under Mack.

Once upon a time the fans could talk about nothing but Connie's famous $100,000 infield composed of McInnis, Barry, Collins and Baker.

GREAT PITCHING TRIO

American League batters were happy when these three stars lost their effectiveness and passed out of the big league picture.

The Athletics of today boast of Edwin Americus Rommel, the pitcher with a thousand and one deliveries. He has 27 wins to his credit.

American League statistics have recorded the deeds of the Bush, Urban Shocker, Hoyt, Faber and other pitchers belonging to first division and pennant clubs, but what about a pitcher on a tail end eighth place winning as many games as the leading pitcher of the pennant winner.

THEN THERE'S ROMMEL

There's the case of Rommel.

For Rommel with the Athletics has won as many games as Bush with the Yankees.

Rommel blew into the American League without any brass band reception. Like a flock of other minor league kids he reported to Connie Mack in the spring of 19[illegible] at the training camp at Brownsville, Tex.

A year before he had been turned down after a brief trial by John J. McGraw, but Mack, trying to rebuild a pennant machine, was willing to gamble with anything and Rommel was one out of a lot of 20 young pitchers that spring.

BEST IN THE LEAGUE

But gradually he perfected this freak shoot until today he is regarded as the greatest pitcher in the American League.

For a pitcher with a second division club to be voted the second most valuable player in the league there is unusual glory and Rommel in the vote of eight baseball writers ranked next to George Sisler.

FORM MERCHANTS' PIN LEAGUE

Reorganization of the Lima Merchants Bowling league is under way with six teams already promised. The indoor loop will be planned along the same lines as last season except that there will be eight teams instead of six. The league will bowl at the K. of C. alleys.

Two more teams are invited to make application for entry. Call at Crawford's Bootery.

ARE HARD WORKERS

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — "I want nothing but hard workers and hard fighters on my football team," said Head Football Coach James Phelan to his Purdue football squad during the early days of practice and since that time the belief has grown that if nothing else, Purdue will have the hardest working and hardest fighting eleven in the history of the university.

EYEBROWS BETRAY TRUE CHARACTER

By MARIAN HALE

Paris recently held a contest to find the woman with the most perfect pair of eyebrows.

Mademoiselle Myrtle May won the first prize because of the extraordinary length and slenderness of her brow, while the alluring quality of her dark, oriental ones won second place for Mademoiselle Estelle Gresso.

Thousands of girls were in the contest and thousands were eliminated because they had followed the present fad of plucking or shaving the eyebrows to attain the slender penciled effect.

The artists who judged the beauties said the practice destroyed the natural beauty of the eye, and took away the character from the face.

Mrs. Martha Schaffner, head of the beauty parlor of the Pennsylvania Hotel, New York, who studies women from all parts of the country, says that plucking the eyebrows has ceased to be a fad, but has become an established practice.

TAKES FROM CHARACTER

"Practically every woman we treat has her brow shaped into the line she prefers. I will not say that this destroys the natural beauty of the face, but it does take away a little of the character.

"You can tell much about a woman's disposition and natural tendencies by studying the eyebrows," she continued.

"When I see a woman with heavy clearly marked eyebrows, I know she has physical vigor and exceptional powers of observation and perception.

"Thin eyebrows tell me a woman is physically weak and vacillating in her opinions. She'll never take a firm, decided stand on any matter and stick.

WHAT SMOOTHNESS SHOWS

"Even, smooth hair indicates evenness of thought and orderly mental habits.

"When each hair seems to have a different idea as to direction the owner is apt to be erratic, temperamental and moody.

"Full, bushy eyebrows proclaim the genius, particularly if there is considerable width between the eye and brow.

"Arched eyes are paradoxical—they seem always to be asking a question, but in reality they are taking everything on faith, believing implicitly what is told to them. They usually lack a sense of humor, and are seen as followers rather than leaders in thought.

TREACHEROUS SIGN

"A treacherous nature is often betrayed by eyebrows drawn down on the inner corner toward the nose, following a waved line over the eye.

"Bushy eyebrows, slightly curling, are frequently outward manifestations of an irritable nature and a hot temper. The owner is usually very positive and opinionated and often intolerant.

"Love of argument registers itself in the brow drawn down on the outer corner.

"Perhaps one reason women pluck their eyebrows is that their characteristics may not be too easily read. They all love to create mystery, you know."

POLITICS SOON TO CLAIM STAGE

WOMEN BEING ORGANIZED

Democrats See Sweeping Victory Ahead in Allen-co

Allen-co politics, simmering thru September days, are commencing to boil.

Active preparations are on foot in both Democratic and Republican camps to launch a drive for voters which will gather force thru October ending with a grand finale on the eve of election November 7.

So far candidates have confined themselves to merely soliciting the support of such voters as they meet daily.

From now on they will extend their canvas until the voters in the most remote sections of the county are fully informed that there will be an election November 7.

TO POST PLACARDS

Thousands of cards are ready to be handed to the voters, and hundreds of others will soon blaze forth from convenient fence posts, telephone poles and buildings.

No public meetings have been held by either party in this county to date and none is planned for the coming week.

Organization of Democratic women voters is proceeding under direction of a committee headed by Mrs. Jesse J. Mullen, 1168 W. High-st.

Predictions of a sweeping victory for both state and county tickets in Allen-co were made Saturday by Lehr E. Miller, Democratic chairman.

DONAHEY COMING

Democratic Gubernatorial Candidate to Be Here October 12.

Allen-co Democrats will have the opportunity to see and hear Vic Donahey, of New Philadelphia, their choice for governor October 12, according to a message received from Columbus Saturday by Lehr Miller, chairman of the Democratic county committee.

Information regarding arrangements for the visit to Lima, contained in the message were very meager, and Miller was unable to state whether Donahey would be here during the afternoon or night.

If weather conditions permit, the meeting may be staged out of doors, provided an afternoon meeting is held.

Donahey's visit to Lima will be part of a tour of this section of the state, it is announced.

SHRIDER BANKRUPT

George F. Shrider, laborer, 200 1-2 E. McKibben-st, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the federal court at Toledo. Liabilities of $1,068.75 are covered by only $100 in assets, his petition recites.

City officials have been invited to participate in the Muncie-Lima-Fremont Way conference to be held at Findlay October 12, C. A. Bingham, city manager, said Saturday. It is believed it will be possible for a number of the officials to attend.

WARRANTS ISSUED

Persons Indicted By Grand Jury Sought by Sheriff

Warrants for the arrest of 16 persons secretly indicted by the Allen-co, grand jury which reported Friday night, were placed in the hands of Sheriff C. W. Baxter Saturday for service.

As rapidly as the warrants are served, and the parties at large placed in custody they will be brought into court and arraigned for trial. No arrests had been made late Saturday.

Arraignment of 11 persons already in custody w[illegible] were indicted by the grand jury will be held at convenience of the court during the coming week, Prosecuting Attorney Eugene T. Lippincott declared Saturday.

Pleas of guilty in several cases may be entered prisoners, it is believed.

BINGHAM GETS NEW IDEAS WHILE ON TOUR OF EAST

C. A. Bingham, city manager, returned to Lima Saturday from a two weeks tour of the east. While on his trip he stopped in 20 or more cities and made brief investigations of their government.

Most of the growing cities in the United States are suffering from the same affliction as Lima, that of high taxes and decreased revenues, he said.

During the trip many ideas were picked up which will aid materially in the solving of the problems confronting the city, he believes.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

NEW YORK—Normal Thomas, associate editor of The Nation, has been appointed director of the League for Industrial Democracy for the coming year, it was announced Saturday.

KU KLUX DRIVES OUT PARTIES

ORGANIZATION LINES LOST

Candidates Face Bitterest Campaign in History.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(Special).—The Ku Klux Klan issue has wiped out party lines in Texas and has set the stage for the bitterest campaign in years.

And for the first time in the history of Texas, a Democratic candidate for the United States Senate will have real opposition when the elections are held.

George E. B. Peddy, a 31-year-old lawyer of Houston, fusion candidate of anti Klan Democrats and of Republicans, is opposing Earle B. Mayfield, nominated by Democrats for the United States Senate after a primary in which Klanism was the issue. Mayfield never intimated in any way that he was pro-klan, but letters bearing the signature of A. D. Ellis, grand dragon of the Klan, urging his nomination, were sent broadcast, urging members to support Mayfield. These letters declared the candidate's membership in the Klan.

FERGUSON RAN

Opposing Mayfield in the primary was James Ferguson, former governor. Ferguson had been impeached while governor, and indicted for misapplication of state funds. Also two years ago Ferguson left the Democratic party to form the American party. These things were sufficient to cause the loss of many anti-Klan votes which will now support Peddy, say the fusion managers.

Peddy is receiving support from Cullen F. Thomas, Clarence Ousley and Senator C. A. Culberson, three candidates in the first primary. His manager is Colonel Henry [illegible] Lindsley of Dallas, past national commander of the American Legion.

A few sidelights on the campaign: While Peddy was at the state university, he led a student demonstration against Ferguson. Ferguson came back by vetoing appropriations for the university. This led to Ferguson's impeachment. But—

RUMOR CIRCULATES

Reports are being circulated that should Mayfield be elected, the Senate will refuse him a seat on account of his alleged Klan affiliations.

Opponents of Peddy have carried the fight to the state attorney general, claiming his candidacy is illegal as Democrats and Republicans are violating election laws in endorsing the same candidate. They urge this particularly as many of the Democrats voted at the two primaries.

Mayfield based his primary campaign on the prohibition issue, but Peddy is conducting his fight entirely on Klanism. Nor does he spare the organization in his speeches. He accuses it of playing politics after its leaders declared the organization never took part in politics, and also as "an organization which started as the secret censor of the morals of the country, but is now a preacher of racial and religious hatred."

PIGEON PICKED UP

A carrier pigeon bearing a band on its right leg with the inscription "1747 A. J. 21 R. V." has been picked up by David F. Lea Marshall, Middle Point, a letter to The Lima News states. It is a very fine bird and Marshal believes it may belong to someone in Lima.

COL. BULLOCK TO SPEAK BEFORE ROTARY; NOBLE ON PROGRAM OF KIWANIS

Lieutenant Colonel C. Seymour Bullock, South Bend, Ind., will tell Rotarians about "Uncle Sam's Farm" at their luncheon Monday noon at the Hotel Norval.

Colonel Bullock is said to be a very interesting speaker and will present the humorous side of the U. S. Census. He is a member of the South Bend Rotary club.

Unusual sidelights on foreign countries will be presented by Dr. Harry Noble, St. Marys, to members of the Kiwanis club at their luncheon Tuesday noon at the Hotel Argonne.

Dr. Noble has spoken in the city before and is well known. He tells of the many interesting things which the average tourist overlooks and he tells them in a very pleasing way.

Reports of delegates to the state convention at Cincinnati during the past week will also be heard by the Kiwanians.

No announcement was made Saturday regarding the program of the Lions club Wednesday noon at the Elks home.

YANKEES CLINCH FLAG

TRIM SOX 3 TO 1

BOSTON. — New York won its second American league pennant here Saturday afternoon, when the Yankees took the final game from the Boston Red Sox 3 to 1. Four successive hits in the first inning by Witt, Dugan, Ruth and Pipp gave the Yankees their winning margin and drove Ferguson out of the box.

After pitching a brilliant game, Hoyt started to blow in the ninth inning. Joe Bush was rushed in to stop the rally and he pulled the game out. Mitchell's bad base running, which caused him to be nipped asleep in the last inning, helped Bush out of the hole. Score:

GIANTS CLOSE SEASON BY SPLITTING WITH BOSTON

NEW YORK. — Giants split even in a double header here Saturday with the Boston Braves, New York losing the first 5 to 1, while a team of rookies copped the second 5 to 3. They were the last games on the Giants' schedule.

McGraw tried out a new twirler, Cvengross, and he delivered by holding Boston to six hits, but pitched loosely with men on bases and was wild. The Giants made 12 hits.

Only three regulars were in the lineup when Blume, another budding recruit checked the Beantown outfit in the second game. Scores:

KENTON TRIMS WAPAKONETA

KENTON — Wapakoneta was swamped by the Kenton high school football team here Saturday afternoon by the score of 33 to 0, the locals having little difficulty in piercing the opposing line at will. The ball was in Wapakoneta territory at almost all stages of the game.

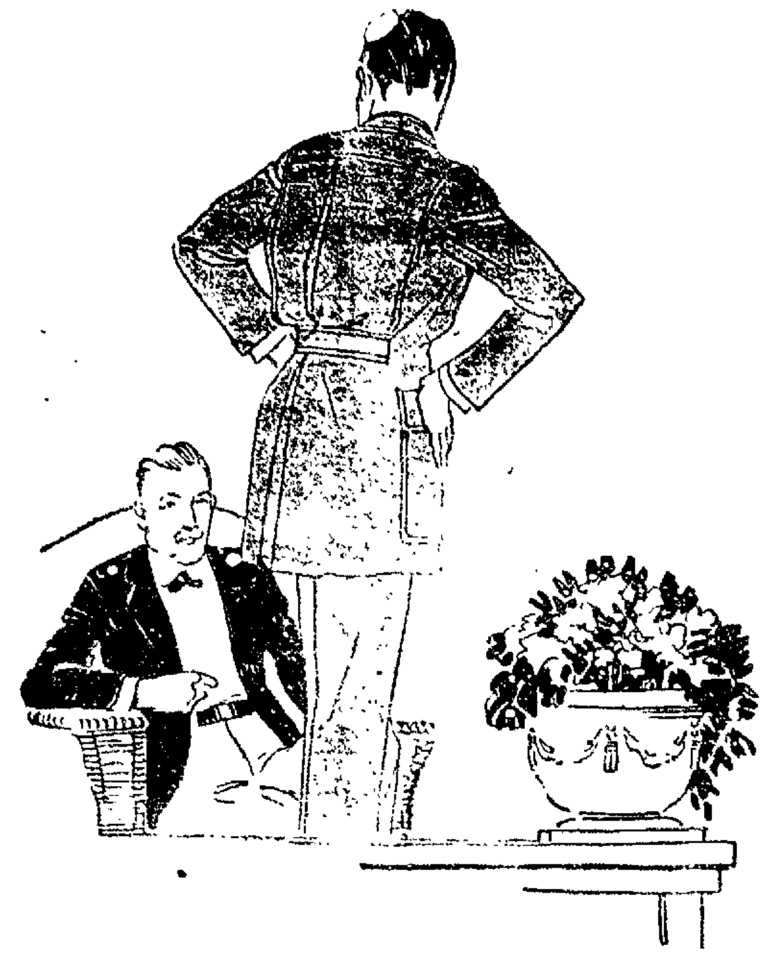

Forward passing by Wentz, quarterback, to Carter, right end, featured the game. At one time the former heaved the ball 50 yards and the end had only to run 15 yards to score a touchdown.

Kenton made a pair of touchdowns in each of the first two quarters and a fifth in the third session, also being successful in scoring three points after touchdown.

The local team will play the strong Ada team here Saturday. Lineups and score:

"Twill Cords"

Are the Favorites for Fall

What are the essentials of a smart looking Suit of Clothes?—True enough, Pattern—Style—and Color play important parts. But above all else "Smart Lines" and Shape-retaining Quality are the outstanding features of a really GOOD LOOKING Suit of Clothes.

Surely, the ambitions of both the weaver and the designer were directed toward this end when the "Twill Cord" Suit was developed. A more dignified, or smarter looking Suit was never shown. And the fabric construction guarantees against such things as "Trousers bagging at the knees"—"Coat stretching out of shape"—"Sagging"—"Pulling" and other unsightly conditions that so frequently mar the good appearance of the particular dresser.

THESE SUITS CAN BE HAD IN SUCH SMART SHADES AS

Cost of Living Not Materially Altered, Figures Show

(BY B. C. FORBES)

NEW YORK.—(Special).—Well, how do you find the cost of living, rising or falling?

Broadly this is what is taking place throughout the world. In countries where the government has been creating currency inflation, prices of the necessities of life are tending [illegible].

In countries where output of paper currency has been allowed to [illegible] prices are soaring and there is widespread discontent.

NEW YORK.—More threatening complications in the Near East and a further break in sterling exchange were responsible for the reactionary trend of prices in Saturday's brief session of the stock market. Shares which apparently had been bought for supporting purposes Friday were thrown back into the market Saturday and these offerings combined with aggressive short selling of the steels, oils and equipment, counted for the market's depression. The spirited bidding up of a few selected shares such as National Biscuit, which was pushed up five points and Otis Elevator up eight, failed to check the decline elsewhere. Mexican Petroleum exhibited acute weakness, dropping four points, while Crucible and American Locomotive receded three each. Losses of 2 to 2 3-4 points were sustained by Bethlehem B., Republic Steel, Consolidated Gas and Baldwin.

Profit-taking by recent buyers and a renewal of short pressure combined with a lack of fresh buying power resulted in an irregular at opening dealings. Rails, oils, equipments and independent steels yielded to pressure but there were a few exceptions in each group. New York Central fell back a point and Chicago and Northwestern half, while Northern Pacific was pushed up 1. Standard Oil of New Jersey mounted nearly two points but losses of substantial fractions were recorded by Pacific Oil, General Asphalt, Mexican Petroleum, Pan-American, Standard Oil of California and Royal Dutch. Baldwin and American Locomotives yielded a point each as did Continental Can and Lackawanna Steel. Republic Steel yielded fractionally but Midvale advanced a point. National Biscuit broke through to a new high record for the year on a gain of 3 points and a similar advance was made by Otis Elevator.

STOCK AND GRAIN GOSSIP

Liverpool did not reflect our weakness of Friday in wheat. Considerable short selling has been indulged in the past few days and it would be no surprise to see a covering movement on account of the uncertain foreign situation.

Shipments of 600,000 bushels wheat; 1,500,000 corn and more than 500,000 oats have been arranged for all rails, from Chicago to the seaboard for export. More business would be booked if it were possible to secure cars.

Short covering may bring about a further enhancement in stock prices, but it is not believed that efforts for the rise will be pronounced at this particular time, at least until the foreign political outlook shows signs of clearing.

Reports that the Standard Oil of New Jersey had directly or indirectly acquired an additional 23,000 shares of Humble Oil and Refg. company at a cost of approximately $10,000,000, or around $430 a share were denied Friday by officials of both companies.

Stock market is expected to continue irregular, but with buying showing improvement on all reactions in Standard stocks, the floating supply of these issues is concentrating in strong hands, according to latest developments.

MARKETS UPSET BY WAR SCARE

Nervousness Brought About by Near East Situation

STERLING DOWN 10 PER CENT

Domestic Uncertainties Caused by Transportation Tieup

NEW YORK—(United Press)—Falling prices and susceptible markets have been active factors in unsettled financial conditions the past week, markets continuing to display nervousness due to apprehensions caused by the Turkish war scare. Buying ceased when confidence was shaken by a few sharp attacks. Ensuing drops offered "shorts" their opportunity either to repurchase their earlier offerings or test the market further.

Attention continues to center on the Turkish war, but the tendency toward moderation and caution has led to a somewhat firmer attitude. The main danger watched for is in some untoward incident transpiring in the neutral zone.

The ten per cent drop in sterling cannot be entirely attributed to this situation, for it is feeling the effect of large offerings of commercial bills against seasonal exports of cotton and grain Some of these accounts, which had been held back for a more favorable time, are being relinquished when the sterling market is thin. England also is hearing a financial burden by acting as money center for diverse European countries.

Domestic uncertainties largely concern the extent of the transportation tieup due to strikes and the wage increases will have on profits.

The steel industry has come back to about 70 per cent of capacity. Coal production is remarkably good and the automobile output is continuing at an unusually high rate. Money is slightly firmer.

WHEAT PRICES UP TWO CENTS

CHICAGO — Higher quotations at Liverpool in the face of better political news in Europe was reflected in the wheat market here Saturday and values showed some strength, the December delivery being in the lead. Fluctuations were rapid, however, because of evening up on outstanding contracts. The opening which varied from unchanged figures to 3-4c advance, with December $1.04 1-2 to 1.04-3-4 and May $1.07 3-4 to 1.08, was followed by a slight decline, then something of a general rally.

Corn and oats followed the course of wheat, the active deliveries showing the most strength. After opening 1-4c lower to a like advance, with December 58 5-8 to 58 3-4, the corn market scored moderate gains all around.

Oats started 1-2c lower to 1-8 and 1-4c up, with December 36 3-4 to 36 7-8, and later scored slight general gains.

The wheat close was strong with values showing a net gain of 1 1-4 to 2 3-4c with December $1.05 3-4 to 1.05 3-8 and May $1.09 and 1.09 3-8.

At the corn finish the market was unsettled, with values ranging from 1-5c decline to 7-8c advance with December 59 1-8 to 59 1-4.

ALLEN-CO AUTHORITIES CALLED BY SHELBY JURY

Roy Bowersock, county detective and Mrs. Nettie Miller, probation officer, are among the witnesses from Allen-co, who have been summoned to testify before the Shelby-co, grand jury which convenes October 4.

Witnesses from Allen-co are to testify in regard to Rev. L. W. Irwin, formerly of Harrod, charged with a statutory crime against Elizabeth Ladd, 11, his step-daughter.

Irwin was held to the grand jury on charge of being the father of a child born to Elizabeth in July.

PRODUCE REVIEW

(By Swift & Co.)

Receipts of poultry, especially of spring chickens, continue to show an increase, which is seasonal. Because of the large supply, prices have declined somewhat. Indications point to a very large crop to be marketed the next three months.

There is a light supply of fresh eggs and the price tendency is upward. Fine new laid eggs are in demand and command top prices.

MARSHALL FIELD REVIEW

Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was slightly less than during the corresponding week of last year. Road sales showed an increase over the previous week and were well ahead of a year ago. There were more customers in market than dring the same week of 1921.

A special meeting of the Pythian Sisters will be held Monday at 7:30 p. m. in Castle Hall. Mrs. Grace Mannon, delegate to the Grand Temple convention held in Canton during the past week will give a report of the assembly.

PLANS ARE SOUGHT

Engineer Makes Preparations for Lake Erie Overhead

Complete plans and specifications of the Metcalf-st overhead, to be constructed by the L. E. & W. railroad, Allen-co and the City of Lima, will be asked of J. K. Conner, engineer of the railroad, by Vaughn C. Miller, city engineer.

As soon as estimates have been obtained legal notice of the improvement and a request for bids will be drawn up and placed in such engineering journals as will reach the type of contractors desired.

A large portion of the work can be done by local contractors, Miller believes, altho certain portions will have to be cared for by expert bridge builders. As low a price as possible must be obtained.

Cost of the improvement will be born as follows; the railroad will pay 65 per cent, the county 17 1-2 and the city 17 1-2 per cent of the expense.

It is hoped that bids can be asked for and the work started this year altho certain engineering problems may arise which will delay the work.

BIG BOND ISSUE TO PAY VICTORY NOTES, U.S. PLAN

The recent weakness in market prices of Liberty bonds may be ascribed chiefly to two causes; first, anticipation of heavy government financing before the year ends, and second, to selling of Liberty issues by banks in anticipation of increased demand for money and consequently firmer interest rates as the seasonal needs of autumn develop.

The government has $4,100,000,000 of short dated obligations, including $2,000,000,000 of Victory 4 3-4 per cent bonds, maturing before next July. Nearly $1,000,000,000 of the Victory 4 3-4s have been called for redemption on Dec 15.—Some time ago Secretary of the Treasury Mellon stated the government's refunding operations during the present fiscal year presented a problem of the first water."

ISSUE OF LONG TERM BONDS

For the redemption of $1,000,000,000,000 of Victory 4 3-4s in December it has been evident that a loan of more permanent character than short term treasury bills would be necessary. It is the understanding of financiers in close touch with the situation that the treasury is considering an issue of $1,000,000,000 of long term bonds before Dec. 15. It is probable the bonds will run thirty years and bear interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent, altho the rate might be made as low as 4 per cent if certain tax exemption features are decided on. It is believed the bulk of the "called" Liberty 4 3-4s will be converted into the new issue.

It is also understood that the balance of $3,100,000,000, maturing before next July, will be refunded by issues of treasury notes and certificates of indebtedness.

Mrs. L. P. Dimond, 301 N. Jameson-ave, records the marketing experience of her daughter, Alice Ann, aged 7. She was sent for ham. On returning, she said, "They aren't going to keep any more ham at Mr. Jones'."

Her mother said, "Is that so? How do you know?"

She replied, "Because he had a sign up, 'Ham Ends Today'."

He reports having missed a number of eggs from his chicken coops. He started to watch the place and saw a rat in his front paws, balancing on his hind feet and tail hopping off with it, like a kangaroo.

RIDING BRONCO KEEPS HIM FIT

AUSTIN, Tex. — "How come I lived to be 102 years old?" repeated "the fightin'est man in Kimble," when the question was asked him.

SMITH

"Wal, fer about half my lifetime, I've made it a reg'lar thing to ride 10 or 12 miles on a buckin' bronc' after cattle ever' mornin' befo' breakfas'. That's the only way I kin account fer it."

The "fightin'est man," who won his title right after the Civil War, while serving as marshal of Greenville, Tex., is John J. Smith of Kimble-co. He settled in the Lone Star State after being mustered out of the Confederate army and divided his time for years, between keeping the peace, as Greenville's police force, railroad construction and punching cattle.

His neighbors say he is as good a man with rifle or pistol as ever he was, but Smith doubts it. "I kin still hit a squirrel as fur 's I kin see him," he says, "but I can't always be dead sure of knockin' their heads off, the way I used to."

He still makes the most of his 6 feet 2 inches, however, and weighs 228 pounds without his cowhide boots on.

Winter Coal Free Florida

Your coal bill will make the first payment on ten acres of land, then go live on it. We own over thirty thousand acres of land and you can buy any amount from us direct and save from $25 to $50 per acre. We bought this land fifteen and twenty years ago and at that time we picked the best timber land which will assure you of good soil now.

These lands are located in the heart of the orange and citrus center of Florida, seventy miles southeast of Tampa between the Dixie Highway and the Scenic Highway and in Polk County, which county has the largest orange groves in the world, also, over three hundred miles of fine paved roads, good schools, churches, fine water, good fishing on a hundred lakes and plenty of hunting. Intermingled with our land are fine groves and good farming and trucking land. The location and price will speak for themselves.

We now have over four hundred and fifty acres of this land in orange groves and four Lima men are arranging to put out four hundred acres more this winter. Why not go down with us and put out a grove for yourself? In five years your worries will be over. We will give you any terms you want that are reasonable, besides reference here in Lima banks and business men.

MUTT AND JEFF—JEFF SLIPS ONE OVER ON DAN CUPID—

By BUD FISHER

BRINGING UP FATHER

—BY McMANUS

SHORT SHAVINGS

Mrs. L. P. Dimond, 304 N. Jameson-ave, records the marketing experience of her daughter, Alice Ann, aged 7. She was sent for ham. On returning, she said, "They aren't going to keep any more ham at Mr. Jones'."

Her mother said, "Is that so? How do you know?"

She replied, "Because he had a sign up, 'Ham Ends Today'."

He reports having missed a number of eggs from his chicken coops. He started to watch the place and saw a rat in his front paws, balancing on his hind feet and tail hopping off with it, like a kangaroo.

William Cunningham, O. S. U. student, has a new roommate this fall. He didn't know when his roommate wo'd arrive. So he left the door unlocked for nearly a week.

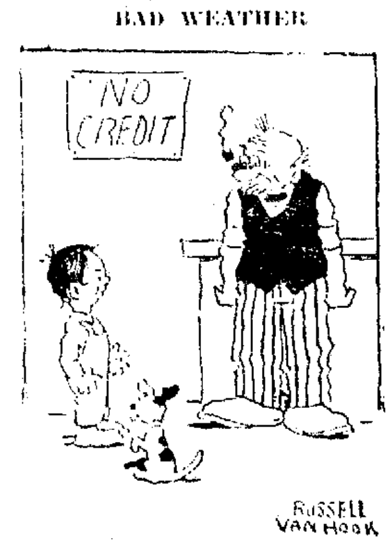

"He's here now," writes Cunningham. "When I came home last night I found he had arrived in my absence. He had gone to bed and had propped a chair against the door to keep out burglars. I woke up nearly everyone in the building before he heard me."

* * *

J. B. Kaufman, Ohio Steel, bought a camping outfit for a motor trip.

It included a small gasoline stove. He set up the tent and lighted the stove in it as a test. He managed to put out the fire with a rug. "If the rugs hold out," he says, "I can get the tent thru to Florida."

RIDING BRONCO KEEPS HIM FIT

AUSTIN, Tex. — "How come I lived to be 103 years old?" repeated "the fightin'est man in Kimble," when the question was asked him.

SMITH

"Wal, fer about half my lifetime, I've made it a reg'lar thing to ride 10 or 12 miles on a buckin' bronc' after cattle ever' mornin' befo' breakfas'. That's the only way I kin account fer it."

The "fightin'est man," who won his title right after the Civil War, while serving as marshal of Greenville, Tex., is John J. Smith of Kimble-co. He settled in the Lone Star State after being mustered out of the Confederate army and divided his time for years, between keeping the peace, as Greenville's police force, railroad construction and punching cattle.

His neighbors say he is as good a man with rifle or pistol as ever he was, but Smith doubts it. "I kin still hit a squirrel as fur 's I kin see him," he says, "but I can't always be dead sure of knockin' their heads off, the way I used to."

He still makes the most of his 6 feet 3 inches, however, and weighs 228 pounds without his cowhide boots on.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

CANTON — Attorney E. A. McCuskey of this city has been appointed receiver for the Holmes Automobile Company. Plans now are being formulated to organize a new company to manufacture in Canton the car developed by the old concern.

TAKES NEW POST

CINCINNATI — Professor Howard B. Luther, formerly of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has taken the chair of civil engineering at the University of Cincinnati.
